PREFACE.

THE text of this edition is independent, being based upon a comparison of our best manuscript readings. J has been printed instead of i where the character has consonantal value, since without such differentiation the pupil must be entirely at a loss to know whether i before a vowel is consonantal or vocalic.

The Vocabulary has been prepared with great care upon the basis of the Menge-Preuss Lexicon Caesarianum. The illustrations are taken mainly from Stoffel and Rheinhard.

Grateful acknowledgments are hereby tendered to friends who have helped me with their criticisms and suggestions on the notes of this volume.

CHARLES E. BENNETT.

ITHACA, April, 1903.

In reprinting this volume, I have changed the marking of most vowels before gn. Recent investigation has shown that, except in rēgnum, rēgnō, and a few other words, the vowel is regularly short before gn. I also now regard the a of maximus, maximē as short, and have so marked it.

INTRODUCTION.

SKETCH OF CAESAR'S LIFE.

1. Early Years. — Gaius Julius Caesar was born July 12, 102¹ B.C. Upon his father's side he was a nephew of that Julia who had married the famous popular leader Marius, — a fact which doubtless determined Caesar's own political affiliations. From his very earliest years his fortunes were closely bound up with those of the democratic party (the populares). At the age of fifteen (87 B.C.) he was appointed by Marius flamen dialis, or special priest of Jupiter, and four years later (83 B.C.) he married Cornelia, daughter of Cinna, another distinguished democratic leader and at one time the colleague of Marius in the consulship. Marius had died in 86, and Sulla, returning in triumph from the Mithridatic War, had established himself as perpetual dictator in 82 B.C. Representing, as he did, the aristocrats (or optimates), Sulla naturally looked askance at this alliance of the nephew of one great popular leader with the daughter of another, and commanded Caesar to put away his wife. The young man refused, and chose rather to submit to the loss of his priesthood, of his own property, and the dowry of his wife. Sulla later yielded a reluctant consent to Caesar's pardon, justifying his misgivings by the oft-quoted utterance, "They are fools who fail to see in this lad many a Marius." Caesar soon departed for Asia, where he served his first campaign. In 80 B.C. he fought with distinction at Mytilene and won a civic crown (corona civica) for saving the life of a fellow soldier. Upon Sulla's death in 78 B.C. he returned to Rome. Here he availed himself of a common method of securing entrance into public life. This was to arraign some recent office holder on a criminal charge. Such prosecutions gave an opportunity for the exhibition of oratorical ability and thus paved the way for political advancement. The object of Caesar's attack was Cn. Dolabella, who in 80 B.C. had been the proconsular governor of the province of Cilicia in Asia Minor. Caesar arraigned Dolabella on the charge of extortion, and produced a profound impression by his oratory. Yet owing to the fact that the judges were aristocrats, Dolabella, who belonged to the same party, was acquitted.

Caesar's first success in oratory determined him to devote especial study to perfecting himself in this branch, and for that purpose he withdrew from Rome in 76 B.C. and placed himself under the instruction of Molo of Rhodes, the rhetorician, who was also the teacher of Cicero. It was on the voyage thither that Caesar's well-known adventure with the pirates occurred. He had fallen into their hands as prisoner, and was wont to while away the days of his captivity by writing speeches and poems and reading these to his pirate audience. When his captors failed to show appreciation of his literary efforts, he jokingly threatened to hang them all, — a threat which, after being ransomed, he is said to have made good.

2. Public Offices. — Returning from his oratorical studies to Rome, he held the offices of military tribune, pontifex (74 B.C.), quaestor (68), aedile (65), praetor (62). In 63 B.C. he had been chosen pontifex maximus, — a life office.

3. Aedileship. — Notable was his year as aedile. The aediles were primarily charged with the supervision of public buildings, baths, taverns, markets, etc. Incidentally they also had charge of two annual festivals, the Megalesia and the Ludi Romani. In connection with these festivals, it was customary for the aediles, at their own expense, to prepare imposing spectacles for the entertainment of the populace. Aspirants for political advancement had, in Caesar's day, come to vie with one another in the magnificence of these exhibitions. Caesar, in his aedileship, eclipsed all his predecessors in the splendor of the entertainments provided for the people, exhibiting on one occasion the unheard-of number of 320 pairs of gladiators. The money for these expenditures he borrowed from Marcus Crassus, with whom his political fortunes were soon to be more closely linked. At one time he is said to have owed a million and a half of dollars. By virtue of his control over the temples, which fell to him as aedile, he ventured further to appeal to the popular sentiment by restoring to the Capitol the statue of Marius and the trophies which Marius had captured in his victories over Jugurtha and the Cimbri. Sulla had ordered these removed from public view; and great was the enthusiasm of the populace to see them placed once more in Rome's greatest temple.

4. The Conspiracies of Catiline. — In the years 65 and 63 B.C. occurred the two attempts of Catiline to overthrow the government. Both these conspiracies were thwarted. To what extent Caesar was actively engaged in them cannot be determined. But both were the outcome of the waxing democracy of the day, to which he stood so near; and it is unlikely that either of the two movements was conducted without his knowledge. Most probably both had his sympathy. Caesar seems early to have recognized, what was undoubtedly true, that the existing constitution of Rome was no longer adequate for the new social and political conditions of the Roman people. The old order had been outgrown, and the existing political machinery was no longer adequate for present needs. In political convictions Caesar probably sympathized with neither of the two great parties of the Roman commonwealth. He saw the need of something larger than was contemplated by the political programme of either. The aristocrats held tenaciously to the old order of things. The democratic party, while ready to tear down the old order, lacked the constructive capacity to replace the old with something better. Yet Caesar allied himself with the popular party, rightly persuaded that only thereby could he achieve the power at which his ambition aimed; hoping too, perhaps, to supply a solution of the political problems of the time.

5. Propraetorship.—After his year as praetor, he received as propraetor the province of Hither Spain (Spain beyond the Ebro), the government of which he administered with great distinction, adding to his civil triumphs the subjugation of some hostile Lusitanian tribes.

6. Elected Consul.—Returning to Rome in 60 B.C., he appealed to the aristocratic Senate for the honor of a triumph. At the same time he offered himself as a candidate for the highest magistracy in the Roman state, the consulship. In order to conduct his canvass for this office, it was essential that Caesar should be in Rome itself. On the other hand, Roman precedent required that a general, waiting to celebrate a triumph, should remain outside the limits of the city. Caesar begged for a suspension of this rule, and, when the hostile Senate refused, hoping he would thus be impelled to abandon his candidacy, he promptly renounced his claims to the triumph and entered the city. He was soon after chosen consul for the year 59 B.C. As his colleague, the aristocrats succeeded in electing Bibulus, a man of so little force that the wags of the day, instead of speaking of the consulship as that of Caesar and Bibulus, characterized it as that of Julius and Caesar.

7. The First Triumvirate and Caesar's Proconsulate.—To about this time belongs the formation of the political alliance between Caesar, Pompey, and Crassus, known as the First Triumvirate, designed to advance the political fortunes of its three members. Through the help of his two powerful allies, Caesar after his year as consul secured the important provinces of Illyricum, Cisalpine and Farther Gaul as his proconsular command. Such power was ordinarily assigned for but a single year, but Caesar was appointed for the extraordinary term of five years. He entered upon his duties in 58 B.C., and the month of March found him facing an invasion of nearly 370,000 Helvetians and other barbarians. For the next nine years he was busily engaged in the conquest of Gaul, and in paving the way for its organization as a Roman province. But during the whole period of his Gallic campaigns he never once lost touch with affairs at Rome. While the nature of his proconsular command forbade his return to the capital or even his passing south of the Rubicon, the boundary of his province of Cisalpine Gaul, he nevertheless held frequent conferences with the political leaders of the day, thus solidly intrenching his power. In the spring of 56 B.C. occurred the famous conference of Luca, at which all the triumvirs were present and where the destinies of the Roman world were decided. Caesar's command in the North was to be prolonged for another period of five years after its expiration at the end of 54 B.C. The number of his legions was to be increased from six to ten, and these were to receive their pay from the public treasury. Pompey and Crassus were to hold the consulship for 55 B.C., and later to receive five-year commands, the former of Spain, the latter of Syria.

8. The Civil War.—Caesar's second term, however, did not elapse before civil war began. Crassus perished in 53 B.C. on his ill-starred expedition against the Parthians. Julia, the daughter of Caesar, who had been married to Pompey, had died the year before. These two events roused the latent rivalry between Pompey and Caesar, and stimulated their partisans to the keenest activity in behalf of these two leaders. Earnest endeavors were made to avert the impending contest, but they were fruitless. The Senate, dominated by Pompey, espoused his cause, and demanded that Caesar should disband his troops. Caesar refused. Early in 49 B.C. he crossed the Rubicon, the southern boundary of his province of Cisalpine Gaul, and entered Italy at the head of his legions, thus precipitating civil war. The struggle continued for several years. Caesar rapidly became master of Italy, and then followed Pompey to Greece, where against overwhelming odds he gained the brilliant victory of Pharsălus, August 9, 48 B.C. Pompey fled to Egypt, where he was assassinated by the order of the eunuch Pothinus, who was acting sovereign of the country. Arriving in Egypt in pursuit of Pompey, Caesar became involved in the Alexandrine War, caused by the strife for the throne between Ptolemy and his sister Cleopatra. Caesar settled Cleopatra on the throne, after which (in 47 B.C.) he set out for Pontus, where Pharnaces, the son of Mithridates, had defeated a Roman general, and was endeavoring further to extend his power. He defeated Pharnaces at Zela, in the engagement which he reported in his famous despatch, Veni, vidi, vici, after which he returned to Africa, and at Thapsus, in Numidia, April 6, 46 B.C., defeated the remainder of the senatorial forces still in arms.

9. Caesar's Reforms.—After these achievements, he returned to Rome and addressed his attention to the restoration of public order and to the inauguration of needed reforms. Less than two years of life remained to him, and even this was interrupted by the war in Spain, where the sons of Pompey had again raised the standard of the senatorial party, only to be defeated in the hard-fought battle of Munda (45 B.C.). Yet even in this brief period Caesar made vast progress in restoring public confidence and in relieving the condition of anarchy into which Rome had been plunged by civil war. He himself was appointed dictator, at first for ten years, and later for life. The calendar was rectified, the administration of the wretchedly governed provinces was reformed, while the bitterness begotten by the recent strife was largely allayed by the clemency and generosity of the victor. The progress of these beneficent measures was interrupted by Caesar's assassination in the entrance hall of Pompey's theatre, March 15, 44 B.C.

But though struck down thus early, he had accomplished the task his lofty genius had set itself. He had put an end to the disorder which had been practically incessant at Rome for two generations, a condition which, as he truly saw, was the result of an antiquated political system that had long since served its day. In the place of disorder, he paved the way for a stable centralized government, the Empire, destined to bless the world with more than two centuries of better government than any considerable portion of it had ever enjoyed for an equal length of time. This was his great service to civilization and to mankind.

10. Caesar's Personality.—As we contemplate Caesar's personality we are struck with his extraordinary versatility. He was general, statesman, orator, and man of letters; and in each of these fields he displayed consummate genius. His military campaigns have evoked the admiration of masters of the art of war; his statesmanship brought order out of anarchy; as an orator he was magnetic; as a man of letters he has left us the accounts of the Gallic and Civil Wars, admirable for their directness and luminous simplicity of statement. His essential qualities were those of the man of action,—clearness of vision, promptness of decision, energy in execution, and indefatigable perseverance. Needless cruelty and bloodshed at times stained his conduct, but these cannot obscure the greatness of his personality or essentially alter the measure of his achievements.

ROMAN MILITARY ANTIQUITIES.

THE LEGION.

Membership of the Legion.

11. General Organization.—In Caesar's time a Roman legion consisted of 10 cohorts. Each cohort comprised 3 maniples, and each maniple 2 centuries. The legion, therefore, contained 30 maniples and 60 centuries. As the normal strength of a century was 100 men, the normal strength of a legion was 6000. But apparently this number was seldom actually realized. Usually it was much smaller. As a rule the legions of Caesar's Gallic campaigns probably did not contain over 3600 men. In a legion of this strength, the cohort contained 360 men, the maniple 120, and the century 60.

All the members of the legion were Roman citizens and were heavily armed (milites gravis armaturae). For details of their armament, see below, § 28.

12. Cavalry.—The earlier Roman army had comprised a certain quota of cavalry, but in Caesar's army there were no regularly enlisted horsemen. Horsemen were ordinarily provided by the allies. Thus the Haedui and others are stated to have furnished 4000 cavalry in Caesar's first campaign. The next year the Treveri sent a contingent. The total number of cavalry at Caesar's disposal in his Gallic campaigns probably never exceeded 5000.] The organization of the cavalry was on a Roman basis. The largest divisions were known as alae; these were again subdivided into turmae, and the turmae into companies of ten, known as decuriae and commanded by decuriones. As a rule the horsemen furnished by the Gallic states were not of great service. They could not always be trusted, and in hard fighting they lacked both discipline and courage. In the battle on the Sabis the cavalry sent by the Treveri fled at the critical juncture, while in Book iv. some 5000 allied cavalry are routed by a force of only 800 mounted Germans. The chief use of Caesar's cavalry seems to have been to pursue and cut to pieces a defeated enemy.

13. Auxiliaries. — Besides cavalry, the allies also often furnished infantry, while from Numidia and Crete came archers, and from the Balearic Isles skilful slingers. Most of the auxiliaries usually clung to their native organization, just as they retained their native weapons and modes of fighting. But the allied infantry was frequently organized into cohorts in the Roman fashion. All the auxiliaries were regularly lightly armed (militēs levis armaturae), and were adapted rather to rapid evolutions against small detachments than to withstanding the shock of battle.

LIGHT-ARMED SOLDIER.

14. Evocati. — The evocati were men who returned to voluntary service after their period of enlistment had expired and they had withdrawn from military life. They enjoyed special privileges upon their reëntry into the army. Among these were exemption from the severer duties, such as work on fortifications, night watches, etc. They also received higher pay and had a certain prospect of advancement. In one passage they are mentioned as being mounted when on the march.

15. Engineers.—In the early Roman army there had been a separate corps of engineers (fabri), but this organization had been abandoned before Caesar's time. In his army, engineering work, such as the construction of camps, the building of bridges, the construction of siege works, was performed by the Roman legionaries. Among these there must of course have been some men of special engineering training who assumed the direction of important works.

PILE DRIVER (festuca).

16. Scouts and Spies.—These were not a separate corps. They were simply individual soldiers detailed for special service. The spies (speculatores) probably acted singly, using disguise when necessary. The scouts (exploratores) seem to have been reconnoitering parties of horsemen.

17. Camp-followers and Sutlers.—The camp-followers (calones) were officers' servants or persons charged with supervision of the baggage. They were probably slaves. The sutlers (lixæ) sold provisions and supplies.

18. Praetorian Cohort.—The praetorian cohort (cohors praetoria) was the general's body-guard. Caesar had no such body-guard, though it is repeatedly mentioned in connection with other commanders in contemporary military history.

Officers of the Legion.

19. Commander-in-Chief.—Caesar commanded the Roman army in Gaul by virtue of his authority as proconsul. Like the consul, the proconsul also had the military imperium when outside the city, i.e. he possessed absolute military authority.

20. Quaestor.—The quaestor was the paymaster. In military dignity he ranked next to the commander-in-chief, having special quarters (the quaestorium) in the camp; see the plan in § 38. Ordinarily the quaestor's duties were financial; yet at times he was intrusted with responsible commands. Thus in the battle against Ariovistus the quaestor had charge of one of the six legions.

21. Legati.—The legati were men deputed or commissioned (lēgō, 'depute,' 'commission') as advisers of the commanding general. This made it possible for the commander to secure a valuable staff of advisers, who might also, when occasion required, be intrusted with responsible command of a portion of the army. Caesar introduced the custom of using his legati as legionary commanders, a duty which up to his time had been regularly exercised by the tribuni militum (§ 22). The legati were of senatorial rank, i.e. they consisted of persons who had at least filled the office of quaestor at Rome.

22. Tribuni militum.—There were six tribuni militum in a legion. Till Caesar's time these had commanded the legion in succession, each holding office for two months. But the tribuni in Caesar's legions consisted largely of inexperienced persons owing their appointment to political influence or personal friendship. Hence Caesar introduced the custom of employing the legati (§ 21) as legionary commanders, reserving the tribuni for less responsible duties. The tribuni were of equestrian rank, i.e. they were persons enjoying the equestrian property rating, — 400,000 sesterces (about $20,000).

23. Praefecti.—The term praefectus was loosely applied. Usually it designates a commander of auxiliaries, such as slingers, archers, cavalry, or the allied infantry organized in cohorts.

24. Centurions.—The centurions were commanders of centuries (§ 11). There were, accordingly, 60 centurions in each legion. The centurions rose from the ranks, being simply common soldiers who had given evidence of courage and capacity to command. Hence they are often compared to the non-commissioned officers of our modern armies. They were of different grades or classes, and could rise by promotion within their own body, but were ineligible for advancement owing to their lack of the necessary social or official standing (equestrian or senatorial rank; §§ 21, 22).

The rank of individual centurions seems to have been determined in accordance with the following principles:¹ Each of the ten cohorts was, as already stated (§ 11), divided into three maniples. Of these the soldiers of one were designated as triarii or pilani, those of another as principes, those of the third as hastati. The triarii or pilani ranked highest, the hastati lowest. These names had once applied to the position of troops in the phalanx when marshalled for battle. But long before Caesar's day they had lost their original significance and were now merely convenient designations of military rank. There was, then, in each cohort one maniple of triarii, one of principes, one of hastati. Each of these maniples, furthermore, was divided into two centuries. It was these centuries that the centurions commanded. Of the two centurions in a maniple, one was called centurio prior, the other centurio posterior. The centurio prior was the commander of the whole manipule; the centurio posterior was his subordinate. It will therefore be apparent that there were thirty centuriones priores and thirty centuriones posteriores in each legion. Of each class, the centurions of the hastati were lowest, those of the triarii (or pilani) the highest. Promotion was from the lowest grade (hastati) in the posteriores to the highest (triarii). From the triarii of the posteriores the centurion might then advance to the priores of the lowest grade (hastati) and then through the principes to the triarii. There were, of course, ten centurions in each of these six grades,—one for each cohort. The highest grade, as has been said, comprised the ten priores triarii. Of these ten priores triarii, the highest in rank was the centurion of the first cohort. He was called primipili centurio ('centurion of the first division') or primipilus, and ranked as the first centurion of the entire legion. His position was one of the greatest importance and responsibility. For in battle his cohort was posted in front on the right, and he naturally led the fighting of the whole legion. The ten priores of the triarii, i.e. the ten highest centurions of each of the ten cohorts, seem to have formed a special class. Apparently it is to these that Caesar refers as the centuriones primorum ordium (i. 41), an expression in which ordines is used in the sense of 'centuries.'

The centurions enforced strict discipline. Flogging seems to have been a frequent punishment for misconduct. It was administered by the centurions themselves, a vine switch being the usual instrument by which it was inflicted.

In actual conflict the conduct of the centurions was a vital element of the encounter. It virtually rested with them to win or lose the day. Hence only men of character and force were chosen for these responsible positions,—men whose courage and hope never sank and whose natural capacity for leadership was able to inspire hope and courage in the men of their command. The Gallic War abounds in repeated illustrations of the magnificent heroism and gallant service rendered by these officers.

25. Decurions.—These were cavalry officers. As the name implies, they each had charge of a squad of ten horsemen.

ENLISTMENT, TERM OF SERVICE, PAY.

26. In the earlier periods of Roman history only property holders assessed for 11,000 asses or more were eligible to military service. These were liable to serve for ten campaigns, between the ages of seventeen and forty-six. The poorest citizens were not only not called upon to serve; they were not even permitted to. But as time went on, there manifested itself a growing disinclination to military life on the part of the wealthier classes. By tacit consent Roman citizens of the lower classes were admitted to the army, and by Caesar's day these had come to be the only Roman soldiers.

The term of enlistment is uncertain. Not long after Caesar's time, however, the period was twenty years, and it is probable that in Caesar's army the term of enlistment did not differ greatly from this.

The pay of the common soldier was 225 denarii per annum, —about $45. Centurions received twice as much.

CLOTHING, ARMOR, AND WEAPONS.

27. Clothing.—The regular dress of the legionary soldier consisted (1) of a sleeveless tunic; (2) the sagum or sagulum, a loose cloak for rough weather; (3) heavy shoes (caligae) laced part way up the calf.

The commanding general was specially distinguished by the purple military cloak, paludamentum. This was decorated with gold embroidery.

28. Armor.—The armor of the legionary consisted, (1) of a leathern helmet (galea) decorated with a crest (crista). On the march the helmet was worn suspended by a band at the breast. The crest was detachable and was fitted to the helmet when the soldier prepared for fighting; (2) a coat of mail (lorica), consisting of leather overlaid with metal bands, designed to protect the vital parts. Sometimes the lorica was of chain armor (lorica hamata) or of overlapping metal plates (lorica squamata); (3) a shield (scutum), semi-cylindrical in shape, with four square corners. This was made of two layers of wood, and was covered with raw-hide. The upper and lower edges were protected by metal rims. The dimensions were about 30 by 48 inches, and the weight was 16 to 20 lbs. A metal boss or button (umbo) marked the centre. On the march the shield was often carried in a case to protect it from the weather. At such times, too, the shield was not carried in the hand, but was probably slung from the shoulder.

Cavalrymen wore a metal helmet (cassis) and carried a small round shield (parma).

ROMAN LEGIONARY SOLDIERS.

29. Weapons. — The offensive weapons of the legionary were, (1) the pilum, a heavy lance with an iron point (often barbed) measuring about two feet, securely fastened in a stout wooden shaft over four feet long. The total length of the weapon was thus about $6\frac{1}{2}$ feet. Except at the very tip, the iron was soft and easily bent, a fact which made the weapon unfit for use after it had once struck an opposing object with force; (2) the sword (gladius). After hurling the pilum, the legionary had recourse to his sword. This was a heavy, straight, two-edged weapon, worn in a metal-mounted scabbard hanging at the right hip. The blade of the sword was short, not exceeding 10 inches probably; but the weapon must have been a most effective

SWORD. tive one, since, after the pila were hurled SCABBARD. at the beginning of an encounter, the sword was the soldiers' sole reliance.

BAGGAGE.

30. Sarcinae.— The Roman soldier carried all of his personal belongings, including rations for many days, saw, axe, spade, basket, cooking utensils, along with several heavy stakes to be used in constructing the palisade of the camp. The combined weight of all these articles must have been 40 lbs. To facilitate the bearing of such a burden, it was customary to fasten it at the end of a pole, which was carried over the shoulder. Before battle the packs of the soldiers were deposited together, and a special guard was detailed to protect them during the engagement.

31. Impedimenta.— This name was given to the heavy baggage belonging to the army as a whole. It was hauled by pack animals and formed a regular baggage train, consisting of tents, mills for grinding the corn of the soldiers, engines of war, etc.

THE STANDARDS.

AQUILA.

32. The Eagle. — The standard of the legion was a bronze or silver eagle mounted on a staff. Often the eagle was represented as holding in its talons golden or silver thunderbolts, emblematical of the power of the god (Jupiter) to whom the eagle was sacred. The eagle (aquila) was borne by a special aquilifer under the direction of the first centurion, the primipilus. (§ 24.)

AQUILA.

33. Standards of the Maniples. — These were designated by the general name signa, and are illustrated in the accompanying cuts.

SIGNUM.

SIGNUM.

VEXILLUM.

34. Vexilla. — These were carried by the auxiliaries and were cloth banners, hanging from a cross-piece surmounting a staff. The commanding general seems to have had a special crimson vexillum, which was hoisted as a signal for battle.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

35. The musical instruments of Caesar's army were the bucina, tuba, lituus, and cornu. The first three of these are shown in the accompanying illustrations. They were of metal. The cornu is said by some authorities to have been made of an ox horn, fitted with a metal mouthpiece. Others describe it as wholly of metal. All these instruments were used exclusively for military signals. Martial music is not mentioned.

BUCINA.

MARCHING ORDER OF THE TROOPS.

36. On the march the Roman troops regularly proceeded in column, i.e. the front was much narrower than that presented in battle formation. First came the cavalry, who acted as a reconnoitering party. Then came the legions, marching one behind another, each followed by its heavy baggage. If, however, the army were nearing the enemy, about two-thirds of the legions marched in advance of the baggage, the remaining third acting as a rear guard. Sometimes, when the appearance of the enemy was momentarily expected, the march was in regular battle order (§ 37). The packs of the soldiers were then laid aside, and all preparations made for a prompt commencement of fighting.

LITUUS.

BATTLE ORDER.

37. The usual battle formation of Caesar's troops was the triplex acies. The legions stood side by side, and the cohorts were drawn up as indicated in the accompanying illustration. The depth of the formation of cohorts must have varied with circumstances. Of the three lines in the triplex acies, one only was ordinarily engaged. The first began the fighting and continued it till relieved by the second. The third acted as a reserve, ready either to engage in the fighting at the front or to meet an attack made by the enemy on the flank. Less frequently we read of a duplex acies. In this the legion was drawn up in two lines, each of five cohorts. The cavalry and allies were usually stationed on the wings. Ordinarily they participated but slightly in the engagement, being held in reserve for a critical emergency.

FORMATION OF COHORT BY MANIPLES AND CENTURIES.

THE ROMAN CAMP.

38. At the end of each day's march a Roman army regularly constructed a strongly fortified camp. Most of the details of such a camp are obvious from the accompanying illustration. Where possible a sloping hillside was chosen, in near proximity to wood and water. The earthen rampart thrown up around the camp was probably not less than 10 feet high and 10 feet broad at the top. Often it was surmounted by a palisade of stout wooden stakes (valli). A further protection was afforded by a ditch (fossa) running around the camp. One such ditch mentioned by Caesar was 18 feet broad and probably 12 feet deep, though usually the dimensions were smaller. Various additional defenses at times appear, such as redoubts, towers, etc. Constant practice made the construction of such camps a relatively easy task for the Roman legionaries. All shared in the work, which was thus rapidly brought to completion. Within the enclosure were set up the tents of the soldiers and officers.

PLAN OF ROMAN CAMP.

Each of the four main exits of the camp was guarded by a cohort, and at night special sentries (vigiliae) patrolled the outer rampart. There were four shifts of these; hence the name vigiliae was applied to the four periods into which the time from sunset to sunrise was divided. These varied in duration, of course, with the time of year.

39. Winter Camps.— Winter camps (castra hiberna, or simply hiberna) were laid out on the same general plan as the ordinary camp. Doubtless more space was utilized, and the soldiers were protected from the severity of the weather by the erection of thatched wooden huts, while suitable shelters were also provided for the horses and pack animals.

SIEGES AND SIEGE WORKS.

40. The systematic investment and siege of fortified places was an important feature of military art in Caesar's campaigns. At times a persistent blockade, strictly maintained by lines of circumvallation, was sufficient to bring about the capitulation of a stronghold. At other times vigorous assault with all available appliances was necessary. The most important of these are the following:—

41. The Agger.— The agger or siege-terrace was a huge embankment of earth and timber, of the same height as the hostile fortifications against which it was directed. It was begun at some distance from the enemy's walls, and, as its construction continued, gradually neared them at right angles. Its breadth was sometimes over 300 feet. The object, of course, was to provide an avenue of approach over which the besieging party could effect an entrance within the works of the besieged.

MODE OF ADVANCING AGGER.

As the head of the agger neared the wall, the workmen became more and more exposed to assaults from within. To cope with these attacks, protection was sought by the following devices:—

42. Turres Ambulatoriae.—These were movable towers on rollers. They were regularly of several stories and were stationed at the head of the agger. From the lower story a battering-ram (§ 46) was operated, with the design of making a breach in the enemy's wall. In the upper stories were posted archers, catapults, or ballistae. Not infrequently the enemy, by hurling brands, attempted to set fire to the towers. Such efforts were met by protecting the sides with moistened hides.

43. Vineae.—Vineae (literally, 'grape arbors,') were sheds designed to protect the workmen on the agger as they neared the enemy's wall. Vegetius, a Roman writer on military affairs, gives their dimensions as 16 feet long, 7 feet high, and 8 feet wide. The top and sides were protected by hides.

44. Plutei.—These were heavy frames covered with skins and mounted on rollers.

PLUTEUS.

45. Musculi. — The musculus ('little mouse') seems to have been similar to the vinea, but it was larger and more heavily built. Vitruvius, a Roman writer on architecture, gives the dimensions as 25 feet square. The musculus was used by men undertaking to undermine the enemy's wall.

In actual assault upon the walls the following served:

46. The Aries. — The aries, or battering-ram, was a huge beam provided with a heavy iron head. The total length varied from 60 feet to more than 100 feet. The beam was suspended by ropes or chains, and could thus be driven with terrific impact against a hostile wall. It was often operated under the protection of a special shed called testudo arietaria.

47. The Falx Muralis. — This was a heavy iron hook on the end of a long pole, used for tearing down walls.

BALLISTA.

48. Artillery. — The various engines used for hurling heavy missiles were designated by the general name of tormenta, from torqueo, 'twist,' since the propelling power by which they were operated was developed from twisted ropes. The most important contrivances belonging under this head are: —

a) The Ballista, an engine used for hurling heavy stones;

CATAPULT.

b) The Catapult (catapulta), used for hurling heavy javelins;

c) The Scorpio, similar to the catapult, but lighter;

ONAGER.

d) The Onager (literally, 'wild ass'), used for hurling stones.

49. The Testudo. — In assaults upon fortified places, the Romans also sometimes made use of the testudo (literally, TESTUDO.

'tortoise'), a formation illustrated in the accompanying cut. It received its name from the overlapping shields of the soldiers, which thus resembled the scales of a tortoise.

THE NAVY.

50. Ships play an unimportant part in Caesar's campaigns. There was no regular Roman fleet in Gallic waters. When vessels were necessary, they were either constructed to meet the exigency or were obtained from allied and friendly tribes. The fighting ships were called naves longae, so designated from their relatively great length, which was ordinarily eight or ten times their breadth of beam. Thus a ship of 15 feet beam would measure 120 feet in length. The draught was ordinarily light, about 3 feet; for the war against the Veneti vessels of even lighter draught were built, owing to the shoal water in which they were to be used. Vessels were propelled partly by sails, but mainly by oars. There was usually but a single mast, equipped with one square-sail. In battle even this was hauled down. According to the number of tiers of oars, ships were designated as biremes (ships with two banks) or triremes (ships with three banks). The triremes were the commoner.

In combat various tactics were employed. Sometimes the hostile ship was made fast by grappling irons, a gang-plank was lowered across the enemy's bulwarks, and the ship was boarded. Sometimes by clever seamanship the oars of a hostile ship were swept from its side. Of special importance were bronze or iron beaks fitted to the bows of the galleys, with which great damage was often inflicted by ramming.

Smaller boats were attached to the larger ones, available for use in reconnoitering or in less important undertakings. These were known as naves speculatoriae and were equipped with both sails and oars.

As transports the Romans used vessels of a heavier build and broader beam, known as naves onerariae.

CAESAR'S GALLIC WAR.

BOOK I.

CHAPTERS 1-29. — THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE HELVETII.

Gaul and its three divisions.

1. GALLIA est omnis divīsa in partēs trēs, quarum unam incolunt Belgae, aliam Aquitānī, tertiam, quī ipsōrum linguā Celtae, nostrā Gallī appellantur. Hī omnēs linguā, institūtīs, lēgibus inter sē differunt. Gallōs ab Aquitānīs Garumna flūmen, ā Belgīs Matrona et Sēquana 5 dividit.

Hōrum omnium fortissimī sunt Belgae, propterea quod ā cultū atque hūmānitāte prōvinciae longissimē absunt, minimēque ad eōs mercātōrēs saepe commeant, atque ea, quae ad effēminandōs animōs pertinent, important; 10 proximīque sunt Germānīs, quī trāns Rhēnum incolunt, quibuscum continenter bellum gerunt. Quā dē causā Helvētīi quoque reliquōs Gallōs virtūte praecēdunt, quod ferē cotīdiānīs proeliīs cum Germānīs contendunt, cum aut suīs fīnibus eōs prohibent, aut ipsī in eōrum fīnibus 15 bellum gerunt.

Eōrum ūna pars, quam Gallōs obtinēre dictum est, initium capit ā flūmine Rhodanō; continētur Garumnā flūmine, Ōceanō, fīnibus Belgārum; attingit etiam ab

Sēquanīs et Helvētiīs flūmen Rhēnum; vergit ad septentrionēs. Belgae ab extrēmīs Galliae finibus oriuntur; pertinent ad inferiōrem partem flūminis Rhēnī; spectant in septentrionem et orientem sōlem. Aquitānia ā
 5 Garumnā flūmine ad Pŷrēnaeōs montēs et eam partem Ōceanī, quae est ad Hispāniam, pertinet; spectat inter occāsum sōlis et septentrionēs.

Orgetorix induces the Helvetii to migrate.

2. Apud Helvētiōs longē nōbilissimus fuit et dītissimus Orgetorix. Is, M. Messālā, M. Pīsōne cōsulis, 10 rēgnī cupiditāte inductus conjūrātiōnem nōbilitātis fēcit, et cīvitātī persuāsit, ut dē finibus suis cum omnibus cōpiis exirent; perfacile esse, cum virtūte omnibus praestarent, tōtius Galliae imperiō potiri. Id hōc facilius eīs persuāsit, quod undique locī nātūrā Helvētiī continentur:
 15 ūnā ex parte flūmine Rhēnō, lātissimō atque altissimō, quī agrum Helvētium ā Germānīs dīvidit; alterā ex parte monte Jūrā altissimō, quī est inter Sēquanōs et Helvētiōs; tertiā, lacū Lemannō et flūmine Rhodanō, quī prōvinciam nostram ab Helvētiis dīvidit. His rēbus 20 fiēbat, ut et minus lātē vagārentur et minus facile finitimīs bellum inferre possent. Quā ex parte hominēs hellandī cupidī magnō dolōre afficiēbantur. Prō multitudīne autem hominum et prō glōriā bellī atque fortitudinis angustōs sē finēs habēre arbitrābantur, quī in 25 longitudinē milia passuum ccxl, in lātitudinē clxxx patēbant.

The Helvetii make ready. Orgetorix conspires to become king.

3. His rēbus adductī et auctōritāte Orgetorigis permōtī cōstituērunt ea, quae ad proficiscendum pertinē-rent, comparāre, jūmentōrum et carrōrum quam maximum numerum coēmere, sēmentēs quam maximās facere, ut in itinere cōpia frūmentī suppeteret, cum proximīs cīvitatibus pācem et amīcitiam cōfirmāre. Ad eās rēs cōnficiendās biennium sibi satis esse dūxērunt; in tertium 5 annum profectiōnem lēge cōfirmant.

Ad eās rēs cōnficiendās Orgetorīx dēligitur. Is sibi lēgatiōnem ad cīvitatēs suscepit. In eō itinere persuādet Casticō, Catamantāloedis filiō, Sēquanō, cūjus pater rēgnum in Sēquanīs multōs annōs obtinuerat et ā senātū 10 populī Rōmānī amīcus appellātus erat, ut rēgnum in cīvitate suā occupāret, quod pater ante habuerat; itemque Dumnorīgī Haeduō, frātrī Divitiācī, quī eō tempore prīncipātum in cīvitate obtinēbat ac maximē plēbī acceptus erat, ut idem cōnārētur, persuādet, eīque filiam 15 suam in mātirimōnium dat. Perfacile factū esse illīs probat cōnāta perficere, proptereā quod ipse suae cīvitatīs imperium obtentūrus esset; nōn esse dubium, quīn tōtīus Galliae plūrimum Helvētiī possent; sē suīs cōpiīs suōque exercitū illīs rēgna conciliātūrum cōfirmat. 20 Hāc ōrātiōne adductī inter sē fidem et jūs jūrandum dant, et rēgnō occupātō per trēs potentissimōs ac firmissimōs populōs tōtīus Galliae imperiō sēsē potiri posse spērant.

Trial and death of Orgetorix.

4. Ea rēs est Helvētiīs per indicium ēnūtiāta. 25 Mōribus suīs Orgetorīgē ex vīculīs causam dīcere coēgērunt; damnātum poenam sequi oportēbat, ut ignī cremārētur. Diē cōstitutā causae dictionis Orgetorīx ad jūdicium omnem suam familiam, ad hominum mīlia decem, undique coēgit, et omnēs clientēs obaerātōsque suōs, 30 quōrum magnum numerum habēbat, eōdem condūxit; per eōs, nē causam dīceret, sē ēripuit. Cum cīvitās ob eam rem incitāta armīs jūs suum exsequī cōnārētur, multitudinemque hominum ex agrīs magistrātūs cōgerent, Orgetorīx mortuus est; neque abest suspīciō, ut Helvētiī 5 arbitrantur, quīn ipse sibi mortem cōnseiverit.

The Helvetii continue their preparations.

5. Post ejus mortem nihilō minus Helvētiī id, quod cōstituerant, facere cōnantur, ut ē finibus suis exeant. Ubi jam sē ad eam rem parātōs esse arbitrātī sunt, oppida sua omnia, numerō ad duodecim, vicōs ad quadringentōs, 10 reliqua prīvāta aedificia incendunt; frūmentum omne, praeter quod sēcum portātūrī erant, combūrun, ut domum reditiōnis spē sublātā parātiōrēs ad omnia perīcula subeunda essent; trium mēnsium molita cibāria sibi quemque domō efferre jubent. Persuādent Rauracīs et 15 Tulingīs et Latobrigīs finitimīs, utī eōdem ūsī cōnsiliō, oppidīs suis vicīsque exūstīs, ūnā cum eīs proficiscantur; Bōjōsque, quī trāns Rhēnum incoluerant et in agrum Nōricum trānsierant Nōrēiamque oppugnārant, receptōs ad sē sociōs sibi asciscunt.

They decide to go by way of the Roman Province.

20 6. Erant omnīnō itinera duo, quibus itineribus domō exīre possent: ūnum per Sēquanōs, angustum et difficile, inter montem Jūram et flūmen Rhodanum, vix quā singulī carrī dūcerentur; mōns autem altissimus impendebat, ut facile perpaucī prohibēre possent; alterum per 25 prōvinciam nostram, multō facilius atque expeditius, propterea quod inter finēs Helvētiōrum et Allobrogum, quī nūper pācātī erant, Rhodanus fluit, isque nōnnūllīs locīs vadō trānsītur. Extrēmum oppidum Allobrogum est proximumque Helvëtiôrum finibus Genava. Ex eô oppidô pōns ad Helvëtiôs pertinet. Allobrogibus sēsē vel persuāsūrōs, quod nōndum bonō animō in populum Rōmānum vidērentur, exīstimābant, vel vī coāctūrōs, ut per suōs finēs eōs ire paterentur. Omnibus rēbus ad pro- 5 fectiōnem comparātis diem dīcunt, quā diē ad rīpam Rhodanī omnēs conveniant. Is diēs erat a. d. V. Kal. Apr., L. Pīsōne, A. Gabīniō cōsulibus.

Caesar hurries to the scene of action. He parleys with the Helvetian chieftains.

7. Caesarī cum id nūtiātum esset, eōs per prōvinciam nostram iter facere cōnārī, mātūrat ab urbe proficīscī et, 10 quam maximīs potest itineribus, in Galliam ulteriōrem contendit et ad Genavam pervenit. Prōvinciae tōtī quam maximum potest mīlitum numerum imperat (erat omnīnō in Galliā ulteriōre legiō ūna); pontem, quī erat ad Genavam, jubet rescindī. Ubi dē ejus adventū Helvëtiī 15 certiōrēs factī sunt, lēgātōs ad eum mittunt, nōbilissimōs cīvītātis, cūjus lēgatiōnis Nammēius et Verucloetius prīncipem locum obtinēbant, quī dīcerent, sibi esse in animō sine ūllō maleficiō iter per prōvinciam facere, proptereā quod aliud iter habērent nūllum; rogāre, ut ejus volun- 20 tātē id sibi facere liceat. Caesar, quod memoriā tenēbat, L. Cassium cōsulem occīsum exercitumque ejus ab Helvëtiīs pulsum et sub jugum missum, concēdendum nōn putābat; neque hominēs inimicō animō, datā facultate per prōvinciam itineris faciundī, temperātūrōs ab injūriā 25 et maleficiō exīstimābat. Tamen, ut spatium intercēdere posset, dum mīlitēs, quōs imperāverat, convenīrent, lēgātis respondit, diem sē ad dēliberandū sūmptūrum; sī quid vellent, ad Idūs Aprilēs reverterentur.

In the interval he bars the passage to the Province.

8. Intereā eā legiōne, quā sēcum habēbat, militibusque, quī ex prōvinciā convēnerant, ā lacū Lemannō, quī in flūmen Rhodanum influit, ad montem Jūram, quī finēs Sēquanōrum ab Helvētiīs dividit, mīlia passuum
 5 XVIII mūrū in altitūdinem pedum sēdecim fossamque perdūcit. Eō opere perfectō praesidia dispōnit, castella commūnit, quō facilius, sī sē invītō trānsire cōnārentur, prohibēre possit.

Ubi ea diēs, quam cōstituerat cum lēgātīs, vēnit, et 10 lēgātī ad eum revertērunt, negat, sē mōre et exemplō populī Rōmānī posse iter ullī per prōvinciam dare; et, sī vim facere cōnentur, prohibitūrum ostendit. Helvētiī, eā spē dējectī, nāvibus jūctīs ratibusque complūribus factīs, aliī vadīs Rhodanī, quā minima altitūdō flūminis erat, 15 nōnnumquam interdiū, saepius noctū, sī perrumpere possent, cōnātī, operis mūnitiōne et militum concursū et tēlis repulsī hōc cōnātū dēstitērunt.

The Helvetii secure permission to go through the territory of the Sequani.

9. Relinquēbātur ūna per Sēquanōs via, quā Sēquanīs invītīs propter angustias ire nōn poterant. Hīs cum suā 20 sponte persuādere nōn possent, lēgātōs ad Dumnorīgem Haeduum mittunt, ut eō dēprecātōre ā Sēquanīs impetrārent. Dumnorīx grātiā et largitiōne apud Sēquanōs plūrimum poterat, et Helvētiīs erat amīcus, quod ex eā civitāte Orgetorīgis filiam in mātirimōnium dūxerat, et 25 cupiditāte rēgnī adductus novīs rēbus studēbat, et quam plūrimās civitatēs suō beneficiō habere obstrictās volēbat. Itaque rem suscipit, et ā Sēquanīs impetrat, ut per finēs suōs Helvētiōs ire patiantur, obsidēsque utī inter sēsē dent, perficit: Sēquanī, nē itinere Helvētiōs prohibeant; Helvētiī, ut sine maleficiō et injuriā trāseant.

Caesar resolves to prevent this. He enrolls fresh legions.

10. Caesarī renūtiātur, Helvētiīs esse in animō per agrum Sēquanōrum et Haeduōrum iter in Santonum finēs facere, quī nōn longē ā Tolōsātium finibus absunt, quae 5 cīvitās est in prōvinciā. Id sī fieret, intellegēbat magnō cum periculō prōvinciae futūrum, ut hominēs bellicōsōs, populī Rōmānī inimicōs, locīs patentibus maximēque frūmentāriīs finitimōs habēret. Ob eās causās eī mūnitiōnī, quam fēcerat, T. Labiēnum lēgātum praefēcit; ipse in 10 Italiam magnīs itineribus contendit duāsque ibi legiōnēs cōnscrībit, et trēs, quae circum Aquileiā hiemābant, ex hibernīs ēducit et, quā proximum iter in ulteriōrem Galliam per Alpēs erat, cum hīs quīnque legiōnibus ire contendit. Ibi Ceutronēs et Graiocelī et Caturigēs, locīs 15 superiōribus occupātīs, itinere exercitum prohibēre cōnantur. Complūribus hīs proeliīs pulsīs, ab Ocelō, quod est oppidum citeriōris prōvinciae extrēmum, in finēs Vocontiorū ulteriōris prōvinciae diē septimō pervenit; inde in Allobrogum finēs, ab Allobrogibus in Segusiāvōs exercitum dūcit. Hī sunt extrā prōvinciam trāns Rhodanum primī.

The Helvetii ravage the lands of the Gauls. Caesar surprises them and cuts one division to pieces.

11. Helvētiī jam per angustiās et finēs Sēquanōrum suās cōpiās trādūxerant, et in Haeduōrum finēs pervēnerant eōrumque agrōs populābantur. Haeduī cum sē sua- 25 que ab eīs dēfendere nōn possent, lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittunt rogātum auxilium: Ita sē omnī tempore dē populō

Rōmānō meritōs esse, ut, paene in cōnspectū exercitūs nostrī, agrī vāstārī, liberī eōrum in servitūtem abdūcī, oppida expugnārī nōn dēbuerint. Eōdem tempore, quō Haeduī, Ambarri, necessariī et cōsanguineī Haeduōrum, 5 Caesarem certiōrem faciunt, sēsē, dēpopulātīs agrīs, nōn facile ab oppidīs vim hostium prohibēre. Item Allobrogēs quī trāns Rhodanum vicōs possessiōnēsque habēbant, fugā sē ad Caesarem recipiunt, et dēmōstrant, sibi prae-ter agrī solum nihil esse reliquī. Quibus rēbus adductus
10 Caesar nōn exspectandum sibi statuit, dum, omnibus fortūnīs sociōrum cōsūmptīs, in Santonōs Helvētiī pervenīrent.

12. Flūmen est Arar, quod per finēs Haeduōrum et Sēquanōrum in Rhodanum influit, incrēdibili lēnitāte, ita 15 ut oculīs, in utram partem fluat, iūdicārī nōn possit. Id Helvētiī ratibus ac lintribus iūctīs trānsibant. Ubi per explorātōrēs Caesar certior factus est, trēs jam partēs cōpiārum Helvētiōs id flūmen trādūxisse, quārtam ferē partem citrā flūmen Ararim reliquam esse, dē tertiā vigiliā
20 cum legiōnibus tribus ē castrīs profectus ad eam partem pervēnit, quae nōndum flūmen trānsierat. Eōs impeditōs et inopīnantēs aggressus magnam partem eōrum concēdit; reliquī sēsē fugae mandārunt atque in proximās silvās abdidērunt. Is pāgus appellābātur Tigurīnus; nam omnis 25 cīvītās Helvētia in quattuor pāgōs dīvīsa est. Hīc pāgus ūnus, cum domō exisset patrum nostrōrum memoriā, L. Cassium cōsulem interfēcerat et ejus exercitum sub jugum mīserat. Ita sīve cāsū sīve cōnsiliō deōrum immortālium, quae pars cīvītātis Helvētiae insignem ca-30 lamitātem populō Rōmānō intulerat, ea princeps poenās persolvit. Quā in rē Caesar nōn solum publicās, sed etiam privātās injuriās ultus est, quod ejus socerī L.

Pisōnis avum, L. Pisōnem lēgātum, Tigurīnī eōdem proeliō, quō Cassium, interfēcerant.

Caesar bridges the Arar. The Helvetii send envoys, who proclaim their defiance.

13. Hōc proeliō factō, reliquās cōpiās Helvētiōrum ut cōnsequī posset, pontem in Ararī faciendum cūrat atque ita exercitum trādūcit. Helvētiī repentinō ejus adventū 5 commōtī, cum id, quod ipsī diēbus xx aegerrimē cōnfēcerant, ut flūmen trānsīrent, illum ūnō diē fēcisse intellegent, lēgātōs ad eum mittunt; cūjus lēgatiōnis Diviciō princeps fuit, quī bellō Cassiānō dux Helvētiōrum fuerat. Is ita cum Caesare ēgit: Sī pācem populus Rōmānus cum 10 Helvētiīs faceret, in eam partem itūrōs atque ibi futūrōs Helvētiōs, ubi eōs Caesar cōstituisset atque esse voluisset; sīn bellō persequī perseverāret, reminiscerētur et veteris incommodī populī Rōmānī et prīstinae virtūtis Helvētiōrum. Quod imprōvisō ūnum pāgum adortus 15 esset, cum eī, quī flūmen trānsissent, suis auxilium ferre nōn possent, nē ob eam rem aut suae magnopere virtūtī tribueret aut ipsōs dēspiceret; sē ita ā patribus majōribusque suis didicisse, ut magis virtūte contenderent, quam dolō aut insidiīs nīterentur. Quārē nē committeret, ut 20 is locus, ubi cōstitissent, ex calamitāte populī Rōmānī et interneciōne exercitūs nōmen caperet aut memoriam prōderet.

Caesar protests, but offers terms, which the Helvetii reject.

14. Hīs Caesar ita respondit: Eō sibi minus dubitātiōnis darī, quod eās rēs, quās lēgātī Helvētiī commemorās- 25 sent, memoriā tenēret, atque eō gravius ferre, quō minus meritō populī Rōmānī accidissent; quī sī alicūjus injūriæ

- sibi cōsciū fuisset, nōn fuisse difficile cavēre; sed eō dēceptum, quod neque commissum ā sē intellexeret, quārē timēret, neque sine causā timendum putāret. Quod sī veteris contumēliae oblīvīscī vellet, num etiam recen-
 5 tium injūriarū, quod eō invitō iter per prōvinciam per vim temptāssent, quod Haeduōs, quod Ambarrōs, quod Allobrogēs vexāssent, memoriā dēpōnere posse? Quod suā victoriā tam insolenter glōriārentur, quodque tam diū sē impūne injūriās tulisse admirārentur, eōdem pertinēre.
- 10 Cōsuēsse enim deōs immortālēs, quō gravius hominēs ex commūtātiōne rērum doleant, quōs prō scelere eōrum ulcīscī velint, hīs secundiōrēs interdum rēs et diūturniōrem impūnitātem concēdere. Cum ea ita sint, tamen, sī obsidēs ab eīs sibi dentur, utī ea, quae polliceantur, fac-15 tūrōs intellegat, et sī Haeduīs dē injūriis, quās ipsīs sociis et eōrum intulerint, item sī Allobrogibus satisfaciant, sēsē cum eīs pācem esse factūrū.

Dīvicō respondit: Ita Helvētiōs ā majōribus suis institūtōs esse, utī obsidēs accipere, nōn dare, cōsuērint; ejus 20 rei populum Rōmānum esse testem. Hōc respōnsō datō discessit.

Caesar follows the Helvetii.

15. Posterō diē castra ex eō locō movent. Idem facit Caesar equitātūque omnem, ad numerum quattuor mī-lium, quem ex omnī prōvinciā et Haeduīs atque eōrum
 25 sociis coāctum habēbat, praemittit, quī videant, quās in partēs hostēs iter faciant. Quī cupidius novissimum agmen insecūtī aliēnō locō cum equitātū Helvētiōrum proelium committunt, et paucī dē nostrīs cadunt. Quō proeliō sublātī Helvētiī, quod quīngentīs equitibus tantam 30 multitudinem equitum prōpulerant, audācius subsistere nōnnumquam et novissimō agmine proeliō nostrōs lacessere coep̄erunt. Caesar suōs ā proeliō continēbat, ac satis habēbat in praesentia hostem rapīnīs, pābulātiōnibus populātiōnibusque prohibēre. Ita diēs circiter quīndecim iter fēcērunt, utī inter novissimum hostium agmen et nostrum prīmum nōn amplius quīnīs aut sēnīs mīlibus passuum interesset.

The Haedui fail to furnish promised supplies. Liscus explains why.

16. Interim cotidiē Caesar Haeduōs frūmentum, quod essent publicē polliciti, flāgitāre. Nam propter frīgora, quod Gallia sub septentriōnibus, ut ante dictum est, posita est, nōn modo frūmenta in agrīs mātūra nōn erant, sed nē pābuli quidem satis magna cōpia suppetēbat; eō autem frūmentō, quod flūmine Ararī nāvibus subvexerat, propterea minus utī poterat, quod iter ab Ararī Helvētiī āverterant, ā quibus discēdere nōlēbat. Diem ex diē dūcere Haeduī; cōnferrī, comportārī, adesse dīcere.

Ubi sē diūtius dūcī intellēxit et diem instāre, quō diē frūmentum mīlitibus mētīrī oportēret, convocātis eōrum prīncipibus, quōrum magnam cōpiam in castrīs habēbat, in hīs Dīvitiācō et Liscō, quī summō magistrātūī praeerat, quem vergobretum appellant Haeduī, quī creātur annuus et vītae necisque in suōs habet potestātem, graviter eōs accūsāt, quod, cum neque emī neque ex agrīs sūmī posset, tam necessariō tempore, tam propinquīs hostibus, ab eis nōn sublevētur; praesertim cum magnā ex parte eōrum precibus adductus bellum suscep̄erit, multō etiam gravius, quod sit dēstitūtus, queritur.

17. Tum dēmum Liscus orātiōne Caesaris adductus, quod antea tacuerat, prōpōnit: Esse nōnnūllōs, quōrum auctōritās apud plēbem plūrimum valeat, quī prīvātīm plūs possint quam ipsī magistrātūs. Hōs sēditiōsā atque improbā ōrātiōne multitudinem dēterrēre, nē frūmentum cōferant, quod dēbeant: praestāre, sī jam principātum Galliae obtinēre nōn possint, Gallōrum quam Rōmānōrum

 5 imperia perferre; neque dubitāre dēbere, quīn, sī Helvētiōs superāverint Rōmānī, unā cum reliquā Galliā Haeduīs libertātem sint ēreptūrī. Ab eisdem nostra cōsilia, quaeque in castrīs gerantur, hostibus ēnūtiārī; hōs ā sē coercērī nōn posse. Quīn etiam, quod necessariō rem
 10 coactus Caesarī ēnūtiārīt, intellegere sēsē, quantō id cum periculō fēcerit, et ob eam causam, quam diū potuerit, tacuisse.

Dumnorix shown to be hostile to the Romans.

18. Caesar hāc ōrātiōne Liscī Dumnorīgem, Divitiāci frātre, dēsīgnārī sentiēbat; sed, quod plūribus praesentibus eās rēs jactārī nōlēbat, celeriter concilium dīmittit, Liscum retinet. Quaerit ex sōlō ea, quae in conventū dīxerat; dīcit liberius atque audācius. Eadem sēcrētō ab aliīs quaerīt, reperit esse vērā: Ipsum esse Dumnorīgem, summā audāciā, magnā apud plēbem propter liberā-
 20 litātem grātiā, cupidum rērum novārum. Complūrēs annōs portōria reliquaque omnia Haeduōrum vectīgālia parvō pretiō redēpta habēre, propterea quod illō licente contrā licērī audeat nēmō. His rēbus et suam rem familiārem auxisse et facultātēs ad largiendum magnās com-
 25 parāsse; magnum numerum equitātūs suō sūmptū semper alere et circum sē habēre, neque sōlum domī, sed etiam apud finitimās civitātēs largiter posse, atque hūjus potentiae causā mātrem in Biturīgibus hominī illīc nobilissimō ac potentissimō collocāsse; ipsum ex Helvētiīs uxōrem 30 habēre, sorōrem ex mātre et propinquās suās nūptum in aliās cīvitātēs collocāsse. Favēre et cupere Helvētiis propter eam affinitātem, ōdisse etiam suō nōmine Caesarem et Rōmānōs, quod eōrum adventū potentia ejus dēminūta et Divitiācus frāter in antīquum locum grātiaē atque honōris sit restitūtus. Sī quid accidat Rōmānīs, summam 5 in spem per Helvētiōs rēgnī obtinendī venīre; imperiō populī Rōmānī nōn modo dē rēgnō, sed etiam dē eā, quam habeat, grātiā dēspērāre.

Reperiēbat etiam in quaerendō Caesar, quod proelium equestre adversum paucīs ante diēbus esset factum, initium ejus fugae factum ā Dumnorīge atque ejus equitibus (nam equitātūī, quem auxiliō Caesarī Haeduī miserant, Dumnorīx praeerat), eōrum fugā reliquum esse equitātum perterritum.

Caesar proposes punishing Dumnorix.

19. Quibus rēbus cognitīs, cum ad hās suspiciōnēs certissimae rēs accēderent, quod per finēs Sēquanōrum Helvētiōs trādūxisset, quod obsidēs inter eōs dandōs cūrāsset, quod ea omnia nōn modo injussū suō et cīvitātis, sed etiam inscientibus ipsis fēcisset, quod ā magistrātū Hae- 20 duōrum accūsārētur, satis esse causae arbitrābātur, quārē in eum aut ipse animadverteret, aut cīvitātem animadvertere jubēret.

His omnibus rēbus ūnum repugnābat, quod Divitiāci frātris summum in populum Rōmānum studium, summam in sē voluntātem, ēgregiam fidem, jūstitiam, tem- 25 perantiam cognōverat; nam, nē ejus suppliciō Divitiāci animum offenderet, verēbātur. Itaque priusquam quicquam cōnārētur, Divitiācum ad sē vocārī jubet et, cotidianīs interpretibus remōtis, per C. Valerium Troucillum, prīncipem Galliae prōvinciae, familiārem suum, cui sum- 30 mam omnium rerum fidem habebat, cum eo colloquitur; simul commonefacit, quae ipso praesente in concilio Gallorum de Dumnorige sint dicta, et ostendit, quae separatim quisque de eo apud se dixerit. Petit atque hortatur, 5 ut sine ejus offensione animi vel ipse de eo causam cognitam statuatur, vel civitatem statuere jubeat.

At the solicitation of Divitiacus, Caesar pardons Dumnorix.

20. Divitiacus multis cum lacrimis Caesarem complexus obsecrare coepit, ne quid gravius in fratrem statueret:

10 Scire se, illa esse vera, nec quemquam ex eo plus quam se doloris capere, propterea quod, cum ipse gratiam plurimum domi atque in reliqua Gallia, ille minimum propter adulescentiam posset, per se crevisset; quibus opibus ac nervis non solum ad minuendam gratiam, sed paene
 15 ad perniciem suam uteretur. Sese tamen et amore fraterno et estimacione vulgi commoveri. Quod si quid ei a Caesare gravius accidisset, cum ipse eum locum amicitiae apud eum teneret, neminem estimaturum, non suam voluntate factum; quam ex re futurum, uti totius Galliae 20 animi a se averterentur.

Haec cum pluribus verbis flens a Caesare peteret, Caesar ejus dextram prendit; consolatus rogat, finem orandi faciat; tanti ejus apud se gratiam esse ostendit, uti et rei publicae injuriam et suum dolorem ejus voluntati ac precibus condonet. Dumnorigem ad se vocat, fratrem adhibet; quae in eo reprehendat, ostendit; quae ipse intellegat, quae civitas queratur, proponit; monet, ut in reliquum tempus omnes suspiciones vitet; praeterita se Divitiaco fratri condonare dicit. Dumnorigi custodes 30 ponit, ut, quae agat, quibuscum loquatur, scire possit.

Caesar plans a flank movement.

21. Eōdem diē ab explorātōribus certior factus, hostēs sub monte cōnsēdisse mīlia passuum ab ipsius castrīs octō, quālis esset nātūra montis et quālis in circuitū ascēsus, quī cognōscerent, mīsīt. Renūntiātum est, facilem esse. Dē tertiā vigiliā T. Labiēnum, lēgātum 5 prō prætōre, cum duābus legiōnibus et eīs ducibus, quī iter cognōverant, summum jugum montis ascendere jubet; quid suī cōsiliī sit, ostendit. Ipse dē quārtā vigiliā eōdem itinere, quō hostēs ierant, ad eōs contendit equitātumque omnem ante sē mittit. P. Cōnsidius, quī rei 10 militāris perītissimus habēbātur et in exercitū L. Sullae et postea in M. Crassī fuerat, cum explorātōribus prae-mittitur.

The plan fails in consequence of Considius's blunder.

22. Primā luce, cum summus mōns ā Labiēnō tenērē-tur, ipse ab hostium castrīs nōn longius mille et quīn- 15 gentis passibus abesset, neque, ut postea ex captivīs comperit, aut ipsius adventus aut Labiēnī cognitus esset, Cōnsidius equō admissō ad eum accurrit, dicit montem, quem ā Labiēnō occupārī voluerit, ab hostibus tenērī; id sē ā Gallicis armīs atque insignibus cognōvisse. Caesar 20 suās cōpiās in proximum collem subducit, aciem instruit. Labiēnus, ut erat eī praeceptum ā Caesare, nē proelium committeret, nisi ipsius cōpiae prope hostium castra vīsae essent, ut undique unō tempore in hostēs impetus fieret, monte occupātō nostrōs exspectābat proeliōque 25 abstinēbat. Multō dēnique diē per explorātōrēs Caesar cognōvit, et montem ā suis tenērī et Helvētiōs castra mōvisse et Cōnsidium timōre perterritum, quod nōn vidisset, prō vīsō sibi renūntiāsse. Eō diē, quō cōnsuērat intervallō, hostēs sequitur et mīlia passuum tria ab eōrum castris castra pōnit.

Caesar turns to Bibracte. The Helvetii follow.

23. Postrīdiē ejus diēi, quod omnīnō bīduum supererat, cum exercituī frūmentum mētīrī oportēret, et quod
5 ā Bibracte, oppidō Haeduōrum longē maximō et cōpiōssimō, nōn amplius milibus passuum xviii aberat, rei frumentāriae prōspiciendum exīstimāvit; iter ab Helvētiis āvertit ac Bibracte ire contendit. Ea rēs per fugitīvōs L. Aemilī, decuriōnis equitum Gallōrum, hostibus nūnti-
10 ātur. Helvētiī, seu quod timōre perterritōs Rōmānōs discēdere ā sē exīstimārent (eō magis quod prīdiē, superioribus locīs occupātis, proelium nōn commīsissent), sive eō, quod rē frumentāriā interelūdī posse cōnfīderent, commūtātō cōnsiliō atque itinere conversō nostrōs ā novissimō 15 agmine īnsequī ac lacessere coepērunt.

Crushing defeat of the Helvetii.

24. Postquam id animum advertit, cōpiās suās Caesar in proximum collem subdūcit equitātumque, quī sustinēret hostium impetum, mīsīt. Ipse interim in colle mediō triplicem aciem instrūxit legiōnum quattuor veterānā-
20 rum; sed in summō jugō duās legiōnēs quās in Galliā citeriōre proximē cōnscripserat et omnia auxilia collocārī ac tōtum montem hominibus complērī, et intereā sarcinās in ūnum locum cōferri et eum ab hīs quī in superioriē aciē cōstitērant, mūnīrī jussit. Helvētiī cum omnibus 25 suis carrīs secūtī impedīmenta in ūnum locum contulērunt; ipsī, cōnfertissimā aciē rejectō nostrō equitātū, phalange factā sub prīmam nostram aciem successērunt.

remōtīs equīs, ut aequātō omnium periculō spem fugae tolleret, cohortātus suōs proelium commisit. Militēs ē locō superiōre pīlis missīs facile hostium phalangem perfrēgerunt. Eā disjectā, gladiīs dēstrictīs in eōs impetum fēcērunt. Gallīs magnō ad pugnam erat impedimentō, 5 quod, plūribus eōrum scūtīs ūnō ictū pīlōrum trānsfixīs et colligātīs, cum ferrum sē inflexisset, neque ēvellere neque sinistrā impedītā satis commodē pugnāre poterant, multī ut diū jactātō bracciō praeoptārent scūtum manū ēmittere et nūdō corpore pugnāre. 10

Tandem vulneribus dēfessī et pedem referre et, quod mōns suberat circiter mille passuum eō sē recipere coepērunt. Captō monte et succēdentibus nostrīs, Bōjī et Tulingī, quī hominum mīlibus circiter xv agmen hostium claudēbant et novissimīs praesidiō erant, ex itinere nos- 15 trōs ab latere apertō aggressī circumvenīre, et id cōnspicātī Helvētiī, quī in montem sēsē recēperant, rūsus instāre et proelium redintegrāre coepērunt. Rōmānī conversa signa bipertītō intulērunt, prīma et secunda aciēs, ut victīs ac summōtīs resisteret, tertiā, ut venientēs 20 sustinēret.

26. Ita ancipitī proeliō diū atque ācriter pugnātum est. Diūtius cum sustinēre nostrōrum impetūs nōn pos- sent, alterī sē, ut coeperant, in montem recēpērunt, alterī ad impedimenta et carrōs suōs sē contulērunt. Nam hōc 25 tōtō proeliō, cum ab hōrā septimā ad vesp̄erum pugnātum sit, āversum hostem vidēre nēmō potuit. Ad multam noctem, etiam ad impedimenta pugnātum est, propterea quod prō vāllō carrōs objēcerant et ē locō superiōre in nostrōs venientēs tēla coniciēbant, et nōnnūllī inter carrōs 30 raedāsque matarās ac trāgulās subiciēbant nostrōsque vulnerābant. Diū cum esset pugnātum, impedimentīs castrisque nostrī potitī sunt. Ibi Orgetorigis filia atque unus ē filiis captus est.

Ex eō proeliō circiter hominum milia cxxx superfu-erunt eāque tōtā nocte continenter ierunt; nullam partem 5 noctis itinere intermissō, in finēs Lingonum diē quārtō pervēnerunt, cum et propter vulnera militum et propter sepulturam occisorum nostrī trīduum morātī eōs sequī nōn potuissent. Caesar ad Lingonas litterās nūtiōsque mīsīt, nē eōs frūmentō neve aliā rē iuvārent; quī sī 10 iūvissent, sē eodem locō, quō Helvētiōs, habitūrum. Ipse trīduō intermissō cum omnibus cōpiis eōs sequī coepit.

The Helvetii and their allies surrender.

27. Helvētiī omnium rērum inopiā adductī lēgātōs dē deditiōne ad eum mīsērunt. Quī cum eum in itinere convēnissent sēque ad pedēs prōjēcissent suppliciterque 15 locūtī flentēs pācem petissent, atque eōs in eō locō, quō tum essent, suum adventum exspectāre jussisset, pāru-erunt. Eō postquam Caesar pervēnit, obsidēs, arma, servōs, quī ad eōs perfūgissent, poposcit. Dum ea conquīruntur et cōferuntur, nocte intermissā, circiter homi-20 num milia vi ejus pāgī, quī Verbigenus appellātur, sive timōre perterritī, nē armīs trāditīs suppliciō afficerentur, sive spē salutis inductī, quod in tantā multitudīne dediticiōrum suam fugam aut occultārī aut omnīnō ignōrārī posse existimārent, primā nocte ē castrīs Hel-25 vētiōrum ēgressī ad Rhēnum finēsque Germānōrum contendērunt.

Caesar orders them to return to their homes.

28. Quod ubi Caesar rescīit, quōrum per finēs ierant, hīs, utī conquīrerent et redūcerent, sī sibi pūrgātī esse vellent, imperāvit; reductōs in hostium numerō habuit; reliquōs omnēs, obsidibus, armīs, perfugīs trāditīs, in dēditionem accēpit. Helvētiōs, Tulingōs, Latobrigōs in finēs suōs, unde erant profectī, revertī jussit; et, quod omnibus frūgibus āmissīs domī nihil erat, quō famem 5 tolerārent, Allōbrogibus imperāvit, ut eīs frūmentī cōpiam facerent; ipsōs oppida vicōsque, quōs incenderant, restituere jussit.

Id eā maximē ratiōne fēcit, quod nōluit eum locum, unde Helvētiī discesserant, vacāre, nē propter bonitatem 10 agrōrum Germānī, quī trāns Rhēnum incolunt, ē suis finibus in Helvētiōrum finēs trānsirent et finitimī Galliae prōvinciae Allobrogibusque essent. Bōjōs, petentibus Haeduīs, quod ēgregiā virtūte erant cognitī, ut in finibus suis collocārent, concessit; quibus illī agrōs dedērunt, 15 quōsque postea in parem jūris libertātisque condiōnem, atque ipsī erant, recēpērunt.

The number of the Helvetii and their allies.

29. In castrīs Helvētiōrum tabulae repertae sunt litterīs Graecīs cōfectae et ad Caesarem relātae, quibus in tabulīs nōminātīm ratiō cōfecta erat, quī numerus domō 20 exisset eōrum quī arma ferre possent, et item sēparātīm puerī, senēs mulierēsque. Quārum omnium rerū summa erat capitum Helvētiōrum mīlia cclxiii, Tulingōrum mīlia xxxvi, Latobrigōrum xiiii, Rauracōrum xxiii, Bōjōrum xxxii; ex hīs, quī arma ferre possent, ad mīlia 25 nōnāgintā duo. Summa omnium fuērunt ad mīlia ccclxviii. Eōrum, quī domum rediērunt, cēnsū habitō, ut Caesar imperāverat, repertus est numerus mīlium c et x.

CHAPTERS 30–54.—THE WAR WITH ARIOVISTUS.

The Gallic chiefs request a conference with Caesar.

30. Bellō Helvētiōrum cōfectō tōtius ferē Galliae lēgātī, principēs cīvitatū, ad Caesarem grātulātum con-vērunt: Intellegere sēsē, tametsī prō veteribus Helvētiōrum injūriis populī Rōmānī ab hīs poenās bellō
5 repetisset, tamen eam rem nōn minus ex ūsū terrae Galliae quam populī Rōmānī accidisse, proptereā quod eō cōnsiliō flōrentissimis rēbus domōs suās Helvētiī reliquissent, utī tōtī Galliae bellum īferrent imperiōque potīrentur locumque domiciliō ex magnā cōpiā dēligerent, 10 quem ex omnī Galliā opportūnissimum ac fructuōsissimum jūdicāssent, reliquāsque cīvitatēs stipendiāriās habērent.

Petiērunt, utī sibi concilium tōtius Galliae in diem certam indicere idque Caesaris voluntāte facere liceret; 15 sēsē habēre quāsdam rēs, quās ex commūnī cōnsensū ab eō petere vellent. Eā rē permissā diem conciliō cōstitu-ērunt et jūre jūrando, nē quis ēnūntiāret, nisi quibus commūnī cōnsiliō mandātum esset, inter sē sānxērunt.

The conference. The Gauls complain of Ariovistus's tyranny and beg for Caesar's help.

31. Eō conciliō dīmissō idem principēs cīvitatū, quī 20 ante fuerant, ad Caesarem revertērunt petiēruntque, ut sibi sēcretō dē suā omniumque salūte cum eō agere licēret. Eā rē impetrātā sēsē omnēs flentēs Caesarī ad pedēs prōjēcērunt: Nōn minus sē id contendere et labōrāre, nē ea, quae dīxissent, ēnūntiārentur, quam utī ea, quae vellent, 25 impetrārent, proptereā quod, sī ēnūntiātum esset, summum in cruciātum sē ventūrōs vidērent.

Locūtus est prō hīs Dīvitīacus Haeduus : Galliae tōtīus factiōnēs esse duās ; hārum alterius prīncipātum tenēre Haeduōs, alterius Arvernōs. Hī cum tantopere dē potentātū inter sē multōs annōs contenderent, factum esse, utī ab Arvernīs Sēquanīsque Germānī mercēde arcesse- 5 rentur. Hōrum prīmō circiter mīlia xv Rhēnum trānsisse ; posteaquam agrōs et cultum et cōpiās Gallōrum hominēs ferī ac barbarī adamāssent, trāductōs plūrēs ; nunc esse in Galliā ad centum et xx mīlium numerum. Cum hīs Haeduōs eōrumque clientēs semel atque iterum armīs 10 contendisse ; magnam calamitātem pulsōs accēpisse, omnem nōbilitātem, omnem senātum, omnem equitātum amīsisse.
Quibus proeliis calamitātibusque frāctōs, quī et suā virtūte et populī Rōmānī hospitīō atque amīcitīā plūri-mum ante in Galliā potuissent, coāctōs esse Sēquanīs 15 obsidēs dare nōbilissimōs cīvitātis et jūre jūrāndō cīvitātem obstringere, sēsē neque obsidēs repetitūrōs neque auxilium
ā. populō Rōmānō implōrātūrōs, neque recūsātūrōs, quō minus perpetuō sub illōrum diciōne atque imperiō essent.
Ūnum sē esse ex omni cīvitāte Haeduōrum, quī addūcī 20 nōn potuerit, ut jūrāret aut liberōs suōs obsidēs daret. Ob eam rem sē ex cīvitāte profūgissee et Rōmam ad senātum vēnisse auxilium postulātum, quod sōlus neque jūre jūrāndō neque obsidibus tenērētur.

Sed pejus victōribus Sēquanīs quam Haeduīs victīs acci- 25 disse, proptereā quod Ariovistus, rēx Germānōrum, in eōrum finibus cōnsēdisset tertiamque partem agrī Sēquanī, quī esset optimus tōtīus Galliae, occupāvisset, et nunc dē alterā parte tertiā Sēquanōs dēcēdere jubēret, proptereā quod paucīs mēnsibus ante Harūdum mīlia hominum 30 xxiiii ad eum vēnissent, quibus locus ac sēdēs parārentur.
Futūrum esse paucīs annīs, utī omnēs ex Galliae finibus pellerentur atque omnēs Germānī Rhēnum trānsīrent; neque enim cōferendum esse Gallicum cum Germānōrum agrō, neque hanc cōnsuētūdinem victūs cum illā comparādam.

- 5 Ariovistum autem, ut semel Gallōrum cōpiās proeliō vicerit, quod proelium factum sit Admagetobrigae, superbē et crudēliter imperāre, obsidēs nōbilissimī cūjusque liberos poscere et in eōs omnia exempla cruciātūsque ēdere, sī qua rēs nōn ad nūtum aut ad volūtātem ejus facta sit.
- 10 Hominem esse barbarum, irācundum, temerārium; nōn posse ejus imperia diūtius sustinēre. Nisi quid in Caesare populōque Rōmānō sit auxiliī, omnibus Gallīs idem esse faciendum, quod Helvētiī fēcērīnt, ut domō ēmigrent, aliud domicilium, aliās sēdēs, rēmōtās ā Germānīs, petant
- 15 fortūnamque, quaecumque accidat, experiantur. Haec sī ēnūntiāta Ariovistō sint, nōn dubitāre, quā dē omnibus obsidibus, quī apud eum sint, gravissimum supplicium sūmat. Caesarem vel auctōritāte suā atque exercitūs vel recentī victōriā vel nōmine populī Rōmānī dēterrere
- 20 posse, nē major multitūdō Germānōrū Rhēnum trādūcātur, Galliamque omnem ab Ariovistī injūriā posse dēfendere.

Plight of the Sequani.

32. Hāc orātiōne ab Divitiācō habitā, omnēs, qui aderant, magnō flētū auxilium ā Caesare petere coepērunt.
- 25 Animadvertit Caesar, ūnōs ex omnibus Sēquanōs nihil eārum rērum facere, quās cēteri facerent, sed tristēs capite dēmissō terram intuērī. Ejus rei quae causa esset, mīrātus ex ipsīs quaesiit. Nihil Sēquanī respondēre, sed in eādē tristitiā tacitī permanēre. Cum ab hīs saepius quaereret
- 30 neque ūllam omnīnō vōcem exprimere posset, idem Divitiācus Haeduus respondit: Hōc esse miserīorem et graviōrem fortunam Sēquanōrum quam reliquōrum, quod sōlī nē in occultō quidem querī neque auxilium implōrāre audērent absentisque Ariovistī crūdēlītatem, velut sī cōram adesset, horrērent, proptereā quod reliquīs tamen fugae facultās darētur, Sēquanīs vērō, quī intrā finēs suōs 5 Ariovistum recēpissent, quōrum oppida omnia in potestāte ejus essent, omnēs cruciātūs essent perferendī.

Caesar decides that Ariovistus's present power is dangerous.

33. Hīs rēbus cognitīs Caesar Gallōrum animōs verbīs cōnfirmāvit pollicitusque est, sibi eam rem cūrae futūram; magnam sē habēre spem, et beneficiō suō et auctōritāte 10 adductum Ariovistum finem injūriīs factūrum. Hāc ōrātiōne habitā concilium dīmīsīt. Et secundum ea multae rēs eum hortābantur, quārē sibi eam rem cōgitandam et suscipiendam putāret, in prīmīs, quod Haeduōs, frātrēs cōnsanguineōsque saepenumerō ā senātū appellātōs, in 15 servitūte atque in diciōne vidēbat Germānōrum tenērī, eōrumque obsidēs esse apud Ariovistum ac Sēquanōs intellegēbat; quod in tantō imperiō populī Rōmānī tur-pissimum sibi et reī publicae esse arbitrābātur. Paulātim autem Germānōs cōnsuēscere Rhēnum trānsīre, et 20 in Galliam magnam eōrum multitudinem venīre, populō Rōmānō periculōsum vidēbat; neque sibi hominēs ferōs ac barbarōs temperātūrōs exīstimābat, quīn, cum omnem Galliam occupāvissent, ut ante Cimbrī Teutonīque fēcis-sent, in prōvinciam exīrent atque inde in Italiam con- 25 tenderent, praesertīm cum Sēquanōs ā prōvinciā nostrā Rhodanus divideret; quibus rēbus quam mātūrrimē oc-currendum putābat. Ipse autem Ariovistus tantōs sibi spīritūs, tantam arrogantiam sūmpserat, ut ferendus nōn vidērētur.

Ariovistus rejects Caesar's request for a conference.

34. Quam ob rem placuit eī, ut ad Ariovistum lēgātōs mitteret, quī ab eō postulārent, utī aliquem locum medium utriusque colloquiō dēligeret; velle sēsē dē rē publicā et summīs utriusque rēbus cum eō agere. Eī lēgātiōnī
 5 Ariovistus respondit: Sī quid ipsī ā Caesare opus esset, sēsē ad eum ventūrum fuisse; sī quid ille sē velit, illum ad sē venīre oportēre. Praetereā sē neque sine exercitū in eas partēs Galliae venīre audēre, quās Caesar possidēret, neque exercitum sine magnō commeātū atque mōlī-
 10 mentō in ūnum locum contrahere posse. Sibi autem mīrum vidērī, quid in suā Galliā, quam bellō vicisset, aut Caesarī aut omnīnō populō Rōmānō negōtī esset.

Caesar's demands.

35. Hīs respōnsīs ad Caesarem relātīs, iterum ad eum Caesar lēgātōs cum hīs mandātīs mittit: Quoniam tantō
 15 suō populūque Rōmānī beneficiō affectus (cum in cōsulātū suō rēx atque amīcus ā senātū appellātus esset) hanc sibi populōque Rōmānō grātiā referret, ut in colloquium venīre invitātus gravārētur neque dē commūnī rē dicendum sibi et cognōscendum putāret, haec esse, 20 quae ab eō postulāret: prīmum, nē quam multitudinem hominum amplius trāns Rhēnum in Galliam trādūceret; deinde, obsidēs, quōs habēret ab Haeduīs, redderet, Sēquanīsque permitteret, ut, quōs illī habērent, voluntāte ejus reddere illīs liceret; nēve Haeduōs injūriā lacesseret, 25 nēve hīs sociīsque eōrum bellum inferret.

Sī id ita fēcisset, sibi populōque Rōmānō perpetuam grātiā atque amīcitiam cum eō futūram; sī nōn impetrāret, sēsē, quoniam M. Messālā, M. Pisōne cōsulibus senātus cēnsuisset, utī, quicumque Galliam prōvinciam obtinēret, quod commodō rei pūblīcae facere posset, Haeduōs cēterōsque amīcōs populi Rōmānī dēfenderet, sē Haeduōrum injūriās nōn neglēcūrūm.

Ariovistus condemns Caesar's interference, and defies his power.

36. Ad haec Ariovistus respondit: Jūs esse bellī, ut, quī vīcissent, eīs, quōs vīcissent, quem ad modum vellent, 5 imperārent; item populum Rōmānum victīs nōn ad alterius praescriptum, sed ad suum arbitrium imperāre cōnsuēsse. Sī ipse populō Rōmānō nōn praescriberet, quem ad modum suō jūre ūterētur, nōn oportēre sē ā populō Rōmānō in suō jūre impedīrī. 10

Haeduōs sibi, quoniam bellī fortūnam temptāssent et armīs congressī ac superātī essent, stīpendiārīos esse factōs. Magnam Caesarem injūriam facere, quī suō adventū vectīgālia sibi dēteriōra faceret. Haeduīs sē obsidēs redditūrūm nōn esse, neque hīs neque eōrum 15 sociīs injūriā bellum illātūrūm, sī in eō manērent, quod convēnisset, stīpendiumque quotannīs penderent; sī id nōn fēcissent, longē eīs frāternum nōmen populi Rōmānī āfutūrūm. Quod sibi Caesar dēnūntiāret, sē Haeduōrum injūriās nōn neglēcūrūm, nēmīnem sēcum sine suā per- 20 niciē contendisse. Cum vellet, congredērētur; intellēcūrūm, quid invictī Germānī, exercitātissimī in armīs, quī inter annōs XIII tēctum nōn subīssent, virtūte possent.

Fresh complaints of German aggression.

37. Haec eōdem tempore Caesarī mandāta referē- 25 bantur, et lēgātī ab Haeduīs et ā Trēverīs veniēbant: Haeduī questum, quod Harūdēs, quī nūper in Galliam transportātī essent, finēs eōrum populārentur; sēsē nē obsidibus quidem datīs pācem Ariovistī redimere potuisse;

Trēverī autem, pāgōs centum Suēbōrum ad rīpās Rhēnī cōnsēdisse, quī Rhēnum trānsīre cōnārentur; hīs praeesse Nasuam et Cimberium frātrēs. Quibus rēbus Caesar vehementer commōtus mātūrandum sibi existimāvit, nē, 5 sī nova manus Suēbōrum cum veteribus cōpiīs Ariovistī sēsē conjūnxisset, minus facile resistī posset. Itaque rē frūmentāriā, quam celerrimē potuit, comparātā, magnīs itineribus ad Ariovistum contendit.

Importance of Vesontio as a military base. Its situation.

38. Cum trīduī viam prōcessisset, nūntiātum est eī,
 10 Ariovistum cum suīs omnibus cōpiīs ad occupandum Vesontionem, quod est oppidum maximum Sēquanōrum, contendere, trīduīque viam ā suīs finibus prōcessisse. Id nē accideret, magnopere sibi praecavendum Caesar existimābat. Namque omnium rērum, quae ad bellum ūsuī 15 erant, summa erat in eō oppidō facultās, idque nātūrā locī sīc mūniēbātur, ut magnam ad dūcendum bellum daret facultātem, proptereā quod flūmen Dubis ut circinō circumductum paene tōtum oppidum cingit; reliquum spatium, quod est nōn amplius pedum mīlle sexcentōrum, 20 quā flūmen intermittit, mōns continet magnā altitūdine, ita, ut rādīcēs montis ex utrāque parte rīpae flūminis contingant. Hunc mūrus circumdatus arcem efficit et cum oppidō conjungit. Hūc Caesar magnīs nocturnīs diurnisque itineribus contendit occupātōque oppidō ibi praesidium collocat.

Panic seizes the Roman army.

39. Dum paucōs diēs ad Vesontionem rei frūmentāriae commeātūsque causā morātur, ex percontātiōne nostrōrum vōcibusque Gallōrum ac mercātōrum, quī ingentī magnitudine corporum Germānōs, incrēdibilī virtūte atque ex-ercitātiōne in armīs esse praedicābant (saepenumerō sēsē cum hīs congressōs nē vultum quidem atque aciem oculōrum dicēbant ferre potuisse), tantus subitō timor omnem exercitum occupāvit, ut nōn mediocriter omnium mentēs animōsque perturbāret. Hic primum ortus est ā tribūnīs militum, praefectīs reliquīsque, quī ex urbe amicitiae causā Caesarem secūtī nōn magnum in rē militārī ūsum habēbant; quōrum alius aliā causā illātā, quam sibi ad proficiēscendum necessariam esse dīceret, petēbat, ut ejus voluntāte discēdere liceret; nōnnūllī pudōre adductī, ut timōris suspiciōnem vitārent, remanēbant. Hī neque vultum fingere neque interdum lacrimās tenēre poterant; abditī in tabernāculīs aut suum fātum querēbantur aut cum familiāribus suis commūne perīculum miserābantur. Vulgō tōtīs castrīs testāmenta obsignābantur. Hōrum vōcibus ac timōre paulātim etiam eī, quī magnum in castrīs ūsum habēbant, militēs centuriōnēsque, quīque equitātūī praeerant, perturbābantur. Quī sē ex hīs minus timidōs exīstimārī volēbant, nōn sē hostem verērī, sed angustias itineris et magnitudinem silvārum, quae intercederent inter ipsōs atque Ariovistum, aut rem frūmentariam, ut satis commodē supportārī posset, timēre dicēbant. Nōnnūllī etiam Caesarī nūntiābant, cum castra movērī ac signa ferri jussisset, nōn fore dictō audientēs militēs neque propter timōrem signa lātūrōs.

Caesar rebukes the timidity of his troops. Their courage is restored.

40. Haec cum animadvertisset, convocātō cōnsiliō omniumque ōrdinum ad id cōnsilium adhibitīs centuriōnibus, vehementer eōs incūsāvit: primum, quod, aut quam in partem aut quō cōnsiliō dūcerentur, sibi quaerendum

- aut cōgitandum putārent. Ariovistum sē cōsule cupidissimē populī Rōmānī amīcitiam appetisse; cūr hunc tam temerē quisquam ab officiō discessūrum iudicāret?
Sibi quidem persuādērī, cognitīs suīs postulātīs atque
5 aequitāte condiciōnum perspectā, eum neque suam neque populī Rōmānī grātiā repudiātūrum. Quod sī furōre atque āmentīā impulsus bellum intulisset, quid tandem verērentur? aut cūr dē suā virtūte aut dē ipsius diligen-tiā dēspērārent? Factum ejus hostis perīculum patrum
10 nostrōrum memoriā, cum Cimbrīs et Teutonīs ā Gāiō Mariō pulsīs nōn minōrem laudem exercitus quam ipse imperātor meritis vidēbātur; factum etiam nūper in Italiā servīlī tumultū, quōs tamen aliquid ūsus ac disciplīna, quae ā nobīs accēpissent, sublevārent. Ex quō 15 iudicārī posse, quantum habēret in sē bonī cōstantia, proptereā quod, quōs aliquamdiū inermēs sine causā timuissent, hōs postea armātōs ac victōrēs superāssent.
- Dēnique hōs esse eōsdem Germānōs, quibuscum saepenumerō Helvētiī congressī nōn solum in suīs, sed etiam 20 in illōrum finibus, plērumque superāssent, quī tamen parēs esse nostrō exercitūi nōn potuerint. Sī quōs adversum proelium et fuga Gallōrum commovēret, hōs, sī quaererent, reperīre posse, diūturnitāte bellī dēfatīgātīs Gallīs, Ariovistum, cum multōs mēnsēs castrīs sē ac palūdibus 25 tenuisset neque suī potestātem fēcisset, dēspērāntēs jam dē pugnā et dispersōs subitō adortum, magis ratiōne et cōnsiliō quam virtūte vīcissee. Cui ratiōnī contrā hominēs barbarōs atque imperītōs locus fuisset, hāc nē ipsum qui-dem spērāre nostrōs exercitūs capī posse.
- 30 Quī suum timōrem in rei frūmentāriae simulatiōnem angustiāsque itineris cōferrent, facere arroganter, cum aut dē officiō imperātōris dēspērāre aut praescribere vidē-rentur. Haec sibi esse cūrae; frūmentum Sēquanōs, Leucōs, Lingonēs sumministrāre, jamque esse in agrīs frūmenta mātūra; dē itinere ipsōs brevī tempore jūdicātūrōs.

Quod nōn fore dictō audientēs neque signa lātūrī dicantur, nihil sē eā rē commovērī; scīre enim, quibuscumque exercitus dictō audiēns nōn fuerit, aut male rē gestā fortūnam dēfuisse, aut aliquō facinore compertō avāritiam esse convictam; suam innocentiam perpetuā vitā, fēlicitatē Helvētiōrum bellō esse perspectam. 5 10

Itaque sē, quod in longiōrem diem collātūrus fuisset, repraesentātūrū et proximā nocte dē quārtā vigiliā castra mōtūrū, ut quam primum intellegere posset, utrum apud eōs pudor atque officium an timor plūs valeret. Quod sī praetereā nēmō sequatur, tamen sē 15 cum solā decimā legiōne itūrū, dē quā nōn dubitāret, sibique eam praetōriam cohortem futūrā. Huic legiōnī Caesar et indulserat praecipuē et propter virtutem cōfidebat maximē.

41. Hāc orātiōne habitā mīrum in modum conversae 20 sunt omnium mentēs, summaque alacritās et cupiditās bellī gerendī innāta est, prīncepsque decima legiō per tribūnōs militum eī grātiās ēgit, quod dē sē optimum jūdicium fēcisset, sēque esse ad bellum gerendum paratissimam cōfirmāvit. Deinde reliquae legiōnēs cum 25 tribūnīs militum et prīmōrum ordinum centuriōnibus ēgērunt, utī Caesarī satis facerent; sē neque umquam dubitāsse neque timuisse, neque dē summā bellī suum jūdicium, sed imperātōris esse exīstimāvisse. Eōrum satisfactiōne acceptā et itinere exquisitō per Divitiācum, 30 quod ex Gallīs eī maximam fidem habēbat, ut mīlium amplius quīnquāgintā circuitū locīs apertīs exercitum dūceret, dē quārtā vigiliā, ut dīxerat, profectus est. Septimō diē, cum iter nōn intermitteret, ab explōrātōribus certior factus est, Ariovistī cōpiās ā nostrīs milibus passuum quattuor et xx abesse.

Ariovistus at length proposes a conference.

5 42. Cognitō Caesaris adventū Ariovistus lēgātōs ad eum mittit: Quod antea dē colloquiō postulāasset, id per sē fieri licēre, quoniam propius accessisset sēque id sine periculō facere posse existimāret. Nōn respuit conditionem Caesar, jamque eum ad sānitātem revertī arbitrābātur, cum id, quod antea petentī dēnegāasset, ultrō pollicērētur, magnamque in spem veniēbat, prō suis tantīs populique Rōmānī in eum beneficiīs, cognitīs suis postulātīs, fore, utī pertināciā dēsisteret.

Diēs colloquiō dictus est, ex eō diē quīntus. Interim 15 saepe cum lēgātī ultrō citrōque inter eōs mitterentur, Ariovistus postulāvit, nē quem peditem ad colloquium Caesar addūceret: Verērī sē, nē per insidiās ab eō circumvenīrētur; uterque cum equitātū venīret; aliā ratione sēsē nōn esse ventūrum. Caesar, quod neque
20 colloquium interpositā causā tolli volēbat neque salutem suam Gallōrum equitātū committere audēbat, commodissimum esse statuit, omnibus equīs Gallīs equitibus detrāctīs, eō legiōnāriōs militēs legiōnis decimae, cui quam maximē cōfidēbat, impōnere, ut praesidium quam
25 amīcissimum, sī quid opus factō esset, habēret. Quod cum fieret, nōn irrīdiculē quīdam ex militibus decimae legiōnis dīxit: Plūs, quā pollicitus esset, Caesarem facere; pollicitum, sē in cohortis praetōriae locō decimam legiōnem habitūrum, ad equum rescribere.

Caesar insists that Ariovistus shall cease his oppression of the Haedui.

43. Plānitīēs erat magna et in eā tumulus terrēnus satis grandis. Hīc locus aequō ferē spatiō ā castrīs utriusque aberat. Eō, ut erat dictum, ad colloquium vērunt. Legiōnem Caesar, quam equīs dēvexerat, passibus ducentīs ab eō tumulō cōstituit. Item equitēs 5 Ariovistī parī intervāllō cōstitērunt. Ariovistus, ex equīs ut colloquerentur et praeter sē dēnōs ut ad colloquium addūcerent, postulāvit.

Ubi eō ventum est, Caesar initiō orātiōnis sua senātūs-que in eum beneficia commemorāvit, quod rēx appellātus 10 esset ā senātū, quod amīcus, quod mūnera amplissimē missa; quam rem et paucīs contigisse et ā Rōmānīs prō magnīs hominum officiīs cōsuēsse tribuī docēbat; illum, cum neque aditum neque causam postulandī jūstam habēret, beneficiō ac liberālitate suā ac senātūs ea prae- 15 mia cōsecūtum. Docēbat etiam, quam veterēs quamque jūstae causae necessitudinis ipsīs cum Haeduīs intercēderent, quae senātūs cōsulta, quotiēns, quamque honōrifica in eōs facta essent, ut omnī tempore tōtīus Galliae prīncipātum Haeduī tenuissent, prius etiam quam nos 20 tram amīcitiam appetīssent. Populī Rōmānī hanc esse cōsuētūdinem, ut sociōs atque amīcōs nōn modo suī nihil dēperdere, sed grātiā, dignitāte, honōre auctiōrēs vellet esse; quod vērō ad amīcitiam populī Rōmānī attulissent, id eīs ēripī quis patī posset? Postulāvit 25 deinde eadem, quae lēgātīs in mandātīs dederat: nē aut Haeduīs aut eōrum sociīs bellum īferret; obsidēs redderet; sī nūllam partem Germānōrum domum remittere posset, at nē quōs amplius Rhēnum trānsīre paterētur.

Ariovistus claims prior rights in Gaul. He demands that Caesar withdraw.

44. Ariovistus ad postulāta Caesaris pauca respondit, dē suis virtūtibus multa praedicāvit: Trānsisse Rhēnum sēsē nōn suā sponte, sed rogātum et arcessitum ā Gallis; nōn sine magnā spē magnisque praemiis domum pro-
- 5 pinquosque reliquisse; sēdēs habēre in Galliā ab ipsīs concessās, obsidēs ipsōrum voluntāte datōs; stīpendium capere jūre bellī, quod victōrēs victīs impōnere cōnsuerint. Nōn sēsē Gallis, sed Gallōs sibi bellum intulisse; omnēs Galliae civitatēs ad sē oppugnandum vēnisse ac
- 10 contrā sē castra habuisse; eas omnēs cōpiās ā sē tūnō proeliō pulsās ac superātās esse. Sī iterum experiri velint, sē iterum parātum esse dēcertāre; sī pāce ūti velint, inīquum esse dē stīpendiō recūsāre, quod suā voluntāte ad id tempus pependerit. Amīcitiam populī
- 15 Rōmānī sibi ōrnamētō et praesidiō, nōn dētrimentō esse oportēre, atque sē hāc spē petisse. Sī per populum Rōmānum stīpendium remittātur et dēditiciū subtrahantur, nōn minus libenter sēsē recūsātūrum populī Rōmānī amīcitiam quam appetierit.
- 20 Quod multitudinem Germānōrum in Galliam trādūcat, id sē suī mūniendī, nōn Galliae impugnandae causā facere; ejus rei testimōnium esse, quod nisi rogātus nōn vēnerit, et quod bellum nōn intulerit, sed dēfenderit. Sē prius in Galliam vēnisse quam populum Rōmānum.
- 25 Numquam ante hōc tempus exercitum populī Rōmānī Galliae prōvinciae finibus ēgressum. Quid sibi vellet? Cūr in suās possessiōnēs venīret? Prōvinciam suam hanc esse Galliam, sicut illam nostram. Ut ipsī concēdi nōn oportēret, sī in nostrōs finēs impetum faceret, sic item
- 30 nōs esse inīquos, quod in suō jūre sē interpellārēmus.

Quod frātrēs ā senātū Haeduōs appellātōs dīceret, nōn sē tam barbarum neque tam imperitū esse rērum, ut nōn scīret, neque bellō Allobrogum proximō Haeduōs Rōmānīs auxilium tulisse, neque ipsōs in hīs contentiōnibus, quās Haeduī sēcum et cum Sēquanīs habuissent, 5 auxiliō populī Rōmānī ūsōs esse.

Dēbēre sē suspicārī, simulātā Caesarem amīcitiā, quod exercitum in Galliā habeat, suī opprimendī causā habēre. Quī nisi dēcēdat atque exercitum dēdūcat ex hīs regiōnibus, sēsē illum nōn prō amīcō, sed prō hoste habitū- 10 rum. Quod sī eum interfēcerit, multīs sēsē nōbilibus prīncipibusque populī Rōmānī grātum esse factūrum (id sē ab ipsīs per eōrum nūntiōs compertum habēre), quōrum omnium grātiā atque amīcitiā ejus morte redimere posset. Quod sī dēcēssisset et liberam posses- 15 sionem Galliae sibi trādīdisset, magnō sē illum praemiō remūnerātūrum et, quaecumque bella gerī vellet, sine ullō ejus labōre et periculō cōfectūrum.

Caesar gives his reasons for refusing.

45. Multa ā Caesare in eam sententiam dicta sunt, quārē negōtiō dēsistere nōn posset: Neque suam neque 20 populī Rōmānī cōsuētūdinem patī, utī optimē merentēs sociōs dēsereret, neque sē iudicāre, Galliam potius esse Ariovistī quam populī Rōmānī. Bellō superātōs esse Arvernōs et Rutēnōs ab Quīntō Fabiō Māximō, quibus 25 populus Rōmānus ignōvisset neque in prōvinciam redēgisset neque stipendium imposuisset. Quod sī antiquissimum quodque tempus spectārī oportēret, populī Rōmānī iustissimum esse in Galliā imperium; sī iudiciū senātūs observārī oportēret, liberam dēbēre esse Galliam, quam bellō victam suis lēgibus utī voluisset. 30

The conference is broken up by the treachery of Ariovistus's attendants.

46. Dum haec in colloquiō geruntur, Caesarī nūntiātum est, equitēs Ariovistī propius tumultum accēdere et ad nostrōs adequitāre, lapidēs tēlaque in nostrōs conicere. Caesar loquendī finem fecit sēque ad suōs recēpit suisque
 5 imperāvit, nē quod omnīnō tēlum in hostēs reicerent. Nam etsī sine ullō periculō legiōnis dēlectae cum equitātū proelium fore vidēbat, tamen committendum nōn putābat, ut pulsīs hostibus diēi posset, eōs ab sē per fidem in colloquiō circumventōs. Posteaquam in vulgus
 10 militum ēlātum est, quā arrogantīā in colloquiō Ariovistus ūsus omnī Galliā Rōmānīs interdixisset, impetumque ut in nostrōs ejus equitēs fēcissent, eaque rēs colloquium ut dirēmisset, multō major alacritās studiumque pugnandī majus exercituī injectum est.

Caesar refuses a second conference, but sends envoys.

15 47. Bīdnō post Ariovistus ad Caesarem lēgātōs mīsīt: Velle sē dē hīs rēbus, quae inter eōs agī coeptae neque perfectae essent, agere cūm eō; utī aut iterum colloquiō diem cōstitueret aut, sī id minus vellet, ex suis lēgātīs aliquem ad sē mitteret.

20 Colloquendī Caesarī causa vīsa nōn est, et eō magis, quod prīdiē ejus diēi Germānī retinērī nōn potuerant, quīn in nostrōs tēla conicerent. Lēgātum ex suis sēsē magnō cum periculō ad eum missūrum et hominibus ferīs objectūrum existimābat. Commodissimum vīsum 25 est Gāium Valerium Procillum, C. Valerī Cabūrī filium, summā virtūte et hūmānitāte adulēscēntem, cūjus pater ā Gāiō Valeriō Flaccō cīvitātē dōnātus erat, et propter fidem et propter linguae Gallicae scientiam (quā multā jam Ariovistus longinquā cōnsuētūdine ūtēbatur) et quod in eō peccandī Germānīs causa nōn esset, ad eum mittere, et unā Marcum Metium, quī hospitio Ariovistī ūtēbatur. Hīs mandāvit, ut, quae diceret Ariovistus, cognōscerent et ad sē referrent. Quōs cum apud sē in castrīs Ariovistus cōnspexisset, exercitū suō praesente conclāmāvit: Quid ad sē venīrent? an speculandī causā? Cōnantēs dīcere prohibuit et in catēnās conjēcit.

Ariovistus plans to cut off Caesar's supplies. Cavalry practice of the Germans.

48. Eōdem diē castra prōmōvit et milibus passuum sex ā Caesaris castrīs sub monte cōnsēdit. Postridiē ejus diēi praeter castra Caesaris suās cōpiās trādūxit et milibus passuum duōbus ultrā eum castra fēcit eō cōnsilio, utī frūmentō commeātūque, quī ex Sēquanīs et Haeduīs supportārētur, Caesarem interclūderet. Ex eō diē diēs continuōs quīnque Caesar prō castrīs suās cōpiās prōdūxit et aciem instrūctam habuit, ut, sī vellet Ariovistus proeliō contendere, eī potestās nōn deesset.

Ariovistus hīs omnibus diēbus exercitum castrīs continuit, equestri proeliō cotidiē contendit. Genus hōc erat pugnae quō sē Germānī exercuerant. Equitum milia erant sex, totidem numerō peditēs vėlōcissimī ac fortissimī, quōs ex omnī cōpiā singuli singulōs suae salutis causā dēlēgerant; cum hīs in proeliis versābantur. Ad eōs sē equitēs recipiēbant; hī, sī quid erat dūrius, concurrēbant; sī quī, graviōre vulnere acceptō, equō dēciderat, circumsistēbant; si quō erat longius prōdeundum aut celerius recipiendum, tanta erat hōrum exercitātiōne celeritās, ut jubis equōrum sublevātī cursum adaequārent.

Caesar marches past the Germans. He fortifies a second camp.

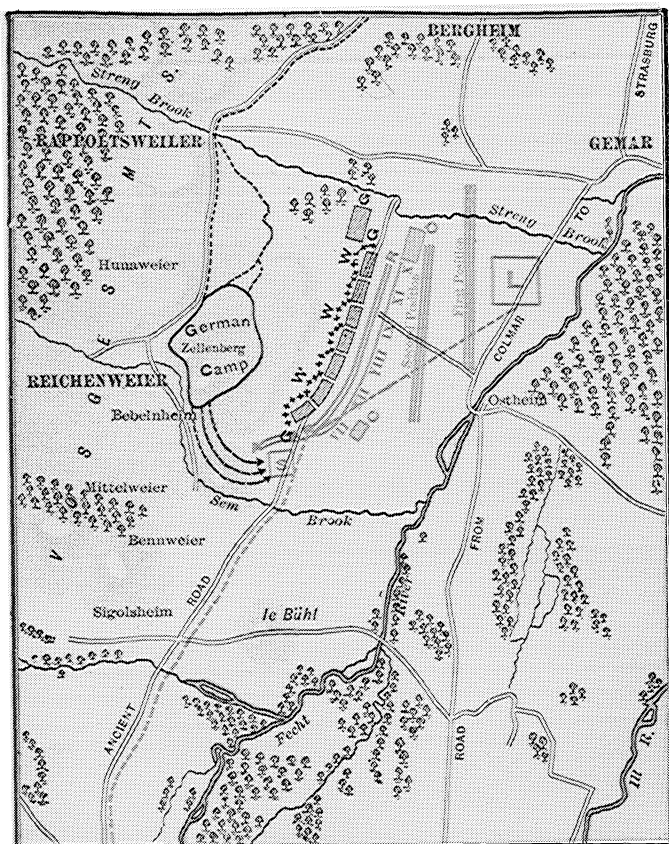

49. Ubi eum castris sē tenēre Caesar intellēxit, nē diūtius commeātū prohibērētur, ultrā eum locum, quō in locō Germānī cōnsēderant, circiter passūs sexcentōs ab hīs, castris idōneum locum dēlēgit aciēque triplici in-
5 strūctā ad eum locum vēnit. Prīmam et secundam aciem in armīs esse, tertiam castra mūnīre jussit. Hīc locus ab hoste circiter passūs sexcentōs, utī dictum est, aberat. Eō circiter hominum sēdecim mīlia expedita cum omni equitātū Ariovistus mīsīt, quae cōpia nostrōs terrērent
10 et mūnitiōne prohibērent. Nihilō sētius Caesar, ut ante cōstituerat, duās aciēs hostem prōpulsāre, tertiam opus perficere jussit. Mūnītis castris duās ibi legiōnēs reliquit et partem auxiliōrum; quattuor reliquās in castra majōra redūxit.

The Germans are afraid to fight before the new moon, but engage with part of their troops.

15 50. Proximō diē institūtō suō Caesar ē castris utrīsqe cōpiās suās edūxit paulumque ā majōribus castris prōgressus aciem instrūxit, hostibusque pugnandī potestātem fēcīt. Ubi nē tum quidem eōs prōdire intellēxit, circiter merīdiem exercitum in castra redūxit. Tum dēmum 20 Ariovistus partem suārum cōpiārum, quae castra minōra oppugnāret, mīsīt. Acrīter utrimque ūsqe ad vesperum pugnātum est. Sōlis occāsū suās cōpiās Ariovistus multīs et illātīs et acceptīs vulneribus in castra redūxit.

25 Cum ex captīvīs quaereret Caesar, quam ob rem Ariovistus proeliō nōn dēcertāret, hanc reperiēbat causam, quod apud Germānōs ea cōsuetūdō esset, ut mātres familiae eōrum sortibus et vāticinatiōnibus dēclārārent,

The Romans and Germans fight a pitched battle.

51. Postrīdiē ejus diēi Caesar praesidiō utrīsq; castrīs, quod satis esse vīsum est, reliquit; omnēs ālāriōs in cōn- 5 spectū hostium prō castrīs minōribus cōstituit, quod minus multitudīne mīlitum legiōnāriōrum prō hostium numerō valēbat, ut ad speciem ālāriīs ūterētur; ipse triplici īnstrūctā aciē ūsque ad castra hostium accessit. Tum dēmum necessariō Germānī suās cōpiās castrīs ēdūxērunt 10 generātimque cōstituērunt paribus intervāllis, Harūdēs, Marcomannōs, Tribocōs, Vangionēs, Nemetēs, Sedusiōs, Suēbōs omnemque aciem suam raedīs et carrīs circumdēdērunt, nē qua spēs in fugā relinquerētur. Eō mulierēs imposuērunt, quae ad proelium proficīscētēs passīs mani- 15 bus flentēs implōrābant, nē sē in servitūtem Rōmānis trāderent.

52. Caesar singulīs legiōnibus singulōs lēgātōs et quae- stōrem praefēcīt, utī eōs testēs suae quisque virtūtis habēret; ipse ā dextrō cornū, quod eam partem minimē 20 firmam hostium esse animadverterat, proelium commisit. Ita nostrī ācritēr in hostēs signō datō impetum fēcērunt, itaque hostēs repente celeriterque prōcurrērunt, ut spatium pīla in hostēs coniciendī nōn darētur. Rejectīs pīlis comminus gladiīs pugnātum est. At Germānī 25 celeriter ex cōnsuetūdine suā phalange factā impetūs gladiōrum excēpērunt. Repertī sunt complūrēs nostrī, quī in phalangem īnsilīrent et scūta manibus revellerent et dēsuper vulnerārent. Cum hostium aciēs ā sinistrō cornū pulsa atque in fugam conjecta esset, ā dextrō 30 cornū vehementer multitudine suorū nostram aciem premēbant. Id cum animadvertisset Pūblius Crassus adulēscēns, quī equitātūī praeerat, quod expeditior erat quam ei, quī inter aciem versābantur, tertiam aciem labō-5 rantibus nostrīs subsidiō mīsīt.

Defeat and rout of the Germans.

53. Ita proelium restitutum est, atque omnēs hostēs terga vertērunt nēque prius fugere dēstitērunt, quam ad flūmen Rhēnum, mīlia passuum ex eō locō circiter quīnque, pervēnērunt. Ibi perpaucī aut vīribus cōnfisī
10 trānāre contendērunt aut lintribus inventīs sibi salutē repperērunt. In hīs fuit Ariovistus, quī nāviculam dēligātā ad rīpam nactus eā profūgit; reliquōs omnēs cōnsecūtī equitēs nostrī interfēcērunt.

Duae fuērunt Ariovistī uxōrēs, ūna Sueba nātiōne, 15 quam domō sēcum dūxerat, altera Nōrica, rēgis Vocciōnis soror, quam in Galliā dūxerat, ā frātre missam; utraque in eā fugā periit. Duae filiae hārum altera occīsa, altera capta est.

C. Valerius Procillus, cum ā cūstōdibus in fugā trīnīs
20 catēnīs vinctus traherētur, in ipsum Caesarem hostīs equitātū insequentem incidit. Quae quidem rēs Caesarī nōn minōrem quam ipsa victōria voluptātem attulit, quod hominem honestissimum prōvinciae Galliae, suum familiārem et hospitem, ēreptum ē manibus hostium, sibi.
25 restitutum vidēbat, neque ejus calamitāte dē tantā voluptate et grātulātiōne quicquam fortūna dēminuerat. Hic sē praesente dē sē ter sortibus cōnsultum dicēbat, utrum ignī statim necārētur an in aliud tempus reservārētur; sortium beneficiō sē esse incolumem. Item M.
30 Metius repertus et ad eum reductus est.

Caesar places his troops in winter quarters. He himself sets out for cisalpine Gaul.

54. Hōc proeliō trāns Rhēnum nūntiātō Suēbī, quī ad rīpās Rhēnī v̄nerant, domum revertī coep̄erunt; quōs; Ubiī quī proximī Rhēnum incolunt, perterritōs īsecūtī magnum ex hīs numerum occīdērunt.

Caesar, ūnā aestāte duōbus maximīs bellīs cōfectīs, 5 mātūrius paulō, quam tempus annī postulābat, in hiberna in Sēquanōs exercitum dēdūxit; hibernīs Labiēnum prae-posuit; ipse in citeriōrem Galliam ad conventūs agendōs profectus est.

CHAPTERS 1-28. — WAR AGAINST THE BELGIAN CONFEDERACY

League of the Belgians against Caesar.

1. CUM esset Caesar in citeriøre Galliā, ita utī suprā dēmōnstrāvimus, crēbrī ad eum rŭmōrēs afferēbantur, lit-terīsque item Labiēnī certior fiēbat, omnēs Belgās, quam tertiam esse Galliae partem dixerāmus, contrā populum randī hās esse causās : primum, quod verērentur, nē omnī pācātā Galliā ad eōs exercitus noster addūcerētur ; deinde, quod ab nōnnūllīs Gallīs sollicitārentur, partim quī, ut Germānōs diūtius in Galliā versārī nōluerant, ita populi 10 Rōmānī exercitum hiemāre atque inveterāscere in Galliā molestē ferēbant, partim quī mōbilitāte et levitāte animī novīs imperiīs studēbant ; ab nōnnūllīs etiā, quod in Galliā ā potentiōribus atque eīs, quī ad condūcendōs hominēs facultātēs habēbant, vulgō rēgna occupābantur, quī 15 minus facile eam rem imperiō nostrō cōsequī poterant.

Caesar advances to meet the crisis.

2. Hīs nūntiīs litterīsque commōtus Caesar duās legi-ōnēs in citeriøre Galliā novās cōscripsit et initā aestāte, in ulteriōrem Galliam quī dēdūceret, Quīntum Pedium apud eōs gerantur, cognōscant sēque dē hīs rēbus certiōrem faciant. Hī cōstanter omnēs nūntiāverunt, manūs cōgī, exercitum in ūnum locum condūcī. Tum vērō dubitandum nōn existimāvit, quīn ad eōs proficīscerētur. Rē frūmentāriā comparātā castra movet diēbusque circiter 5 quīndecim ad finēs Belgārum pervenit.

The Remi espouse the Roman cause.

3. Eō cum dē imprōvisō celeriusque omnī opīniōne vēnisset, Rēmī, quī proximī Galliae ex Belgīs sunt, ad eum lēgātōs Iccium et Andecumborium, primōs cīvitātis, mīserunt, quī dīcerent, sē suaque omnia in fidem atque 10 in potestātem populī Rōmānī permittere, neque sē cum Belgīs reliquīs cōnsēnsisse neque contrā populum Rōmānum omnīnō conjūrāsse, parātōsque esse et obsidēs dare et imperāta facere et oppidīs recipere et frūmentō cēterisque rēbus juvāre; reliquōs omnēs Belgās in armīs 15 esse, Germānōsque quī eis Rhēnum incolant, sēsē cum hīs conjūnxisse, tantumque esse eōrum omnium furōrem, ut nē Suessiōnēs quidem, frātrēs cōsanguineōsque suōs, quī eōdem jūre et īsdem lēgibus ūtantur, ūnum imperium ūnumque magistrātum cum ipsīs habeant, dēterrere potuerint, quīn cum hīs cōnsentīrent. 20

Fighting strength of the Belgian tribes.

4. Cum ab hīs quaereret, quae cīvitātēs quantaeque in armīs essent et quid in bellō possent, sic reperiebat: Plērōsque Belgās esse ortōs ā Germānīs Rhēnumque anti-quitus trāductōs propter locī fertilitātem ibi cōsēdisse, 25 Gallōsque, quī ea loca incolerent, expulisse, sōlōsque esse, quī patrum nostrōrum memoriā omnī Galliā vexātā Teutonōs Cimbrōsque intrā suōs finēs ingredi prohibuerint; quā ex rē fierī, utī eārum rērum memoriā magnam sibi auctōritātem magnōsque spīritūs in rē militārī sūmerent.

Dē numerō eōrum omnia sē habēre explorāta Rēmī dicēbant, propterea quod, propinquitatibus affinitatibus-
 5 que conjūctī, quantam quisque multitudinem in commūnī Belgārum conciliō ad id bellum pollicitus sit, cognōverint. Plūrimum inter eōs Bellovacōs et virtūte et auctōritāte et hominum numerō valēre; hōs posse cōficere armāta mīlia centum, pollicitōs ex eō numerō ēlēcta mīlia sexāgintā, 10 tōtiusque bellī imperium sibi postulāre. Suessiōnēs suōs esse finitimōs; finēs lātissimōs ferācissimōsque agrōs possidēre. Apud eōs fuisse rēgem nostrā etiam memoriā Dīvitiācum, tōtius Galliae potentissimum, quī cum magnae partis hārum regiōnum, tum etiam Britanniae impe-
 15 rium obtinuerit; nunc esse rēgem Galbam; ad hunc propter jūstitiam prūdētiāque summam tōtius bellī omnium voluntāte dēferri; oppida habēre numerō XII, pollicērī mīlia armāta quīnquāgintā; totidem Nervīōs, quī maximē ferī inter ipsōs habeantur longissimēque
 20 absint; quīndecim mīlia Atrebātēs, Ambiānōs decem mīlia, Morinōs XXV mīlia, Menapiōs VII mīlia, Caletōs X mīlia, Veliocassēs et Viromanduōs totidem, Aduatucōs decem et novem mīlia; Condrūsōs, Eburōnēs, Caerōsōs, Paemānōs, quī unō nōmine Germānī appellantur, arbi-25 trārī ad XL mīlia.

Caesar takes up a position on the Axona.

5. Caesar Rēmōs cohortātus liberāliterque orātiōne prosecūtus omnem senātum ad sē convenīre principumque liberōs obsidēs ad sē addūcī jussit. Quae omnia ab hīs diligenter ad diem facta sunt. Ipse Dīvitiācum Haeduum 30 magnopere cohortātus docet, quantō opere rei pūblīcae commūnisque salūtis intersit, manūs hostium distinērī, nē cum tantā multitudīne ūnō tempore cōnflīgendum sit. Id fierī posse, sī suās cōpiās Haedui in finēs Bellovacōrum intrōdūxerint et eōrum agrōs populārī coeperint. Hīs datīs mandātīs eum ab sē dīmittit. 5

Postquam omnēs Belgārum cōpiās in ūnum locum coāctās ad sē venīre vīdit, neque jam longē abesse, ab eīs, quōs mīserat, explōrātōribus et ab Rēmīs cognōvit, flūmen Axonam, quod est in extrēmīs Rēmōrum finibus, exercitum trādūcere mātūrāvit atque ibi castra posuit. Quae 10 rēs et latus ūnum castrōrum rīpīs flūminis mūniēbat et, post eum quae erant, tūta ab hostibus reddēbat et, commeātūs ab Rēmīs reliquīsque cīvitatibus ut sine periculō ad eum portārī possent, efficiēbat. In eō flūmine pōns erat. Ibi praesidium pōnit et in alterā parte flūminis 15 Quīntum Titūrium Sabīnum lēgātum cum sex cohortibus relinquit; castra in altitudinem pedum duodecim vāllō fossāque duodēvigintī pedum mūnīrī jubet.

Bibrax, a town of the Remi, attacked by the Belgae.

6. Ab hīs castrīs oppidum Rēmōrum nōmine Bibrax aberat mīlia passuum octō. Id ex itinere magnō impetū 20 Belgae oppugnāre coepērunt. Aegrē eō diē sustentātum est. Gallōrum eadem atque Belgārum oppugnātiō est haec. Ubi, circumjeetā multitudīne hominum tōtis moeni-bus, undique in mūrum lapidēs jacī coeptī sunt mūrusque dēfēnsōribus nūdātus est, testūdine factā portās succen- 25 dunt mūrumque subruunt. Quod tum facile fiēbat. Nam cum tanta multitudō lapidēs ac tēla conicerent, in mūrō cōsistendī potestās erat nullī. Cum finem oppugnandī nox fēcisset, Iccius Rēmus, summā nōbilitāte et grātiā inter suōs, quī tum oppidō praefuerat, ūnus ex eīs, quī 30 lĕgātī dē pāce ad Caesarem vēnerant, nūntium ad eum mittit, nisi subsidium sibi summittātur, sēsē diūtius sustinēre nōn posse.

The Belgae abandon the assault on Bibrax.

7. Eō dē mediā nocte Caesar īsdem ducibus ūsus, quī 5 nūntiī ab Iccīō vēnerant, Numidās et Crētas sagittāriōs et funditōrēs Baleārēs subsidiō oppidānīs mittit; quōrum adventū et Rēmīs cum spē dēfēnsiōnis studium prōpugnandī accessit, et hostibus eādē dē causā spēs potiundī oppidi discessit. Itaque paulisper apud oppidum morātī agrōs-10 que Rēmōrum dēpopulātī, omnibus vicīs aedificiīsque, quō adire potuerant, incēnsīs, ad castra Caesaris omnibus cōpiīs contendērunt et ā milibus passuum minus duōbus castra posuērunt; quae castra, ut fūmō atque ignibus significābātur, amplius milibus passuum octō in lātītū-15 dinem patēbant.

Caesar prepares for an engagement.

8. Caesar prīmō et propter multitūdinem hostium et propter eximiam opīniōnem virtūtis proeliō supersedēre statuit; cotīdiē tamen equestribus proeliīs, quid hostis virtūte possēt et quid nostrī audērent, periclitābātur.
 20 Ubi nostrōs nōn esse inferiōrēs intellēxit, locō prō castrīs ad aciem īstruendam nātūrā opportūnō atque idōneō, quod is collis, ubi castra posita erant, paululum ex plāni-tiē ēditus tantum adversus in lātītūdinem patēbat, quantum loci aciēs īstrūcta occupāre poterat, atque ex utrā-25 que parte lateris dējectūs habēbat et in frontem lēniter cōstituit ibique tormenta collocāvit, nē, cum aciem instrūisset, hostēs, quod tantum multitudīne poterant, ab lateribus pugnantes suōs circumvenīre possent. Hōc factō duābus legiōnibus, quās proximē cōscripserat, in castrīs relīctīs, ut, sī quō opus esset, subsidio dūcī 5 possent, reliquās sex legiōnēs prō castrīs in aciē cōstituit. Hostēs item suās cōpiās ex castrīs ēductās instrūxerant.

The Belgae attempt to cut off Caesar's supplies.

9. Palūs erat nōn magna inter nostrum atque hostium exercitum. Hanc sī nostrī trānsīrent, hostēs expectā- 10 bant; nostrī autem, sī ab illīs initium trānseundī fieret, ut impeditōs aggredirentur, parātī in armīs erant. Interim proeliō equestri inter duās aciēs contendebātur. Ubi neutri trānseundī initium faciunt, secundiore equitum proeliō nostrīs, Caesar suōs in castra redūxit. Hostēs 15 prōtinus ex eō locō ad flūmen Axonam contendērunt, quod esse post nostra castra dēmōnstrātum est. Ibi vadīs repertīs partem suārum cōpiārum trādūcere cōnātī sunt, eō cōnsiliō, ut, sī possent, castellum, cui praeerat Quīntus Titūrius lēgātus, expugnārent pontemque interseinde- 20 rent; sī minus potuissent, agrōs Rēmōrum populārentur, quī magnō nōbīs ūsuī ad bellum gerendum erant, commēatūque nostrōs prohibērent.

The Belgae are defeated and disperse to their homes with further losses.

10. Caesar certior factus ab Titūriō, omnem equitatum et levis armātūrae Numidās, funditōrēs sagittāriōs- 25 que ponte trādūcit atque ad eōs contendit. Acriter in eō locō pugnātum est. Hostēs impeditōs nostrī in flūmine aggressi magnum eorum numerum occiderunt; per eorum corpora reliquos audacissimè transire conantes multitudi-ne telorum reppulerunt; primos, qui transierant, equi-tatu circumventos interfecerunt.

5 Hostes, ubi et de expugnando oppido et de flumine transeundo spem se fefellisse intellexerunt neque nostros in locum iniquiorem progredi pugnandi causam viderunt, atque ipsos res frumentaria deficere coepit, consilio convocato constituerunt, optimum esse, domum suam quem-10 que reverti, et, quorum in fines primum Romanum exercitum introduxissent, ad eos defendendos undique convenirent, ut potius in suis quam in alienis finibus decertarent et domesticis copiis rei frumentariae uterentur. Ad eam sententiam cum reliquis causis haec quo-15 que ratio eos deduxit, quod Divitiacum atque Haeduos finibus Bellovacorum appropinquare cognoverant. His persuaderi, ut diutius morarentur neque suis auxilium ferrent, non poterat.

11. Ea res constituta, secunda vigilia magnò cum stre-20 pitu ac tumultu castris egressi nullo certo ordine neque imperio, cum sibi quisque primum itineris locum peteret et domum pervenire properaret, fecerunt, ut consimilis fugae profectio videretur. Hac res statim Caesar per speculatores cognita, insidias veritus, quod, quam de causa 25 discederent, nondum perspexerat, exercitum equitatum-que castris continuit. Primam luce confirmata res ab ex-ploratoribus, omnem equitatum, qui novissimum agmen moraretur, praemisit.

His Quintum Pedium et Lucium Aurunculeium Cottam 30 legatos praefecit; Titum Labienum legatum cum legioni-bus tribus subsequi iussit. Hi novissimos adorti et multa milia passuum prosecuti magnam multitudinem eōrum fugientium concīdērunt, cum ab extrēmō agmine, ad quōs ventum erat, cōsisterent fortiterque impetum nostrōrum mīlitum sustinērent, priōrēs, quod abesse ā periculō vidērentur neque ūllā necessitatē neque imperiō continērentur, exauditō clāmōre perturbātis ōrdinibus 5 omnēs in fugā sibi praesidium pōnerent. Ita sine ūllō periculō tantam eōrum multitudinem nostrī interfēcērunt, quantum fuit diēi spatium; sub occāsum sōlis sequī dēstitērunt sēque in castra, ut erat imperātum, recēpērunt. 10

Noviodunum surrenders.

12. Postridiē ejus diēi Caesar, priusquam sē hostēs ex terrōre ac fugā reciperent, in finēs Suessiōnum, quī proximī Rēmīs erant, exercitum dūxit et magnō itinere ad oppidum Noviodūnum contendit. Id ex itinere oppugnāre cōnātus, quod vacuum ab dēfēnsōribus esse audiē- 15 bat, propter lātitudinem fossae mūrīque altitudinem, paucīs dēfendentibus, expugnāre nōn potuit. Castrīs mūnītīs vīneās agere, quaeque ad oppugnandum ūsuī erant, comparāre coepit. Interim omnis ex fugā Suessiōnum multitūdō in oppidum proximā nocte convēnit. 20 Celeriter vīneīs ad oppidum āctīs, aggere jactō turribusque cōstitūtīs, magnitudīne operum, quae neque vīderant ante Gallī neque audierant, et celeritatē Rōmānōrum permōtī lēgātōs ad Caesarem dē dēditionē mittunt et, petentibus Rēmīs, ut cōservārentur, impetrant. 25

Submission of the Bellovaci.

13. Caesar obsidibus acceptīs prīmīs cīvitatīs atque ipsīus Galbae rēgis duōbus filiīs, armīsque omnibus ex oppidō trādītīs, in dēditionem Suessiōnēs accēpit exerci-tumque in Bellovacōs dūcit. Quī cum sē suaque omnia in oppidum Brātuspancium contulissent, atque ab eō oppidō Caesar cum exercitū circiter milia passuum quīnque abesset, omnēs majōrēs nātū ex oppidō ēgressī

5 manūs ad Caesarem tendere et vōce significāre coepērunt, sēsē in ejus fidem ac potestātem venīre neque contrā populum Rōmānum armīs contendere. Item, cum ad oppidum accessisset castraque ibi pōneret, puerī mulierēsque ex mūrō passīs manibus suō mōre pācem ab
10 Rōmānīs petiērunt.

14. Prō hīs Dīvitiācus (nam post discessum Belgārum, dīmissīs Haeduōrum cōpiīs, ad eum reverterat) facit verba: Bellovacōs omnī tempore in fidē atque amicitīā cīvitātis Haeduae fuisse; impulsōs ab suis prīncipibus, 15 quī dicerent, Haeduōs ā Caesare in servitūtem redāctōs omnēs indignitatēs contumēliāsque perferre, et ab Haeduīs dēfēcisse et populō Rōmānō bellum intulisse. Quī ejus cōsili prīncipēs fuissent, quod intellexerent, quantam calamitātem cīvitātī intulissent, in Britanniam pro-
20 fūgissee. Petere nōn solum Bellovacōs, sed etiam prō hīs Haeduōs, ut suā elēmentīā ac mānsuetūdine in eōs ūtātur. Quod sī fēcērit, Haeduōrum auctōritātem apud omnēs Belgās amplificātūrum, quōrum auxiliīs atque opibus, sī qua bella inciderint, sustentāre cōsuērunt.

25 15. Caesar honōris Dīvitiāci atque Haeduōrum causā sēsē eōs in fidem receptūrum et cōservātūrum dixit; et quod erat cīvitās magnā inter Belgās auctōritāte atque hominum multitudīne praestābat, sexcentōs obsidēs poposcit. Hīs trādītīs omnibusque armīs ex oppidō collātīs, 30 ab eō locō in finēs Ambiānōrum pervēnit; quī sē suaque omnia sine morā dēdidērunt.

Description of the Nervii.

Eōrum finēs Nervii attingēbant; quōrum dē nātūrā mōribusque Caesar cum quaereret, sic reperiēbat: Nullum aditum esse ad eōs mercātōribus; nihil pātī vīnī reliquārumque rērum ad lūxuriā pertinentium inferrī, quod hīs rēbus relanguēscere animōs et remittī virtutem existimārent; esse hominēs ferōs magnaēque virtūtis; increpitāre atque incūsāre reliquōs Belgās, quī sē populō Rōmānō dēdidissent patriamque virtutem prōjēcissent; cōfirmāre, sēsē neque lēgātōs missūrōs neque ūllam condiciōnem pācis acceptūrōs. 5

The Nervii and their allies plan to attack Caesar by surprise.

16. Cum per eōrum finēs trīduum iter fēcisset, inveniēbat ex captīvīs, Sabim flūmen ā castrīs suis nōn amplius mīlia passuum x abesse; trāns id flūmen omnēs Nervios cōnsēdisse adventumque ibi Rōmānōrum expectāre ūnā cum Atrebātibus et Viromanduis, finitimīs suis (nam hīs utrīque persuāserant, utī eandem bellī fortunam experīrentur); expectārī etiam ab hīs Aduatucōrum cōpiās atque esse in itinere; mulierēs, quīque per aetātem ad pugnam inūtilēs vidērentur, in eum locum conjēcisse, quō propter palūdēs exercituī aditus nōn esset. 15

17. Hīs rēbus cognitīs explōrātōrēs centuriōnēsque praemittit, quī locum idōneum castrīs dēligant. Cum ex dēditiciīs Belgīs reliquīsque Gallīs complūrēs Caesarem secūtī ūnā iter facerent, quīdam ex hīs, ut postea ex captīvīs cognitum est, eōrum diērum cōnsuetūdine itineris nostrī exercitūs perspectā, nocte ad Nervios pervēnerunt atque hīs dēmōstrārunt, inter singulās legiōnēs impedimentōrum magnum numerum intercēdere, neque esse quicquam negōtī, cum prīma legiō in castra vēnisset 25 reliquaeque legiōnēs magnum spatium abessent, hanc sub sarcinīs adorīrī; quā pulsā impedimentisque direptīs futurum, ut reliquae contrā cōsistere nōn auderent.

Adjuvābat etiam eōrum cōnsilium quī rem dēferēbant, 5 quod Nerviī antiquitus, cum equitatū nihil possent (neque enim ad hōc tempus eī rei student, sed, quicquid possunt, pedestribus valent cōpiīs), quō facilius finitimōrum equitātum, sī praedandī causā ad eōs vēnissent, impedirent, tenerīs arboribus incīsīs atque inflexīs crēbrisque in 10 lātitudinem rāmīs enātīs et rubīs sentibusque interjectīs effēcerant, ut instar mūrī hae saepēs mūnimentum praeberent, quō nōn modo nōn intrārī, sed nē perspicī quidem posset. Hīs rēbus cum iter agminis nostrī impedīrētur, nōn omittendum sibi cōnsilium Nerviī existimāvērunt.

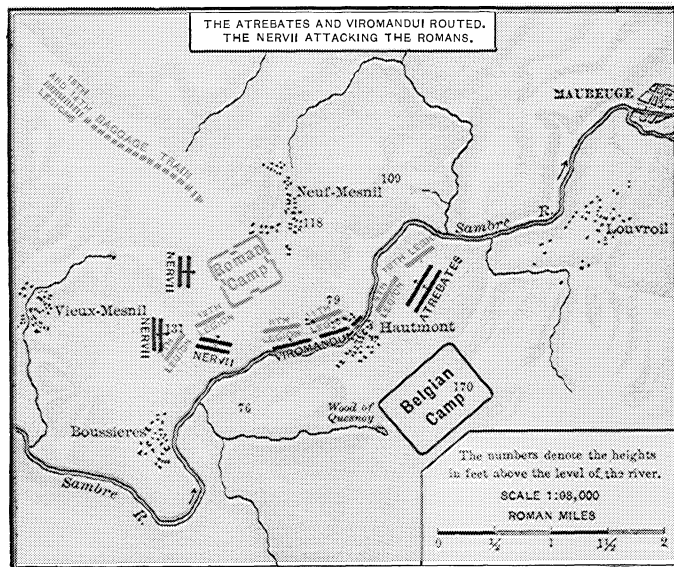

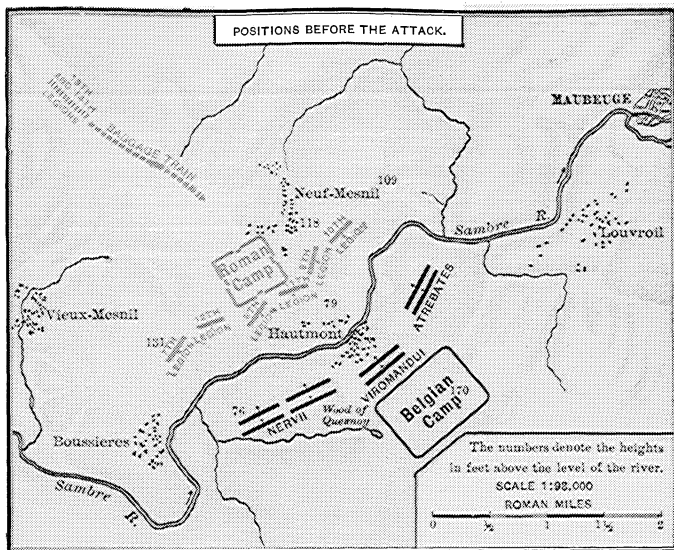

Site of Caesar's camp on the Sabis.

15 18. Locī nātūra erat haec, quem locum nostrī castrīs dēlēgerant. Collis ab summō aequāliter dēclivis ad flūmen Sabim, quod suprā nōmināvimus, vergēbat. Ab eō flūmine parī acclivitate collis nāscēbātur adversus huic et contrārius, passūs circiter ducentōs infimus apertus, ab 20 superiōre parte silvestris, ut nōn facile intrōrsus perspicī posset. Intrā eās silvās hostēs in occultō sēsē continēbant; in apertō locō secundum flūmen paucae stationēs equitum vidēbantur. Flūminis erat altitūdō pedum circiter trium.

The Belgae attack the camp.

25 19. Caesar equitatū praemissō subsequēbātur omnibus cōpiīs; sed ratiō ōrdōque agminis aliter sē habēbat, ac Belgae ad Nerviōs dētulerant. Nam quod hostibus appropinquābat, cōnsuetūdine suā Caesar sex legiōnēs expeditās dūcēbat; post eās tōtīus exercitūs impedimenta

BATTLE ON THE SAMBRE

collocārat; inde duae legiōnēs, quae proximē cōscrip̄tae erant, tōtum agmen claudēbant praesidiōque impedimētis erant. Equitēs nostrī cum funditōribus sagittāriisque flūmen trāsgressī cum hostium equitatū proelium com- 5 misērunt. Cum sē illi identidem in silvās ad suōs reciperent ac rūsus ex silvā in nostrōs impetum facerent neque nostrī longius, quam quem ad finem porrēcta loca aperta pertinēbant, cēdentēs insequi audērent, interim legiōnēs sex, quae primae vēnerant, opere dīmēnsō castra mūnīre coepērunt. 10

Ubi prima impedimēta nostrī exercitūs ab eis, quī in silvīs abditī latebant, vīsa sunt, quod tempus inter eōs committendī proelī convēnerat, ita ut intrā silvās aciem ordinēsque cōstituerant atque ipsī sēsē cōfirmāverant, subito omnibus cōpiīs prōvolāvērunt impetumque in nos- 15 trōs equitēs fēcērunt. Hīs facile pulsīs ac prōturbātīs, incredibili celeritatē ad flūmen dēcucurrērunt, ut paene ūnō tempore et ad silvās et in flūmine et jam in manibus nostrīs hostēs vidērentur. Eādem autem celeritatē adversō colle ad nostra castra atque eōs, quī in opere 20 occupātī erant, contendērunt.

The Romans are unprepared, but their discipline stands them in good stead.

20. Caesarī omnia ūnō tempore erant agenda: vēxilum prōpōnendum, signum tubā dandum, ab opere revocandī militēs, quī paulō longius aggeris petendī causā prōcesserant, arcessendī, aciēs instruenda, militēs cohor- 25 tandī, signum dandum. Quārum rērum magnam partem temporis brevitās et incursus hostium impediēbat. Hīs difficultātibus duae rēs erant subsidiō, scientia atque ūsus militum, quod superiōribus proeliis exercitātī, quid fieri oportēret, nōn minus commodē ipsī sibi praescribere, quam ab aliīs docērī poterant, et quod ab opere singulisque legiōnibus singulōs lēgātōs Caesar discēdere nisi mūnītis castrīs vetuerat. Hī propter propinquitātem et 5 celeritātem hostium nihil jam Caesaris imperium expectābant, sed per sē, quae vidēbantur, administrābant.

Caesar hurries about, encouraging his troops.

21. Caesar necessāriīs rēbus imperātīs ad cohortandōs militēs, quam in partem fors obtulit, dēcucurrit et ad legiōnem decimam dēvēnit. Militēs nōn longiōre ōrātiōne
 10 cohortātus, quam utī suae pristināe virtūtis memoriā retinērent neu perturbārentur animō hostiumque impetum fortiter sustinērent, quod nōn longius hostēs aberant, quam quō telum adigī posset, proelī committendī signum dedit. Atque in alteram partem item cohortandī causā 15 profectus pugnātibz occurrit. Temporis tanta fuit exiguitās hostiumque tam parātus ad dīmīcandum animus, ut nōn modo ad īnsignia accommodanda, sed etiam ad galeās induendās scūtisque tegimenta dētrahenda tempus dēfuerit. Quam quisque ab opere in partem cāsū dēvēnit 20 quaeque prīma signa cōspexit, ad haec cōstitit, nē in quaerendīs suis pugnandī tempus dīmitteret.

Fighting under difficulties.

22. Instrūctō exercitū, magis ut locī nātūra dējēctusque collis et necessitās temporis, quam ut rei militāris ratiō atque ōrdō postulābat, cum diversae legiōnēs aliae 25 aliā in parte hostibus resisterent, saepibusque dēnsissimīs, ut ante dēmōnstrāvimus, interjectīs prōspectus impedirētur, neque certa subsidia collocārī neque, quid in quaque parte opus esset, prōvidērī, neque ab ūnō omnia imperia administrārī poterant. Itaque in tantā rērum inīquitāte fortūnae quoque ēventūs variī sequēbantur.

Two legions on the left rout the Atrebrates. Two in the centre rout the Viromandui. The remaining two are attacked by the Nervii.

23. Legiōnis nōnae et decimae mīlitēs, ut in sinistrā parte aciē cōstitēbant, pīlis ēmissis cursū ac lassitudine exanimātōs vulneribusque cōfectōs Atrebātēs (nam hīs 5 ea pars obvenerat) celeriter ex locō superiōre in flūmen compulērunt et trānsire cōnantēs insecūtī gladiis magnam partem eōrum impeditam interfecerunt. Ipsī trānsire flūmen nōn dubitāvērunt et in locum inīquum prōgressī rūsus resistentēs hostēs redintegrātō proeliō in fugam 10 conjēcērunt. Item aliā in parte diversae duae legiōnēs, ūndecima et octāva, prōfligātis Viromanduis, quibuscum erant congressī, ex locō superiōre, in ipsīs flūminis ripīs proeliābantur. At tōtis ferē castris ā fronte et ā sinistrā parte nūdātis, cum in dextrō cornū legiō duodecima et nōn 15 magnō ab eā intervallō septima cōstitisset, omnēs Nervii cōfertissimō agmine duce Boduognātō, quī summam imperī tenēbat, ad eum locum contendērunt; quōrum pars ab apertō latere legiōnēs circumvenire, pars summum castrōrum locum petere coepit. 20

The situation of the Romans becomes desperate.

24. Eōdem tempore equitēs nostrī levisque armātūrae peditēs, quī cum eis ūnā fuerant, quōs primō hostium impetū pulsōs dixeram, cum sē in castra reciperent, adversīs hostibus occurrēbant ac rūsus aliam in partem fugam petēbant, et cālōnēs, quī ā decumānā portā ac summō jugō 25 collis nostrōs victōrēs flūmen trānsisse cōspexerant, prae-dandī causā ēgressī, cum respexissent et hostēs in nostrīs castrīs versārī vīdissent, praecipitēs fugae sēsē mandābant. Simul eōrum, quī cum impedimentīs veniebant, clāmor fremitusque oriēbātur, aliique aliam in partem perterritī 5 ferēbantur.

Quibus omnibus rēbus permōtī equitēs Trēverī, quōrum inter Gallōs virtūtis opīniō est singulāris, quī auxiliī causā ā civitāte ad Caesarem missī vēnerant, cum multitudīne hostium castra nostra complērī, legiōnēs premī et paene
10 circumventās tenērī, cālōnēs, equitēs, funditorēs, Numidās dīversōs dissipātōsque in omnēs partēs fugere vīdissent, dēspērātīs nostrīs rēbus domum contendērunt; Rōmānōs pulsōs superātōsque, castrīs impedimentīsque eōrum hostēs potītōs civitātī renūntiāvērunt.

Caesar's heroic example saves the day.

15 25. Caesar ab decimae legiōnis cohortātiōne ad dextrum cornū profectus, ubi suōs urgērī signisque in ūnum locum collātīs duodecimae legiōnis cōnfertōs militēs sibi ipsōs ad pugnam esse impedimentō vīdit, quārtae cohortis omnibus centuriōnibus occīsīs, signiferō interfectō, signō
20 āmissō, reliquārum cohortium omnibus ferē centuriōnibus aut vulnerātīs aut occīsīs, in hīs prīmipilō P. Sextiō Baculō, fortissimō virō, multīs gravibusque vulneribus cōnfectō, ut jam sē sustinēre nōn posset, reliquōs esse tardiorēs et nōnnūllōs ab novissimis dēsertō procliō excēdere
25 ac tēla vitāre, hostēs neque ā fronte ex inferiōre locō subeuntēs intermittere et ab utrōque latere instāre et rem esse in angustō vīdit, neque ūllum esse subsidium quod summittī posset; scūtō ab novissimis ūnī militī dētrāctō, quod ipse eō sine scūtō vēnerat, in prīmam aciem processit cen-
30 turiōnibusque nōminātīm appellātīs reliquōs cohortātus militēs signa inferre et manipulōs laxāre jussit, quō facilius gladiīs ūtī possent. Cūjus adventū spē illatā militibus ac redintegrātō animō, cum prō sē quisque in cōspectū imperātōris etiam in extrēmīs suis rēbus operam nāvāre cuperet, paulum hostium impetus tardātus est. 5

Reinforcements arrive.

26. Caesar, cum septimam legiōnem, quae jūxtā cōstiterat, item urgērī ab hoste vīdisset, tribūnōs militum monuit, ut paulātim sēsē legiōnēs conjungerent et conversa signa in hostēs inferrent. Quō factō cum aliis aliī subsidium ferrent neque timērent, nē āversī ab hoste 10 circumvenīrentur, audācius resistere ac fortius pugnāre coepērunt.

Interim militēs legiōnum duārum quae in novissimō agmine praesidiō impedimentis fuerant, proeliō nūntiātō cursū incitātō in summō colle ab hostibus cōspiciēbantur, 15 et Titus Labiēnus castris hostium potitus et ex locō superiōre, quae rēs in nostris castris gererentur, cōspicātus, decimam legiōnem subsidiō nostris mīsit. Quī cum ex equitum et cālōnum fugā, quō in loçō rēs esset, quantōque in periculō et castra et legiōnēs et imperātor versārētur, 20 cognōvissent, nihil ad celeritātem sibi reliquī fēcērunt.

The Romans defeat and almost annihilate the Nervii. Caesar spares the survivors.

27. Hōrum adventū tanta rērum commūtātiō est facta, ut nostrī, etiam quī vulneribus cōfectī prōcubuissent, scūtīs innīxī proelium redintegrārent, cālōnēs perterritōs hostēs cōspicātī etiam inermēs armātīs occurrerent, equi- 25 tēs vērō, ut turpitudinem fugae virtūte dēlērent, omnibus in locīs pugnae sē legiōnāriīs militibus praeferrent.

At hostēs etiam in extrēmā spē salutis tantam virtutem praestitērunt, ut, cum primī eōrum cecidissent, proximī jacentibus insisterent atque ex eōrum corporibus pugnārent; hīs dējectis et coacervātis cadāveribus, quī
 5 superessent, ut ex tumultō tēla in nostrōs conicerent et pīla intercepta remitterent; ut nōn nēquiquam tantae virtutis hominēs jūdicārī dēberet ausōs esse trānsire lātissimum flūmen, ascendere altissimās rīpās, subire iniquissimum locum, quae facilia ex difficillimīs animī mag-
 10 nitūdō redēgerat.

28. Hōc proeliō factō et prope ad interneciōnem gente ac nōmine Nerviōrum redāctō, majōrēs nātū, quōs unā cum puerīs mulieribusque in aestuaria ac palūdēs conjectōs dixerāmus, hāc pugnā nūntiātā, cum victōribus 15 nihil impeditum, victis nihil tūtum arbitrārentur, omnium, quī supererant, cōnsensū lēgātōs ad Caesarem miserunt sēque eī dēdidērunt, et in commemorandā cīvitātis calamitātē ex sexcentis ad trēs senātōrēs, ex hominum mīlibus LX vix ad quīngentōs quī arma ferre possent, 20 sēsē redāctōs esse dīxērunt. Quōs Caesar, ut in miserōs ac supplicēs ūsus misericordiā vidērētur, diligentissimē cōservāvit suisque finibus atque oppidīs ūtī jussit et finitimīs imperāvit, ut ab injuriā et maleficiō sē suōsque prohibērent.

CHAPTERS 29–33. — CONFLICT WITH THE ADUATUCI.

The Aduatuci take refuge in a stronghold.

25 29. Aduatuci, dē quibus suprā scripsimus, cum omnibus cōpiīs auxiliō Nerviīs venīrent, hāc pugnā nūntiātā ex itinere domum revertērunt; cūctis oppidīs castellisque dēsertiis sua omnia in unum oppidum ēgregiē nātūrā mūnītum contulērunt. Quod cum ex omnibus in circuitū partibus altissimās rūpēs dējectūsque habēret, ūnā ex parte lēniter acclivis aditus in lātitudinem nōn amplius ducentōrum pedum relinquerēt; quem locum duplicē altissimō mūrō mūnierant; tum magnī ponderis saxa et praeacūtās trabēs in mūrō collocābant. 5

Ipsī erant ex Cimbrīs Teutonisque prōgnātī, quī, cum iter in prōvinciam nostram atque Italiam facerent, eīs impedimentīs, quae sēcūm agere ac portāre nōn poterant, citrā flūmen Rhēnum dēpositīs cūstōdiam ex suis ac praesidium sex mīlia hominum ūnā reliquerunt. Hī 10 post eōrum obitum multōs annōs ā finitimīs exagitātī, cum aliās bellum inferrent, aliās illātum dēfenderent, cōnsensū eōrum omnium pāce factā, hunc sibi domiciliō locum dēlēgerunt.

Their contempt for the Roman siege works.

30. Ac primō adventū exercitūs nostrī crēbrās ex 15 oppidō excursiōnēs faciēbant parvulisque proeliis cum nostrīs contendēbant; postea vāllō pedum XII, in circuitū XV mīlium crēbrisque castellīs circummūnītī oppidō sēsē continēbant. Ubi vineīs āctīs aggere exstrūctō turrīm procul cōstitui vīdērunt, primum irridēre ex mūrō atque 20 increpitāre vōcibus, quod tanta māchinātiō ā tantō spatiō instituerētur: Quibusnam manibus aut quibus viribus praesertim hominēs tantulae statūrae (nam plērumque omnibus Gallīs prae magnitudīne corporum suōrum brevitās nostra contemptū est) tantī oneris turrīm in 25 mūrō sēsē collocāre posse cōfiderent?

They surrender, but secretly retain weapons.

31. Ubi vērō movērī et appropinquāre moenibus vīderunt, novā atque inūsitatā speciē commōtī lēgātōs ad

Caesarem de pāce mīserunt, quī ad hunc modum locūtī:
 Nōn sē existimāre, Rōmānōs sine ope deōrum bellum gerere, quī tantae altitudinis māchinātiōnēs tantā celeritātē prōmovēre possent; sē suaque omnia eōrum potestātī 5 permittere dīxērunt. Ūnum petere ac dēprecārī: sī forte prō suā clēmētiā ac mānsuētūdine, quam ipsī ab aliīs audīrent, statuisset, Aduatucōs esse cōservandōs, nē sē armīs dēspoliāret. Sibi omnēs ferē finitimōs esse inimicōs ac suae virtūtī invidēre; ā quibus sē dēfendere 10 trāditīs armīs nōn possent. Sibi praestāre, sī in eum cāsum dēdūcerentur, quamvis fortūnam ā populō Rōmānō patī, quam ab hīs per cruciātum interficī inter quōs dominārī cōnsuēssent.

32. Ad haec Caesar respondit: Sē magis cōsuētūdine 15 suā quam meritō eōrum cīvitātem cōservātūrum, sī, priusquam mūrū ariēs attigisset, sē dēdidissent; sed dēditiōnis nūllam esse condiciōnem nisi armīs trāditīs.
 Sē id, quod in Nervīis fēcisset, factūrum finitimisque imperātūrum, nē quam dēditiciis populī Rōmānī injūriam 20 inferrent.

Rē nūntiātā ad suōs, illī sē, quae imperārentur, facere dīxērunt. Armōrum magnā multitudīne de mūrō in fossam, quae erat ante oppidum, jactā, sic ut prope summam mūrī aggerisque altitudinem acervī armōrum 25 adaequārent, et tamen circiter parte tertiā, ut postea perspectum est, celātā atque in oppidō retentā, portīs patefactīs eō diē pāce sunt ūsī.

Caesar thwarts their attempted treachery, and sells them into slavery.

33. Sub vesperum Caesar portās claudī mīlitēsque ex oppidō exīre jussit, nē quam noctū oppidānī ā militibus injūriam acciperent. Illi, ante initō, ut intellēctum est, cōnsiliō, quod dēditione factā nostrōs praesidia dēductūrōs aut dēnique indiligentius servātūrōs crēdiderant, partim cum eīs, quae retinuerant et cēlāverant, armīs, partim scūtīs ex cortice factīs aut vīminibus intextīs, 5 quae subitō, ut temporis exiguitās postulābat, pellibus indūxerant, tertiā vigiliā, quā minimē arduus ad nostrās mūnitiōnēs ascēsus vidēbātur, omnibus cōpiīs repente ex oppidō eruptiōnem fēcērunt.

Celeriter, ut ante Caesar imperāverat, ignibus significā- 10 tione factā, ex proximīs castellīs eō concursum est pugnātumque ab hostibus ita ācriter est, ut ā virīs fortibus in extrēmā spē salūtis iniquō locō contrā eōs, quī ex vāllō turribusque tēla jacerent, pugnārī dēbuit, cum in ūnā virtūte omnis spēs salūtis cōsisteret. Occīsīs ad 15 hominum milibus quattuor, reliquī in oppidum rejecti sunt.

Postridiē ejus diēi refractīs portīs, cum jam dēfenderet nēmō, atque intrōmissīs militibus nostrīs, sectiōnem ejus oppidi ūniversam Caesar vēndidit. Ab eīs, quī ēmerant, 20 capitum numerus ad eum relātus est milium quinquā-gintā trium.

BOOK III.

CHAPTERS 1-6. — GALBA AT OCTODURUS.

Galba takes up his quarters at Octodurus.

1. CUM in Italiam proficisceretur Caesar, Servium Galbam cum legiōne duodecimā et parte equitātis in Nantuātēs, Veragrōs Sedūnōsque misit, quī ā finibus Allobrogum et lacū Lemannō et flūmine Rhodanō ad summās Alpēs pertinent. Causa mittendī fuit, quod iter 5 per Alpēs, quō magnō cum periculō magnisque cum portōriis mercātōrēs ire cōsuērant, patefierī volēbat. Huic permisit, sī opus esse arbitrārētur, utī in hīs locīs legiōnem hiemandī causā collocāret.

Galba, secundis aliquot proeliis factis castellisque com- 10 plūribus eōrum expugnātis, missis ad eum undique lēgātis obsidibusque datis et pāce factā, cōstituit cohortēs duās in Nantuātibus collocāre et ipse cum reliquīs ejus legiōnis cohortibus in vicō Veragrōrum, quī appellātur Octodūrus, hiemāre; quī vicus positus in valle, nōn 15 magnā adjectā plānitie, altissimīs montibus undique continetur. Cum hīc in duās partēs flūmine dividerētur, alteram partem ejus vicī Gallis concessit, alteram vacuum ab hīs relictam cohortibus ad hiemandum attribuit. Eum locum vāllō fossaque mūnivit. 20

He is besieged by the neighboring Alpine tribes.

2. Cum diēs hibernōrum complūrēs trānsissent, frumentumque eō comportārī jussisset, subitō per explōrātōrēs certior factus est, ex eā parte vicī, quam Gallis concesserat, omnēs noctū discessisse, montēsque, quī impendērent, ā maximā multitudine Sedūnōrum et Veragrōrum tenērī.

Id aliquot dē causīs acciderat, ut subitō Gallī belli 5 renovandī legiōnisque opprimendae cōsiliū caperent:
prīmum, quod legiōnem, neque eam plēnissimam, dētrāctīs cohortibus duābus et complūribus singillatim, quī commeātūs petendī causā missī erant, absentibus, propter paucitatem dēspiciēbant; tum etiam, quod propter inī
10 quitatem locī, cum ipsī ex montibus in vallem dēcurrerent et tēla conicerent, nē prīmum quidem impetum suum posse sustinērī exīstimābant. Accēdēbat, quod suōs ab sē liberōs abstrāctōs obsidum nōmine dolēbant et Rōmānōs nōn solum itinerum causā sed etiam perpetuae
15 possessiōnis culmina Alpium occupāre cōnārī et ea loca finitimae prōvinciae adjungere sibi persuāsum habēbant.

3. Hīs nūntiīs acceptīs Galba, cum neque opus hībernōrum mūnitiōnēsque plēnē essent perfectae, neque dē frūmentō reliquōque commeātū satis esset prōvisum, 20 quod dēditiōne factā obsidibusque acceptīs nihil dē bellō timendum exīstimāverat, cōsiliō celeriter convocātō sentiētias exquirere coepit. Quō in cōsiliō, cum tantum repentinī periculī praeter opīniōnem accidisset ac jam omnia ferē superiōra loca multitudine armātōrum com-
25 plēta cōspicerentur, neque subsidiō venīrī neque commeātūs supportārī interclūsīs itineribus possent, prope jam dēspērātā salūte nōnnūllae hūjus modī sententiae dīcebantur, ut impedīmentīs relīctīs ēruptiōne factā isdem itineribus, quibus eō pervēnissent, ad salūtem cō-30 tenderent. Majōrī tamen partī placuit, hōc reservātō ad extrēmum cōsiliō interim rei ēventum experīrī et castra dēfendere.

The Romans defend the camp against heavy odds.

4. Brevi spatio interjecto, vix ut eis rebus, quas constituissent, collocandis atque administrandis tempus daretur, hostes ex omnibus partibus signo dato decurrere, lapides gaesaque in vallum conicere. Nostris primo integris viribus fortiter repugnare neque ullum frustra telum 5 ex loco superiore mittere, et quaecumque pars castrorum nudata defensoribus premi videbatur, eo occurrere et auxilium ferre, sed hoc superari, quod diuturnitate pugnae hostes defessi proelio excedebant, alii integris viribus succedebant; quarum rerum a nostris propter paucitatem 10 fieri nihil poterat, ac non modo defesso ex pugna excedendi, sed ne saucio quidem ejus loci, ubi constiterat, relinquendi ac sui recipiendi facultas dabatur.

They resolve upon a sortie.

5. Cum jam amplius horis sex continenter pugnaretur ac non solum vires, sed etiam tela nostris deficerent, 15 atque hostes acrius instarent languidiorebusque nostris vallum scindere et fossas complere coepissent, resque esset jam ad extremum perducta casus, Publius Sextius Baculus, primi pilii centurio, quem Nervico proelio compluribus confectum vulneribus diximus, et item Gaius 20 Volusenus, tribunus militum, vir et consilii magni et virtutis, ad Galbam accurrunt atque unam esse spem salutis docent, si eruptione facta extremum auxilium experirentur. Itaque convocatis centurionibus celeriter milites certiores facit, paulisper intermitterent proelium ac tan- 25 tum modo tela missa exciperent seque ex labore reficerent, post dato signo ex castris erumperent atque omnem spem salutis in virtute ponerent.

Defeat of the Gauls.

6. Quod jussī sunt, faciunt, ac subitō omnibus portīs ēruptiōne factā neque cognōscendī, quid fieret, neque suī colligendī hostibus facultātem relinquunt. Ita commūtātā fortūnā eōs, quī in spem potiundōrum castrōrum 5 vēnerant, undique circumventōs interficiunt et ex hominum mīlibus amplius xxx, quem numerum barbarōrum

CHAPTERS 7-16.—WAR AGAINST THE VENETI.

Crassus sends messengers to the maritime tribes.

20 7. His rēbus gestīs, cum omnibus dē causīs Caesar pācātam Galliam exīstimāret, superātīs Belgīs, expulsīs Germānīs, victīs in Alpibus Sedūnīs, atque ita initā hieme in Illyricum profectus esset, quod eās quoque nātiōnēs adire et regiōnēs cognōscere volēbat, subitum 25 bellum in Galliā coōrtum est. Ejus bellī haec fuit causa.

mare Ōceanum in Andibus hiemābat. Is, quod in hīs locīs inopia frūmentī erat, praefectōs tribūnōsque mīlitum complūrēs in finitimās civitatēs frūmentī causā dīmīsī; quō in numerō est Titus Terrasidius missus in Esuviōs, Mārcus Trebius Gallus in Coriosolitas, Quīn- 5 tus Velānius cum Titō Siliō in Venetōs.

Maritime prowess of the Veneti. The Gauls detain the messengers and form a league against the Romans.

8. Hūjus est cīvitātis longē amplissima auctōritās omnis ōrae maritimae regiōnum eārum, quod et nāvēs habent Venetī plūrimās, quibus in Britanniam nāvigāre cōnsuērunt, et scientiā atque ūsū rērum nauticārum cēte- 10 rōs antecēdunt et in magnō impetū maris atque apertō paucīs portibus interjectīs, quōs tenent ipsī, omnēs ferē, quī eō marī ūtī cōnsuērunt, habent vectigālēs. Ab hīs fit initium retinendī Sili atque Velānī, quod per eōs suōs sē obsidēs, quōs Crassō dedissent, recuperātūrōs exīstimā- 15 bant.

Hōrum auctōritāte finitimī adductī, ut sunt Gallōrum subita et repentinā cōnsilia, eādem dē causā Trebium Terrasidiumque retinent, et celeriter missīs lēgātīs per suōs prīncipēs inter sē conjūrant, nihil nisi commūnī 20 cōnsiliō āctūrōs eundemque omnēs fortūnae exitum esse lātūrōs, reliquāsque cīvitātēs sollicitant, ut in eā libertāte, quam ā majōribus accēperint, permanēre quam Rōmānōrum servitūtem perferre mālint. Omnī ōrā maritimā celeriter ad suam sententiam perductā, commūnem 25 lēgatiōnem ad Pūblium Crassum mittunt, sī velit suōs recuperāre, obsidēs sibi remittat.

Caesar prepares for war. Natural obstacles presented by the Gallic coast.

9. Quibus dē rēbus Caesar ā Crassō certior factus, quod ipse aberat longius, nāvēs interim longās aedificārī in flūmine Ligerī, quod influit in Ōceanum, rēmigēs ex prōvinciā institui, nautās gubernātōrēsque comparārī
5 jubet. Hīs rēbus celeriter administrātīs, ipse, cum primum per annī tempus potuit, ad exercitum contendit.

Venetī reliquaeque item cīvitātēs, cognitō Caesaris adventū, simul quod, quantum in sē facinus admīssissent, intellegēbant, lēgātōs, quod nōmen ad omnēs nātiōnēs 10 sānetum inviolātumque semper fuisset, retentōs ab sē et in vincula coniectōs, prō magnitūdine periculī bellum parāre et maximē ea, quae ad ūsum nāvium pertinent, prōvidēre instituunt, hōc majōre spē, quod multum nātūrā locī cōnfidēbant. Pedestria esse itinera concīsa aestuā-
15 riīs, nāvigātiōnem impeditam propter īnscientiam locōrum paucitātemque portuum sciēbant, neque nostrōs exercitūs propter frūmentī inopiam diūtius apud sē morārī posse cōnfidēbant; ac jam ut omnia contrā opīniōnem acciderent, tamen sē plūrimum nāvibus posse, Rōmānōs neque
20 ūllam facultātem habēre nāvium, neque eōrum locōrum, ubi bellum gestūrī essent, vada, portūs, īnsulās nōvisse; ac longē aliam esse nāvigātiōnem in conclūsō mari atque in vāstissimō atque apertissimō Ōceanō perspiciebant. Hīs initīs cōnsiliīs oppida mūniunt, frūmenta ex 25 agrīs in oppida comportant, nāvēs in Venetiam, ubi Caesarem primum bellum gestūrum cōnstābat, quam plūrimās possunt, cōgunt. Sociōs sibi ad id bellum Osismōs, Lexoviōs, Namnetēs, Ambiliatōs, Morinōs, Diablintēs, Menapiōs asciscunt; auxilia ex Britannīā, quae 30 contrā eās regiōnēs posita est, arcessunt.

10. Erant hae difficultatēs bellī gerendī, quās suprà ostendimus, sed multa tamen Caesarem ad id bellum incitabant: injūria retentōrum equitum Rōmānōrum, rebellio facta post dēditionem, defectiō datīs obsidibus, tot civitātum conjūratiō, in primīs nē, hāc parte neglēctā, reliquae 5 nātiōnēs sibi idem licēre arbitrārentur. Itaque cum intellexeret, omnēs ferē Gallōs novīs rēbus studēre et ad bellum mōbiliter celeriterque excitārī, omnēs autem hominēs nātūrā libertatī studēre et condiciōnem servitutis ōdisse, priusquam plūrēs civitatēs cōspirārent, partiendum sibi 10 ac lātius distribuendum exercitum putāvit.

Caesar stations troops at strategic points to guard against further uprisings.

11. Itaque Titum Labiēnum lēgātum in Trēverōs, quī proximī flūminī Rhēnō sunt, cum equitatū mittit. Huic mandat, Rēmōs reliquōsque Belgās adeat atque in officiō contineat Germānōsque, quī auxiliō ā Belgīs arcessitī 15 dicēbantur, sī per vim nāvibus flūmen trānsīre cōentur, prohibeat. Pūblium Crassum cum cohortibus legiōnāriīs XII et magnō numerō equitatūs in Aquītāniam proficisci jubet, nē ex hīs nātiōnibus auxilia in Galliam mittantur ac tantae nātiōnēs conjungantur. Quīntum Titūrium 20 Sabīnum lēgātum cum legiōnibus tribus in Venellōs, Coriosolitas Lexoviōsque mittit, quī eam manum destinendam cūret. Decimum Brūtum adulēscētem classī Gallicis nāvibus, quās ex Pictonibus et Santonīs reliquīsque pācātīs regiōnibus convenīre jusserat, praeficit 25 et, cum primum possit, in Venetōs proficisci jubet. Ipse eō pedestribus cōpiīs contendit.

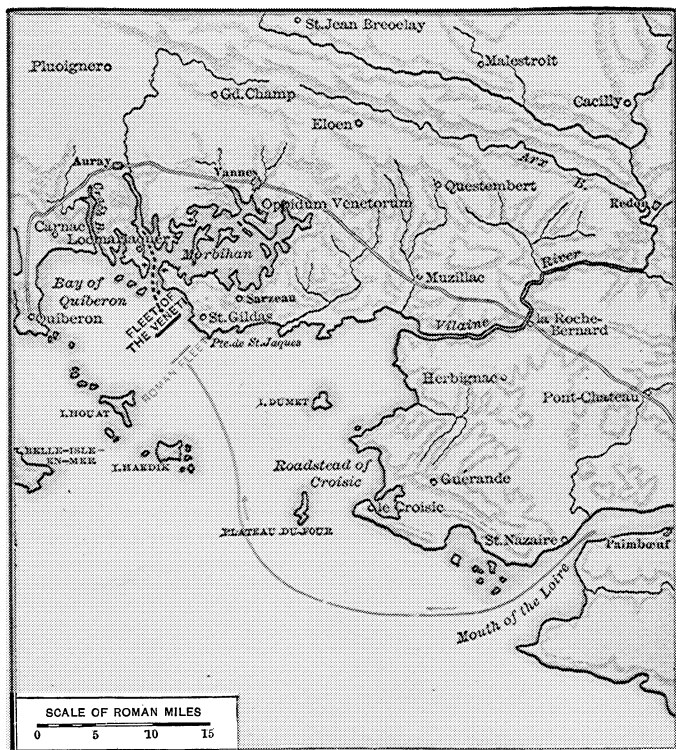

The Romans make slow headway with the war.

12. Erant ejus modī ferē sitūs oppidōrum, ut posita in extrēmīs lingulis prōmunturiisque neque pedibus aditum habērent, cum ex altō sē aestus incitāvisset, quod accidit semper hōrārū XII spatiō, neque nāvibus, quod rūsus 5 minuyente aestū nāvēs in vadīs afflīctārentur. Ita utrāque rē oppidōrum oppugnātiō impediēbātur; ac sī quandō, magnitūdine operis forte superātī, extrūsō marī aggere ac mōlibus atque hīs oppidi moenibus adaequātis, suis fortū-nīs dēspērāre coeperant, magnō numerō nāvium appulsō, 10 cūjus rei summam facultātem habēbant, sua dēportābant omnia sēque in proxima oppida recipiēbant; ibi sē rūsus isdem opportunitātibus locī dēfendēbant. Haec eō facilius magnam partem aestātis faciēbant, quod nostrae nāvēs tempestātibus dētīnēbantur, summaque erat vāstō portibus, difficultās nāvigandī.

Cum hīs nāvibus nostrae classī ejus modī congressus erat, ut ūnā celeritāte et pulsū rēmōrum praestāret, reliqua 5 prō locī nātūrā, prō vī tempestātum illīs essent aptiōra et accommodātiōra. Neque enim hīs nostrae rōstrō nocēre poterant (tanta in eīs erat firmitūdō), neque propter altitudinem facile tēlum adigēbātur, et eādem dē causā minus commodē cōpulis continēbantur. Accēdēbat, ut, cum sae- 10 vīre ventus coepisset et sē ventō dedissent, et tempestātem ferrent facilius et in vadīs cōsisterent tūtius et ab aestū relīctae nihil saxa et cautēs timērent; quārum rērum omnium nostrīs nāvibus cāsus erat extimēscendus.

14. Complūribus expugnātīs oppidīs Caesar, ubi intel- 15 lēxit, frūstrā tantum labōrem sūmī, neque hostium fugam captīs oppidīs reprimī neque eīs nocērī posse, statuit expectandam classem. Quae ubi convēnit ac primum ab hostibus vīsa est, circiter ccxx nāvēs eōrum, parātissimae atque omnī genere armōrum ōrnatissimae, profectae ex 20 portū nostrīs adversae cōstitērunt; neque satis Brūtō, quī classī praeerat, vel tribūnīs militum centuriōnibusque, quibus singulae nāvēs erant attribūtae, cōstābat, quid agerent aut quam ratiōnem pugnae insisterent. Rōstrō enim nocērī nōn posse cognōverant; turribus autem exci- 25 tātīs, tamen hās altitūdō puppiū ex barbarīs nāvibus superābat, ut neque ex inferiōre locō satis commodē tēla adigī possent et missa ā Gallīs gravius acciderent.

Ūna erat magnō ūsuī rēs praeparāta ā nostrīs, falcēs praeacūtae insertae affixaeque longuriīs, nōn absimili 30 fōrmā mūrālium falcium. Hīs cum fūnēs, quī antemnās ad mālōs dēstinābant, comprehēnsī adductīque erant, nāvigiō rēmīs incitātō praerumpēbantur. Quibus abscīsīs antemnae neccssāriō concidēbant, ut, cum omnis Gallicīs

 5 nāvibus spēs in vēlīs armāmentisque cōnsisteret, hīs ēreptīs omnis ūsus nāvium ūnō tempore ēriperētur. Reliquum erat certāmen positum in virtūte, quā nostrī militēs facile superābant, atque eō magis, quod in cōspectū Caesaris atque omnis exercitūs rēs gerēbātur, ut nūllum 10 paulō fortius factum latēre posset; omnēs enim collēs ac loca superiōra, unde erat propinquus dēspectus in mare, ab exercitū tenēbantur.

The Gallic ships are becalmed and many are captured.

15. Dējectīs, ut dīximus, antemnīs, cum singulās bīnae ac ternae nāvēs circumsteterant, militēs summā vī trāns-
 15 scendere in hostium nāvēs contendēbant. Quod postquam barbarī fieri animadvertērunt, expugnātīs complūribus nāvibus, cum eī rei nūllum reperirētur auxilium, fugā salūtem petere contendērunt. Ac jam conversīs in eam partem nāvibus, quō ventus ferēbat, tanta subitō malacia 20 ac tranquillitās exstitit, ut sē ex locō movēre nōn possent. Quae quidem rēs ad negōtium cōficiendum maximē fuit opportūna; nam singulās nostrī cōnsectātī expugnāvērunt, ut perpaucae ex omnī numerō noctis interventū ad terram pervēnerint, cum ab hōrā ferē quārtā ūsque ad sōlis occā-

CHAPTERS 17–19. — THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE VENELLI.

Sabinus takes up his quarters among the Venelli.

17. Dum haec in Venetīs geruntur, Quīntus Titūrius Sabīnus cum eīs cōpiīs, quās ā Caesare accēperat, in finēs 10 Venellōrum pervēnit. Hīs praeerat Viridovīx ac summam imperī tenēbat eārum omnium civitātum, quae dēfēceraut, ex quibus exercitum magnāsque cōpiās coēgerat; atque hīs paucīs diēbus Aulerci Eburovīcēs Lexoviīque senātū suō interfectō, quod auctōrēs bellī esse nōlēbant, portās 15 clausērunt sēque cum Viridovīce conjūxērunt; magna-que praetereā multitudō undique ex Galliā perditōrum hominum latrōnumque convēnerat, quōs spēs praedandī studiumque bellandī ab agrī cultūrā et cotidiānō labōre sēvocābat.

Sabīnus idōneō omnibus rēbus locō castrīs sēsē tenēbat, cum Viridovīx contrā eum duōrum milium spatiō cōnsēdisset cotidiēque prōductīs cōpiīs pugnandī potestātem faceret, ut jam nōn solum hostibus in contemptiōnem Sabīnus venīret, sed etiam nostrōrum militum vōcibus 25
nōnnihil carperētur; tantamque opīniōnem timōris praebuit, ut jam ad vāllum castrōrum hostēs accēdere audērent. Id eā dē causā faciēbat, quod cum tantā multitudīne hostium, praesertim eō absente, quī summam imperī tenēret, nisi aequō locō aut opportunitāte aliquā datā, lēgātō 5 dīmīcandum nōn exīstimābat.

By pretending fear he induces the Gauls to attack his camp.

18. Hāc cōfirmātā opīniōne timōris, idōneum quendam hominem et callidum dēlēgit, Gallum, ex eīs, quōs auxiliī causā sēcum habēbat. Huic magnīs praemiīs pollicitiōnibusque persuādet, utī ad hostēs trānseat, et, quid
10 fierī velit, ēdocet. Quī ubi prō perfugā ad eōs vēnit, timōrem Rōmānōrum prōpōnit, quibus angustīis ipse Caesar ā Venetīs premātur, docet, neque longius abesse, quā proximā nocte Sabīnus clam ex castrīs exercitum ēdūcat et ad Caesarem auxiliī ferendī causā proficiscātur. Quod ubi 15 auditum est, conclāmant omnēs, occāsionem negōtī bene gerendī āmittendam nōn esse; ad castra īrī oportēre.

Multae rēs ad hōc cōnsilium Gallōs hortābantur; superiorum diērum Sabīnī cunctātiō, perfugae cōfirmātiō, inopia cibāriōrum, cui rei parum diligenter ab eīs erat
20 prōvīsum, spēs Veneticī bellī, et quod ferē libenter hominēs id, quod volunt, crēdunt. Hīs rēbus adductī nōn prius Viridovicem reliquōsque ducēs ex conciliō dimittunt quam ab hīs sit concessum, arma utī capiant et ad castra contendant. Quā rē concessā laetī, ut explorātā 25 victōriā, sarmentīs virgultisque collēctīs, quibus fossās Rōmānōrum compleant, ad castra pergunt.

Defeat of the Gauls.

19. Locus erat castrōrum ēditus et paulatim ab imō acclivis circiter passūs mīlle. Hūc magnō cursū contendērunt, ut quam minimum spatī ad sē colligendōs armandōsque Rōmānīs darētur, exanimātique pervēnerunt. Sabīnus suōs hortātus cupientibus signum dat. Impeditīs hostibus propter ea, quae ferēbant, onera, subitō duābus portīs ēruptiōnem fierī jubet. Factum est opportunitate 5 locī, hostium īnscientiā ac dēfatigātiōne, virtūte militum et superiōrum pugnārum exercitātiōne, ut nē ūnum quidem nostrōrum impetum ferrent ac statim terga verterent. Quōs impeditōs integrīs vīribus milītēs nostrī cōnsecūtī magnum numerum eōrum occidērunt; reliquōs 10 equitēs cōnsectātī paucōs, quī ex fugā ēvāserant, reliquērunt. Sic ūnō tempore et dē nāvālī pugnā Sabīnus et dē Sabīnī victōriā Caesar certior factus est, cīvitatēsque omnēs sē statim Titūriō dēdidērunt. Nam ut ad bella suscipienda Gallōrum alacer ac prōmptus est animus, 15 sic mollis ac minimē resistēns ad calamitatēs perferendās mēns eōrum est.

CHAPTERS 20-27. CRASSUS IN AQUITANIA.

Crassus is attacked by the Sotiates.

20. Eōdem ferē tempore Pūblius Crassus, cum in Aquītāniam pervēnisset, quae pars, ut ante dictum est, et regiōnum lātitudīne et multītūdīne hominū ex tertiā 26 parte Galliae est aestimanda, cum intellexeret, in eīs locīs sibi bellum gerendum ubi paucīs ante annīs Lūcius Valerius Praecōnīnus lēgātus exercitū pulsō interfectus esset atque unde Lūcius Manlius prōcōnsul impedimentīs āmissīs profūgisset, nōn mediocrem sibi dīligentiam 25 adhibendam intellegēbat. Itaque rē frūmentāriā prōvīsā, auxiliīs equitātūque comparātō, multīs praetereā virīs fortibus Tolōsā, Carcasōne, Narbōne, quae sunt cīvitatēs

Galliae prōvinciae finitimae hīs regiōnibus, nōminātim ēvocātis, in Sōtiātum finēs exercitum intrōdūxit. Cūjus adventū cognitō Sōtiātēs magnīs cōpiīs coactīs equitātūque, quō plūrimum valēbant, in itinere agmen nostrum 5 adortī primum equestre proelium commisērunt, deinde, equitātū suō pulsō atque insequentibus nostrīs, subitō pedestrēs cōpiās, quās in convalle in insidiīs collocāverant, ostendērunt. Hī nostrōs disiectōs adortī proelium renovārunt.

He routs them and captures their town.

10 21. Pugnātum est diū atque ācriter, cum Sōtiātēs superiōribus victōriīs frētī in suā virtūte tōtius Aquitāniae salūtem positam putārent, nostrī autem, quid sine imperātore et sine reliquīs legiōnibus adulēscenulō duce efficere possent, perspicī cuperent; tandem cōfectī vuleribus hostēs terga vertērunt. Quōrum magnō numerō 15 interfectō Crassus ex itinere oppidum Sōtiātum oppugnāre coepit. Quibus fortiter resistentibus, vineās turresque ēgit. Illī aliās ēruptiōne temptātā, aliās cunīculīs ad aggerem vineāsque āctīs (cūjus rei sunt longē perītissimī Aquitānī, proptereā quod multis locīs apud eōs 20 aerariae sectūraeque sunt), ubi dīligentiā nostrōrum nihil hīs rēbus prōfici posse intellēxērunt, lēgātōs ad Crassum mittunt, sēque in dēditionem ut recipiat, petunt. Quā rē impetrātā, arma trādere jussī faciunt.

Sally of Adiatunnus.

25 22. Atque in eā rē omnium nostrōrum intentīs animīs, aliā ex pāte oppidī Adiatunnus, quī summam imperī tenēbat, cum de dēvōtīs, quōs illī ‘solduriōs’ appellant, quōrum haec est condiciō, utī omnibus in vitā commodis unā cum eis fruuntur, quorum se amicitiae dēdiderint, si quid his per vim accidat, aut eundem casum unā ferant aut sibi mortem consciscant (neque adhuc hominum memoriā repertus est quisquam, qui eō interfectō, cuius se amicitiae devovisset, mortem recusaret), 5 cum his Adiatunnus eruptionem facere conatus, clamore ab eā parte munitiōnis sublātō, cum ad arma milites concurrissent vehementerque ibi pugnātum esset, repulsus in oppidum tamen, uti eadem deditiōnis condiciōne uteretur, a Crasso impetravit. 10

Crassus comes into the territory of the Vocates and Tarusates.

23. Armis obsidibusque acceptis, Crassus in fines Vocatium et Tarusatium profectus est. Tum vero barbari commoti, quod oppidum et naturā loci et manū munitum paucis diebus, quibus eō ventum erat, expugnātum cognoverant, legatos quoqueversus dimittere, con- 15 jurare, obsides inter se dare, copias parare coeperunt. Mittuntur etiam ad eas civitates legati, quae sunt citerioris Hispaniae finitimae Aquitaniae; inde auxilia ducēsque arcessuntur. Quorum adventū magnā cum auctoritate et magnā cum hominum multitudine bellum 20 gerere conantur. Ducēs vero ei deliguntur, qui unā cum Quinto Sertorio omnes annos fuerant summamque scientiam rei militaris habere existimabantur. Hi consuetudine populi Romani loca capere, castra munire, commeatibus nostros intercludere instituunt. 25

Quod ubi Crassus animadvertit, suas copias propter exiguitatem non facile deduci, hostem et vagari et vias obsidere et castris satis praesidi relinquere, ob eam causam minus commodē frumentum commeātumque sibi supportari, in dies hostium numerum augeri, non cunctandum 30 existimāvit, quīn pugnā dēcertāret. Hāc rē ad cōnsilium dēlatā, ubi omnēs idem sentīre intellēxit, posterum diem pugnae cōstituit.

Crassus attacks the enemy's camp.

24. Primā lūce prōductīs omnibus cōpiīs, duplicī aciē 5 institūtā, auxiliīs in mediam aciem coniectīs, quid hostēs cōnsilī caperent, exspectābat. Illī, etsī propter multītūdinem et veterem bellī glōriam paucitātemque nostrōrum sē tūtō dīmicātūrōs existimābant, tamen tūtius esse arbitrābantur, obsessīs viīs commeātū interclūsō sine 10 ullō vulnere victōriā potīrī, et, sī propter inopiam rei frūmentāriae Rōmānī sēsē recipere coepissent, impeditōs in agmine et sub sarcinīs jam infirmiorēs animō adorīrī cōgitābant. Hōc cōnsiliō probātō ab ducibus, prōductīs Rōmānōrum cōpiīs, sēsē castrīs tenēbant. Hāc rē per-15 spectā Crassus, cum suā cunctātiōne atque opīniōne timōris hostēs nostrōs mīlītēs alacriōrēs ad pugnandum effēcissent atque omnium vōcēs audīrentur, exspectārī diūtius nōn oportēre, quīn ad castra īrētur, cohortātus suōs omnibus cupientibus ad hostium castra contendit.

The struggle is at first indecisive.

25. Ibi cum aliī fossās complērent, aliī multīs tēlīs coniectīs dēfēnsōrēs vāllō mūnitiōnibusque dēpellerent, auxiliārēsque, quibus ad pugnam nōn multum Crassus cōnfidēbat, lapidibus tēlisque sumministrandīs et ad ag-gērem caespitibus comportandīs speciem atque opīniōnem 25 pugnantium praebērent, cum item ab hostibus cōstanter ac nōn timidē pugnārētur tēlaque ex locō superiōre missa nōn frūstrā acciderent, equitēs, circumitīs hostium castris, Crassō renūntiāverunt, nōn eādem esse diligentia ab decumānā portā castra mūnita facilemque aditum habere.

Victory of the Romans.

26. Crassus equitum praefectōs cohortātus, ut magnis praemiis pollicitationibusque suos excitarent, quid fieri vellet, ostendit. Illi, ut erat imperātum, ēductis eis cohortibus, quae praesidiō castris relictæ intritæ ab labōre erant, et longiōre itinere circumductis, nē ex hostium castris cōspici possent, omnium oculis mentibusque ad pugnam intentis, celeriter ad eas, quas diximus, mūnitionēs pervēnerunt atque his prōrutis prius in hostium castris cōstitērunt quam planē ab his vidēri aut, quid rei gereretur, cognōsci posset. Tum vērō, clāmōre ab eā parte auditō, nostrī redintegrātis vīribus, quod plērumque in spe victōriæ accidere cōsuēvit, ācrius impugnāre coepērunt. Hostēs undique circumventi, dēspērātis omnibus rēbus, sē per mūnitionēs dēicere et fugā salūtem petere contendērunt. Quos equitatus apertissimis campis cōsectātus, ex milium L. numerō, quae ex Aquitāniā Cantabrisque convēnisse cōstābat, vix quārtā parte relictā, multā nocte sē in castra recēpit.

The other Aquitanian tribes surrender.

27. Hāc auditā pugnā maxima pars Aquitāniæ sēsē Crassō dēdidit obsidēsque ultrō mīsit; quō in numerō fuērunt Tarbelli, Bigerriōnēs, Ptiāni, Vocātēs, Tarusātēs, Elusātēs, Gatēs, Ausci, Garumnī, Sibuzātēs, Cocosātēs; 25 paucae ultimae nātiōnēs annī tempore cōnfisae, quod hiems suberat, hōc facere neglēxērunt.

CHAPTERS 28, 29. — CAESAR PROCEEDS AGAINST THE MORINI AND THE MENAPII.

The Morini and Menapii retreat to their forests.

28. Eōdem ferē tempore Caesar, etsī prope exācta jam aestās erat, tamen, quod omnī Galliā pācātā Morinī Menapiīque supererant, quī in armīs essent neque ad eum umquam lēgātōs dē pāce mīsissent, arbitrātus id
5 bellum celeriter cōfici posse, eō exercitum dūxit; quī longē aliā ratiōne ac reliquī Galli bellum gerere coepērunt. Nam quod intellegēbant, maximās nātiōnēs, quae proeliō contendissent, pulsās superātāsque esse, continentēsque silvās ac palūdēs habēbant, eō sē suaque omnia contulē-10 runt. Ad quārum initium silvārum cum Caesar pervēnis- set castraque mūnīre instituisset, neque hostis interim vīsus esset, dispersīs in opere nostrīs, subitō ex omnibus partibus silvae ēvolāvērunt et in nostrōs impetum fēcē-runt. Nostrī celeriter arma cēpērunt eōsque in silvās 15 reppulērunt et, complūribus interfectīs, longius impedi- tiōribus locīs secūtī paucōs ex suis dēperdidērunt.

Caesar's operations for this year are suspended in consequence of heavy storms.

29. Reliquīs deinceps diēbus Caesar silvās caedere instituit et, nē quis inermibus imprudentibusque militibus ab latere impetus fierī posset, omnem eam māteriam, quae 20 erat caesa, conversam ad hostem collocābat et prō vāllō ad utrumque latus exstruēbat. Incredibili celeritāte magnō spatiō paucīs diēbus cōfectō, cum jam pecus atque extrēma impedimenta ā nostrīs tenērentur, ipsī dēnsiōrēs silvās peterent, ejus modī sunt tempestātēs cōsecūtae, utī opus necessariō intermitterētur, et continuātiōne imbrium diūtius sub pellibus militēs continērī nōn possent. Itaque vāstātis omnibus eōrum agrīs, vicīs aedificiisque incēnsīs, Caesar exercitum redūxit et in Aulercīs Lexoviisque, reliquīs item cīvitātibus, quae proximē bellum fēcerant, in hibernīs collocāvit.

BOOK IV.

CHAPTERS 1-15. — THE WAR WITH THE USIPETES AND THE TENCTERI.

The Usipetes and Tencteri enter Gaul.

1. EĀ, quae secūta est, hieme, quī fuit annus Cn. Pompejō, M. Crassō cōsulibus, Usipetēs Germānī et item Tencterī magnā cum multitūdine hominum flūmen Rhēnum trānsiērunt, nōn longē ā marī, quō Rhēnus īnfluit.
- 5 Causa trānseundi fuit, quod ab Suēbīs complūrēs annōs exagitātī bellō prēmēbantur et agrī cultūrā prohibēbantur.

Character and customs of the Suebi.

- Suēbōrum gēns est longē maxima et bellicōsissima Germānōrum omnium. Hī centum pāgōs habēre dīcuntur, ex quibus quotannīs singula mīlia armātōrum bellandī
- 10 causā ex finibus ēdūcunt. Reliquī, quī domī mānsērunt, sē atque illōs alunt; hī rūrsus in vicem annō post in armīs sunt, illī domī remanent. Sic neque agrī cultūra nec ratiō atque ūsus bellī intermittitur. Sed prīvātī ac sēparātī agrī apud eōs nihil est, neque longius annō
- 15 remanēre ūnō in locō colendī causā licet. Neque multum frūmentō, sed maximam partem lacte atque pecore vīvunt, multumque sunt in vēnātiōnibus; quae rēs et cibī genere et cotīdiānā exercitātiōne et libertāte vītae, quod, ā puerīs nullō officiō aut disciplīnā assuefactī, nihil omnīnō contrā
- 20 voluntātem faciunt, et vīrēs alit et immānī corporum.

magnitudine hominēs efficit. Atque in eam sē cōsuētū-dinem addūxērunt, ut locīs frigidissimīs neque vestītūs praeter pellēs habērent quicquam (quārum propter exiguitatem magna est corporis pars aperta) et lavārentur in flūminibus.

2. Mercātōribus est aditus magis eō, ut, quae bellō cēperint, quibus vēdant, habeant, quam quō ūllam rem ad sē importārī dēsīderent. Quīn etiam jūmentīs, quibus maximē Gallī dēlectantur quaeque impēnsō parant pretiō, Germānī importātīs nōn ūtuntur, sed quae sunt apud eōs nāta, parva atque dēfōrmia, haec cotīdiānā exercitātiōne, summī ut sint labōris, efficiunt. Equestribus proeliīs saepe ex equīs dēsiliunt ac pedibus proeliantur equōsque eōdem remanēre vēstigiō assuēfēcērunt, ad quōs sē celeriter, cum ūsus est, recipiunt; neque eōrum mōribus turpius quicquam aut inertius habētur, quam ephippiīs ūtī.
Itaque ad quemvīs numerum ephippiātōrum equitum quamvīs paucī adire audent. Vīnum omnīnō ad sē impor-tārī nōn patiuntur, quod eā rē ad labōrem ferendum remollēscere hominēs atque effēminārī arbitrantur.

3. Pūblicē maximam putant esse laudem, quam lātissimē ā suīs finibus vacāre agrōs; hāc rē significārī, magnūm numerum cīvitātum suam vim sustinēre nōn posse.
Itaque ūnā ex parte ā Suēbīs circiter mīlia passuum centum agrī vacāre dīcuntur. Ad alteram partem succēdunt Ubiī, quōrum fuit cīvitās ampla atque flōrēs, ut est captus Germānōrum. Eī paulō (quamquam sunt ejusdem generis) sunt cēterīs hūmāniōrēs, proptereā quod Rhēnum attingunt multumque ad eōs mercātōrēs ventitant et ipsī propter propinquitatem Gallicīs sunt mōribus assuēfactī.
Hōs cum Suēbī, multīs saepe bellīs expertī, propter am-plitūdinem gravitatemque cīvitātis finibus expellere nōn potuissent, tamen vectigālēs sibi fēcērunt ac multō humiliōrēs infirmiōrēsque redēgērunt.

The Usipetes and Tencteri overpower the Menapii.

4. In eādē causā fuērunt Usipetēs et Tencterī, quōs suprā diximus, quī complūrēs annōs Suēbōrum vim susti-5 nuērunt; ad extrēmum tamen agrīs expulsī et multis locīs Germāniae triennium vagātī ad Rhēnum pervēnērunt, quās regiōnēs Menapiī incolēbant. Hī ad utramque ripam flūminis agrōs, aedificia vicōsque habēbant; sed tantae multitūdinis adventū perterriti ex eīs aedificiis, quae 10 trāns flūmen habuerant, dēmigrāvērunt et cis Rhēnum dispositis praesidiis Germānōs trānsire prohibēbant.

Illi omnia experti, cum neque vī contendere propter inopiam nāvium neque clam trānsire propter cūstodiās
Menapiōrum possent, reverti sē in suās sēdēs regiōnēsque 15 simulāvērunt et triduī viam prōgressi rūsus revertērunt atque, omnī hōc itinere unā nocte equitatū cōfectō, insciōs inopināntēsque Menapiōs oppressērunt, quī dē Germānōrum discessū per explorātōrēs certiōrēs facti sine metū trāns Rhēnum in suōs vicōs remigrāverant. His interfec-20 tīs nāvibusque eōrum occupātis, priusquam ea pars Menapiōrum, quae citrā Rhēnum erat, certior fieret, flūmen trānsiērunt atque, omnibus eōrum aedificiis occupātis, reliquam partem hiemis sē eōrum cōpiis aluērunt.

The fickleness of the Gauls.

5. His dē rēbus Caesar certior factus et infirmitatem 25 Gallōrum veritus, quod sunt in cōsiliis capiendīs mōbilēs et novīs plērumque rēbus student, nihil hīs committendum existimāvit. Est enim hōc Gallicae cōsuētūdinis, utī et viātōrēs etiam invitōs cōsistere cōgant et, quid quisque eōrum dē quāque rē audierit aut cognōverit, quaerant, et mercātōrēs in oppidīs vulgus circumsistat quibusque ex regiōnibus veniant quāsque ibi rēs cognōverint, prōnūntiāre cōgant. Hīs rēbus atque auditiōnibus permōtī dē summīs saepe rēbus cōsilia ineunt, quōrum eōs in vēstī- 5 giō paenitēre necesse est, cum incertīs rūmōribus serviant et plērīque ad voluntātem eōrum ficta respondeant.

Caesar prepares for war against the Germans.

6. Quā cōsuētūdine cognitā Caesar, nē graviōrī bellō occurreret, mātūrius, quam cōsuērat, ad exercitum proficiscitur. Eō cum vēnisset, ea, quae fore suspicātus erat, 10 facta cognōvit; missās lēgātiōnēs ab nōnnūllīs cīvitātibus ad Germānōs invitātōsque eōs, utī ab Rhēnō discēderent; omniaque, quae postulāssent, ab sē fore parāta. Quā spē adductī Germānī lātius jam vagābantur et in finēs Eburōnum et Condrūsōrum, quī sunt Trēverōrum clientēs, per- 15 vēnerant. Prīncipibus Galliae ēvocātīs Caesar ea, quae cognōverat, dissimulanda sibi exīstimāvit eōrumque animīs permulsīs et cōfirmātīs equitātūque imperātō bellum cum Germānīs gerere cōstituit.

Defiant attitude of the Usipetes and Tencteri.

7. Rē frūmentāriā comparātā equitibusque dēlectīs, 20 iter in ea loca facere coepit, quibus in locīs esse Germānōs audiēbat. Ā quibus cum paucōrum diērum iter abesset, lēgātī ab hīs vērunt, quōrum haec fuit ōrātiō: Germānōs neque priōrēs populō Rōmānō bellum īferre, neque tamen recūsāre, sī lacesantur, quīn armīs conten- 25 dant, quod Germānōrum cōsuētūdō sit ā mājōribus trādita, quicumque bellum īferant, resistere neque dē-precārī. Haec tamen dicere, vēnisse invītōs, ējectōs domō; sī suam grātiām Rōmānī velint, posse eīs ūtilēs esse amīcōs; vel sibi agrōs attribuant vel patiantur eōs tenēre, quōs armīs possēderint: sēsē ūnīs Suēbīs con-5 cēdere, quibus nē deī quidem immortalēs parēs esse possent; reliquum quidem in terrīs esse nēminem, quem nōn superāre possint.

Caesar insists upon their immediate withdrawal from Gaul.

8. Ad haec Caesar, quae vīsum est, respondit; sed exitus fuit ōrātiōnis: Sibi nūllam cum hīs amicitiam 10 esse posse, sī in Galliā remanērent; neque vērū esse, quī suōs fīnēs tuērī nōn potuerint, aliēnōs occupāre; neque ūllōs in Galliā vacāre agrōs, quī darī tantae praesertim multitudinī sine injūriā possint; sed licēre, sī velint, in Ubiōrum finibus cōnsidere quōrum sint lēgātī 15 apud sē et dē Suēbōrum injūriīs querantur et ā sē auxilium petant; hōc sē Ubiīs imperātūrū.

9. Lēgātī haec sē ad suōs relātūrōs dīxērunt et rē dē-liberātā post diem tertium ad Caesarem reversūrōs; intereā nē propius sē castra movēret, petiērunt. Nē id 20 quidem Caesar ab sē impetrārī posse dīxit. Cognōverat enim, magnam partem equitātūs ab eīs aliquot diēbus ante praedandī frūmentandīque causā ad Ambivaritōs trāns Mosam missam; hōs exspectārī equitēs atque ejus rei causā moram interpōnī arbitrābātur.

Description of the Meuse and the Rhine.

25 10. Mosa prōfluit ex monte Vosegō, quī est in finibus Lingonum, et parte quādam ex Rhēnō receptā, quae appellātur Vacalus, insulam efficit Batāvōrum, neque longius ab eō milibus passuum LXXX in Ōceanum influit. Rhēnus autem oritur ex Lepontiīs, quī Alpēs incolunt, et longō spatiō per finēs Nantuātium, Helvētiōrum, Sēquanōrum, Mediomatricōrum, Tribocōrum, Trēverōrum citātus fertur et, ubi Ōceanō appropinquat, in plūrēs diffluit partēs 5 multīs ingentibusque insulīs effectīs, quārum pars magna ā ferīs barbarīsque nātiōnibus incolitur (ex quibus sunt, quī piscibus atque ōvīs avium vīvere exīstimantur), multīsque capitibus in Ōceanum influit.

Caesar consents to further negotiations.

11. Caesar cū ab hoste nōn amplius passuum XII 10 milibus abesset, ut erat cōstitutum, ad eum lēgātī revertuntur; quī in itinere congressī magnopere, nē longius prōgrederētur, ōrābant. Cum id nōn impetrāssent, petēbant, utī ad eōs equitēs, quī agmen antecessissent, prae-mitteret eōsque pugnā prohibēret, sibiue ut potestātem 15 faceret in Ubiōs lēgātōs mittendī; quōrum sī principēs ac senātus sibi jūre jūrandō fidem fēcisset, eā condiōne, quae ā Caesare ferrētur, sē ūsūrōs ostendēbant; ad hās rēs cōficiendās sibi trīduī spatium daret.

Haec omnia Caesar eōdem illō pertinēre arbitrābātur, 20 ut trīduī morā interpositā equitēs eōrum, quī abessent, reverterentur; tamen sēsē nōn longius milibus passuum quattuor aquātiōnis causā prōcessūrum eō diē dixit; hūc posterō diē quam frequentissimī convenirent, ut dē eōrum postulātīs cognōsceret. Interim ad praefectōs, 25 quī cum omnī equitātū antecesserant, mittit, quī nūntiārent, nē hostēs proeliō lacesserent et, sī ipsī lacesserentur, sustinērent, quoad ipse cum exercitū propius accessisset.

Meanwhile the Germans attack the Roman cavalry.

12. At hostēs, ubi primum nostrōs equitēs cōspexērunt, quōrum erat quīnque mīlium numerus, cum ipsī nōn amplius octingentōs equitēs habērent, quod eī, quī frūmentandī causā ierant trāns Mosam, nōndum redierant,
5 nihil timentibus nostrīs, quod lēgātī eōrum paulō ante ā Caesare discesserant atque is diēs indūtīs erat ab hīs petītus, impetū factō celeriter nostrōs perturbāverunt; rursus hīs resistentibus, cōsuētūdine suā ad pedēs dēsiluērunt, subfossisque equīs complūribusque nostrīs dē-
10 jectīs, reliquōs in fugam conjēcērunt atque ita perterritōs ēgērunt, ut nōn prius fugā dēsisterent, quam in cōspectum agminis nostrī vēnissent.

In eō proeliō ex equitibus nostrīs interficiuntur quatuor et septuāgintā, in hīs vir fortissimus, Pīsō Aquitānus, 15 amplissimō genere nātus, cūjus avus in civitāte suā regnum obtinuerat, amicus ā senātū nostrō appellātus. Hic cum frātrī interclūsō ab hostibus auxilium ferret, illum ex periculō ēripuit, ipse equō vulnerātō dējectus, quoad potuit, fortissimē restitit; cum circumventus, multīs 20 vulneribus acceptīs, cecidisset, atque id frāter, quī jam proeliō excesserat, procul animadvertisset, incitātō equō sē hostibus obtulit atque interfectus est.

Caesar breaks off further negotiations.

13. Hōc factō proeliō Caesar neque jam sibi lēgātōs audiendōs neque condiciōnēs accipiendās arbitrābātur ab
25 eīs quī per dolum atque insidiās, petītā pāce, ultrō bellum intulissent; exspectāre vērō, dum hostium cōpiae augērentur equitātusque reverterētur, summae dēmentiae esse iudicābat, et cognitā Gallōrum infirmitate, quantum jam apud eōs hostēs ūnō proeliō auctōritātis essent cōnsecūtī, sentiēbat; quibus ad cōsilia capiēda nihil spatī dandum exīstimābat.

Hīs cōstitūtīs rēbus et cōnsiliō cum lēgātīs et quaestōre cōmmunicātō, nē quem diem pugnae praetermitteret, 5 opportūnissima rēs accidit, quod postridiē ejus diēi māne eādē simulatiōne et perfidiā ūsī Germānī frequentēs, omnibus prīncipibus majōribusque nātū adhibitīs, ad eum in castra vērunt, simul, ut dicēbātur, sui pūrgandī causā, quod contrā atque esset dictum et ipsī 10 petissent, proelium prīdiē cōmmisissent, simul ut, sī quid possent, dē indūtiīs fallendō impetrārent. Quōs sibi Caesar oblātōs gāvīsus, illōs retinērī jussit; ipse omnēs cōpiās castrīs ēdūxit equitātumque, quod recentī proeliō perterritum esse exīstimābat, agmen subsequī 15 jussit.

He attacks and annihilates the German forces.

14. Acīē triplici īstitūtā et celeriter viii mīlium iti-nere cōfectō, prius ad hostium castra pervēnit quam, quid agerētur, Germānī sentīre possent. Quī omnibus rēbus subitō perterritī et celeritāte adventūs nostrī et dis- 20 cessū suōrum, neque cōnsilī habendī neque arma capiendī spatiō datō, perturbantur, cōpiāsne adversus hostem dūcere, an castra dēfendere, an fugā salūtem petere prae-stāret. Quōrum timor cum fremitū et concursū signifi-cārētur, mīlites nostrī prīstinī diēi perfidiā incitātī in 25 castra irrūpērunt. Quō locō, quī celeriter arma capere potuērunt, paulisper nostrīs restitērunt atque inter carrōs impedimentaue proelium cōmmisērunt; at reliqua multitūdō puerōrum mulierumque (nam cum omnibus suīs domō excesserant Rhēnumque trānsierant) passim 30 fugere coepit; ad quōs cōsectandōs Caesar equitātum mīsit.

15. Germānī, post tergum clāmōre audītō, cum suōs interficī vidērent, armīs abjectīs signisque militāribus
 5 relictīs sē ex castrīs ējēcērunt, et cum ad cōfluentem Mosae et Rhēnī pervēnissent, reliquā fugā dēspērātā, magnō numerō interfectō, reliquī sē in flūmen praecipitāvērunt atque ibi timōre, lassitudine, vī flūminis oppressī periērunt. Nostrī ad ūnum omnēs incolumēs, perpaucīs
 10 vulnerātīs, ex tantī bellī timōre, cum hostium numerus capitum cccxxx mīlium fuisset, sē in castra recēpērunt. Caesar eīs, quōs in castrīs retinuerat, discēdendī potestātem fēcit. Illī supplicia cruciātūsque Gallōrum veritī, quōrum agrōs vexāverant, remanēre sē apud eum velle 15 dīxērunt. Hīs Caesar libertātem concessit.

CHAPTERS 16-19. — THE EXPEDITION INTO GERMANY.

Caesar resolves upon an expedition into Germany.

16. Germānicō bellō cōfectō, multīs dē causīs Caesar statuit sibi Rhēnum esse trānseundum; quārum illa fuit iustissima, quod, cum vidēret Germānōs tam facile impellī, ut in Galliam venīrent, suīs quoque rēbus eōs 20 timēre voluit, cum intellegent, et posse et audēre populī Rōmānī exercitum Rhēnum trānsīre. Accessit etiam, quod illa pars equitātūs Usipetum et Tencterōrum, quam suprā commemorāvī praedandī frūmentandīque causā Mosam trānsisse neque proeliō interfuisse, post fugam
 25 suōrum sē trāns Rhēnum in finēs Sugambrōrum recēperat sēque cum eīs conjūxerat. Ad quōs cum Caesar nūntiōs mīsisset, quī postulārent, eōs, quī sibi Galliaeque bellum intulissent, sibi dēderent, respondērunt: Populī

Rōmānī imperium Rhēnum finīre; sī sē invītō Germānōs in Galliam trānsīre nōn aequum exīstimāret, cūr suī quicquam esse imperī aut potestātis trāns Rhēnum postulāret?

Ubiī autem, quī ūnī ex Trānsrhēnānīs ad Caesarem 5 lēgātōs mīserant, amīcitiā fēcerant, obsidēs dederant, magnopere ōrābant, ut sibi auxilium ferret, quod graviter ab Suēbīs premerentur; vel, sī id facere occupātiōnibus rei pūblicae prohibērētur, exercitum modo Rhēnum trānsportāret; id sibi ad auxilium spemque reliquī temporis 10 satis futūrum. Tantum esse nōmen atque opīniōnem ejus exercitūs, Ariovistō pulsō et hōc novissimō proeliō factō, etiam ad ultimās Germānōrum nātiōnēs, utī opīniōne et amīcitiā populī Rōmānī tūtī esse possint. Nāvium magnam cōpiam ad trānsportandum exercitum 15 pollicēbantur.

He bridges the Rhine.

17. Caesar hīs dē causīs, quās commemorāvi, Rhēnum trānsīre dēcrēverat; sed nāvibus trānsīre neque satis tūtum esse arbitrābātur, neque suae neque populī Rōmānī dignitātis esse statuēbat. Itaque, etsī summa diffi- 20 cultās faciendī pontis prōpōnēbātur propter lātitudinem, rapiditātem altitudinemque flūminis, tamen id sibi contendendum aut aliter nōn trādūcendum exercitum exīstimābat.

Ratiōnem pontis hanc instituit. Tigna bīna sēsquipes 25 dālīa paulum ab imō praeacūta, dīmēnsa ad altitudinem flūminis, intervāllō pedum duōrum inter sē jungēbat. Haec cum māchinātiōnibus immissa in flūmen dēfixerat festūcisque adēgerat, nōn sublicae modō dērēctē ad perpendiculum, sed prōnē ac fastigātē, ut secundum nātū- 30 ram flūminis prōcumberent, hīs item contrāria duo ad eundem modum jūcta, intervāllō pedum quadrāgēnum ab inferiōre parte contrā vim atque impetum flūminis conversa statuēbat. Haec utraque insuper bipedālibus

 3 trabibus immissīs, quantum eōrum tignōrum jūctūra distābat, bīnīs utrimque fibulīs ab extrēmā parte distinēbantur; quibus disclūsīs atque in contrāriam partem revinctīs, tanta erat operis firmitūdō atque ea rērum nātūra, ut, quō major vīs aquae sē incitāvisset, hōc artius
 10 illigāta tenērentur. Haec dērēctā māteriā injectā contextēbantur ac longuriīs crātibusque cōnsternēbantur; ac nihilō sētius sublicae et ad inferiōrem partem flūminis oblīquē agēbantur, quae prō ariete subjectae et cum omnī opere conjūctae vim flūminis exciperent, et aliae item 15 suprā pontem mediocrī spatiō, ut, sī arborum truncī sive nāvēs dēiciendī causā operis essent ā barbarīs missae, hīs dēfēnsōribus eārum rērum vīs minuerētur, neu pontī nocērent.

Some of the German tribes sue for peace. The Sugambri flee.

18. Diēbus decem, quibus māteria coepta erat com-
 20 portārī, omnī opere effectō, exercitus trādūcitur. Caesar, ad utramque partem pontis firmō praesidiō relictō, in finēs Sugambrōrum contendit. Interim ā complūribus cīvitātibus ad eum lēgātī veniunt; quibus pācem atque amīcitiam petentibus liberāliter respondet obsidēsque ad 25 sē addūcī jubet. At Sugambrī ex eō tempore, quō pōns institui coeptus est, fugā comparātā hortantibus eīs, quōs ex Tencterīs atque Usipetibus apud sē habēbant, finibus suis excesserant suaque omnia exportāverant sēque in solitūdinem ac silvās abdiderant.

Caesar lays waste the territory of the Sugambri and returns to Gaul.

19. Caesar paucōs diēs in eōrum finibus morātus, omnibus vicīs aedificiisque incēnsīs frūmentisque succīs, sē in finēs Ubiōrum recēpit atque hīs auxilium suum pollicitus, sī ab Suēbīs premerentur, haec ab eīs cognōvit: Suēbōs, posteaquam per explorātōrēs pontem fieri compe-rissent, mōre suō conciliō habitō nūntiōs in omnēs partēs dīmisisse, utī dē oppidīs dēmigrārent, liberōs, uxōrēs suaque omnia in silvīs dēpōnerent atque omnēs, quī arma ferre possent, ūnum in locum convenirent; hunc esse dē-lēctum medium ferē regiōnum eārum, quās Suēbī obtinērent; hīc Rōmānōrum adventum exspectāre atque ibi dēcertāre cōstituisse.

Quod ubi Caesar comperit, omnibus eīs rēbus cōfectis, quārum rērum causā trādūcere exercitum cōstituerat, ut Germānis metum iniceret, ut Sugambrōs ulcisceretur, 15 ut Ubiōs obsidiōne liberāret, diēbus omnīnō XVIII trāns Rhēnum cōsūmptīs, satis et ad laudem et ad ūtilitatem prōfectum arbitrātus, sē in Galliam recēpit pontemque rescidit.

bellum gerendum dēficeret, tamen magnō sibi ūsuī fore 25
arbitrābātur, sī modo insulam adisset, genus hominum perspexisset, loca, portūs, aditūs cognōvisset; quae omnia ferē Gallīs erant incognita. Neque enim temere praeter mercātōrēs illō adit quisquam, neque eīs ipsīs quicquam praeter ōram maritimam atque eās regiōnēs, quae sunt

 5 contrā Galliās, nōtum est. Itaque vocātīs ad sē undique mercātōribus, neque quanta esset īnsulae magnitūdō, neque quae aut quantae nātiōnēs incolerent, neque quem ūsum bellī habērent aut quibus īstitutīs ūterentur, neque quī essent ad majōrem nāvium multitudīnem idōneī 10 portūs, reperīre poterat.

The Britons send assurances of friendship.

21. Ad haec cognōscenda, priusquam perīculum faceret, idōneum esse arbitrātus Gāium Volusēnum cum nāvī longā praemittit. Huic mandat, ut, explorātīs omnibus rēbus, ad sē quam primum revertātur. Ipse cum omnibus 15 cōpiīs in Morinōs proficīscitur, quod inde erat brevissimus in Britanniam trājectus. Hūc nāvēs undique ex finitimīs regiōnibus et, quam superiōre aestāte ad Veneticum bellum effēcerat classem, jubet convenīre.

Interim cōsiliō ejus cognitō et per mercātōrēs perlātō
 20 ad Britannōs, ā complūribus ejus īnsulae cīvitatibus ad eum lēgātī veniunt, quī polliceantur obsidēs dare atque imperiō populī Rōmānī obtemperāre. Quibus auditīs, liberāliter pollicitus hortātusque, ut in eā sententiā permanērent, eōs domum remittit et cum eīs ūnā Commium, 25 quem ipse Atrebātibus superātīs rēgem ibi cōstituerat, cūjus et virtūtem et cōsiliū probābat et quem sibi fidēlem esse arbitrābātur cūjusque auctōritās in hīs regiōnibus magnī habēbātur, mittit. Huic imperat, quās possit, adeat cīvitatēs hortēturque, ut populī Rōmānī 30 fidem sequantur, sēque celeriter eō ventūrum nūntiet.

Volusēnus, perspectis regiōnibus omnibus, quantum ei facultātis dari potuit, quī nāvi ēgredi ac sē barbaris committere nōn auderet, quīntō diē ad Caesarem revertitur, quaeque ibi perspexisset, renūnciat.

The Morini apologize for their hostile attitude of the year before.

22. Dum in hīs locīs Caesar nāvium parandārum 5 causā morātur, ex magnā parte Morinōrum ad eum lēgātī vērunt, quī sē dē superiōris temporis cōsiliō excūsā-rent, quod hominēs barbarī et nostrae cōsuētūdinis imperitī bellum populō Rōmānō fēcissent, sēque ea, quae imperāset, factūrōs pollicērentur. Hōc sibi Caesar satis 10 opportūnē accidisse arbitrātus, quod neque post tergum hostem relinquere volēbat neque bellī gerendī propter annī tempus facultātem habēbat neque hās tantulārum rērum occupātiōnēs sibi Britanniae antepōnendās iudicābat, magnum eīs numerum obsidum imperat. Quibus 15 adductis eōs in fidem recēpit.

Rendezvous of the fleet.

Nāvibus circiter LXXX onerāriīs coāctis, quot satis esse ad duās transportandās legiōnēs existimābat, quod praetereā nāvium longārum habēbat, quaestōrī, lēgātis praefec-tisque distribuit. Hūc accēdebant XVIII onerāriae nāvēs, 20 quae ex eō locō ā milibus passuum VIII ventō tenēbantur, quōminus in eundem portum venīre possent; hās equitibus distribuit. Reliquum exercitum Q. Tituriō Sabīnō et L. Aurunculeiō Cottae lēgātis in Menapiōs atque in eōs pāgōs Morinōrum, ā quibus ad eum lēgātī nōn vēne- 25 rant, dūcendum dedit; P. Sulpicium Rūfūm lēgātū cum eō praesidiō, quod satis esse arbitrābātur, portum tenēre iussit.

The expedition sails.

23. Hīs cōstitūtīs rēbus, nactus idōneam ad nāvigandum tempestātem tertiā ferē vigiliā nāvēs solvit equitēsque in ulteriōrem portum prōgredi et nāvēs cōnscendere et sē sequī jussit. Ā quibus cum paulō tardius esset ad-
 5 ministrātum, ipse hōrā diēi circiter quārtā cum primīs nāvibus Britanniam attigit atque ibi in omnibus collibus expositās hostium cōpiās armātās cōspexit. Cūjus locī haec erat nātūra, atque ita montibus angustē mare continēbātur, utī ex locīs superiōribus in lītus tēlum adigī
 10 posset. Hunc ad ēgrediendum nēquāquam idōneum locum arbitrātus, dum reliquae nāvēs eō convenīrent, ad hōram nōnam in ancorīs exspectāvit.

Interim lēgātīs tribūnisque mīlitum convocātīs, et quae ex Volusēnō cognōvisset, et quae fierī vellet, ostendit mo-
 15 nuitque (ut rei mīlitāris ratiō, maximēque ut maritimae rēs postulārent, ut quae celerem atque instabilem mōtum habērent), ad nūtum et ad tempus omnēs rēs ab eīs administrārentur. Hīs dīmissīs et ventum et aestum ūnō tempore nactus secundum, datō signō et sublātīs ancorīs 20 circiter mīlia passuum septem ab eō locō prōgressus, apertō ac plānō lītore nāvēs cōstituit.

The Britons oppose the disembarkation of the Romans.

24. At barbarī, cōsiliō Rōmānōrum cognitō, prae-missō equitātū et essedāriīs, quō plērumque genere in proeliīs utī cōsuērunt, reliquīs cōpiīs subsecūtī nostrōs 25 nāvibus ēgredi prohibēbant. Erat ob hās causās summa difficultās, quod nāvēs propter magnitudinem nisi in altō cōstitui nōn poterant, mīlitibus autem, ignōtīs locīs, impedītīs manibus, magnō et gravī onere armōrum oppressīs simul et dē nāvibus dēsiliendum et in flūctibus cōnsisten-dum et cum hostibus erat pugnandum, cum illī aut ex āridō aut paulum in aquam prōgressī, omnibus membrīs expeditīs, nōtissimīs locīs, audācter tēla conicerent et equōs insuēfactōs incitārent. Quibus rēbus nostrī perterritī atque hūjus omnīnō generis pugnae imperitī nōn 5 eādē alacritātē ac studiō, quō in pedestribus utī proeliīs cōsuērant, utēbantur.

Caesar forces a landing.

25. Quod ubi Caesar animadvertit, nāvēs longās, quārum et speciēs erat barbarīs inūsitatior et mōtus ad ūsum expeditior, paulum removērī ab onerariīs nāvibus et 10 rēmīs incitārī et ad latus apertum hostium cōstituī atque inde fundīs, sagittīs, tormentīs hostēs prōpellī ac summovērī jussit; quae rēs magnō ūsuī nostrīs fuit. Nam et nāvium figurā et rēmōrum mōtū et inūsitatō genere tormentōrum permōtī barbarī cōstitērunt ac paulum modo 15 pedem rettulērunt. Atque nostrīs militibus cunctantibus, maximē propter altitudinem maris, quī decimae legiōnis aquilam ferēbat, obtestātus deōs, ut ea rēs legiōnī fēliciter ēvenīret, “Dēsilīte,” inquit, “commilitōnēs, nisi vultis aquilam hostibus prōdere; ego certē meum rei pūblicae 20 atque imperātōrī officiū praestiterō.” Hōc cum vōce magnā dixisset, sē ex nāvī prōjēcit atque in hostēs aquilam ferre coepit. Tum nostrī cohortātī inter sē, nē tantum dēdecus admitterētur, ūniversī ex nāvī dēsiluērunt. Hōs item ex proximīs nāvibus cum cōspexissent, sub- 25 secūtī hostibus appropinquārunt.

The Britons are defeated and submit.

26. Pugnātum est ab utrīsque ācriter. Nostrī tamen, quod neque ōrdinēs servāre neque firmiter insistere neque signa subsequi poterant, atque alius aliā ex nāvī, quibuscumque signis occurrerat, sē aggregābat, magnopere per-turbābantur; hostēs vērō, nōtis omnibus vadis, ubi ex litore aliquos singulārēs ex nāvī ēgredientēs cōspexerant, 5 incitātis equis impeditōs adoriēbantur, plūrēs paucōs circumsistēbant, aliī ab latere apertō in ūniversōs tēla conciēbant. Quod cum animadvertisset Caesar, scaphās longārum nāvium, item speculātōria nāvigia militibus complēri iussit et, quos labōrantēs cōspexerat, hīs sub-10 sidia summittēbat. Nostrī, simul in āridō cōstitērunt, suīs omnibus cōsecūtīs in hostēs impetum fēcērunt atque eōs in fugam dedērunt; neque longius prōsequi potuērunt, quod equitēs cursum tenēre atque insulam capere nōn potuerant. Hōc ūnum ad pristinam fortūnam Caesarī 15 dēfuit.

27. Hostēs proeliō superātī, simul atque sē ex fugā recēperunt, statim ad Caesarem lēgātōs dē pāce mīsērunt; obsidēs datūrōs, quaeque imperāssēt, esse factūrōs pollicitī sunt. Ūnā cum hīs lēgātīs Commius Atrebās vēnit, 20 quem suprā dēmōnstrāveram ā Caesare in Britanniam praemissum. Hunc illi ē nāvī ēgressum, cum ad eōs ōrātōris modō Caesaris mandāta dēferret, comprehenderant atque in vincula conjēcērant; tum proeliō factō remisērunt et in petendā pāce ejus rei culpam in multitudinem 25 contulērunt et, propter imprudentiam ut ignōscerētur, petīvērunt.

Caesar questus, quod, cum ultrō in continentem lēgātīs missīs pācem ab sē petīssēt, bellum sine causā intulissent, ignōscere imprudentiae dixit obsidēsque imperāvit; 30 quōrum illi partem statim dedērunt, partem ex longin-quiōribus locis arcessītā paucīs diēbus sēsē datūrōs dixērunt. Intereā suōs remigrāre in agrōs iussērunt, principēsque undique convenīre et sē cīvitatēsque suās Caesarī commendāre coepērunt.

The cavalry transports are prevented by a storm from landing.

28. His rēbus pāce cōfirmātā, post diem quārtum quam est in Britanniam ventum, nāvēs XVIII, dē quibus suprā dēmōstrātum est, quae equitēs sustulerant, ex 5 superiōrē portū lēnī ventō solvērunt. Quae cum appro-pinquārent Britanniae et ex castrīs vidērentur, tanta tempestās subitō coorta est, ut nūlla eārum cursum tenēre posset, sed aliae eōdem, unde erant profectae, referrentur, aliae ad inferiōrem partem insulae, quae est 10 propius sōlis occāsum, magnō suō cum periculō dēiceren-tur; quae tamen ancorīs jactīs cum flūctibus complērentur, necessariō adversā nocte in altum prōvectae continentem petiērunt.

A high tide damages Caesar's fleet.

29. Eādem nocte accidit, ut esset lūna plēna, quī diēs 15 maritimōs aestūs maximōs in Ōceanō efficere cōsuēvit, nostrisque id erat incognitum. Ita tūc tempore et longās nāvēs, quibus Caesar exercitum trānsportandum cūrāve-rat, quāsque in aridum subdūxerat, aestus complēbat et onerāriās, quae ad ancorās erant dēligatae, tempestās 20 afflictābat, neque ūlla nostrīs facultās aut administrandī aut auxiliandī dabātur. Complūribus nāvibus frāctīs, reliquae cum essent, fūnibus, ancorīs reliquisque armāmentīs āmissīs, ad nāvigandum inūtīlēs, magna, id quod necesse erat accidere, tōtīus exercitūs perturbātiō facta 25
est. Neque enim nāvēs erant aliae, quibus reportārī possent, et omnia deerant, quae ad reficiendās nāvēs erant ūsuī, et, quod omnibus cōnstābat, hiemārī in Galliā oportere, frumentum in his locis in hiemem provisum non erat.

The Britons assume a hostile attitude.

30. Quibus rebus cognitis principes Britanniae, qui post proelium ad Caesarem convenerant, inter se collocati, cum et equites et naves et frumentum Romanis deesse intellexerent et paucitatem militum ex castrorum exiguitate cognoscerent, quae hoc erant etiam angustiora, quod sine impedimentis Caesar legiones transportaverat, optimum factum esse duxerunt, rebellionem factam, frumento commeatuque nostros prohibere et rem in hiemem producere, quod his superatis aut redditu interclusis neminem postea belli inferendi causam in Britanniam transiturum confidebant. Itaque rursus, conjuratione facta, paulatim ex castris discedere et suos clam ex agris deducere coeperunt.

Caesar meanwhile repairs his fleet.

15 31. At Caesar, etsi nondum eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen et ex eventu navium suarum et ex eo, quod obsides dare intermiserant, fore id, quod accidit, suspicabatur. Itaque ad omnes casus subsidia comparabat. Nam et frumentum ex agris cotidie in castra conferbat et, quae 20 gravissimae afflictae erant naves, earum materiam atque aere ad reliquas reficiendas utebatur et, quae ad eas res erant usui, ex continenti comparari jubebat. Itaque, cum summo studio a militibus administraretur, XII navibus amissis, reliquis ut navigari satis commodum posset, effecit.

The Britons attack the seventh legion in the grain fields.

25 32. Dum ea geruntur, legione ex consuetudine una frumentatum missa, quae appellabatur septima, neque ulla ad id tempus belli suspitione interposita, cum pars hominum in agrīs remanēret, pars etiam in castra ventitāret, eī, quī prō portīs castrōrum in stationē erant, Caesarī nūntiāverunt, pulverem majōrem, quam cōsuetūdō ferret, in eā parte vidērī, quam in partem legiō iter fēcisset. Caesar id, quod erat, suspicātus, aliquid novī ā 5 barbarīs initum cōsiliī, cohortēs, quae in stationibus erant, sēcum in eam partem proficiscī, ex reliquīs duās in stationem cohortēs succēdere, reliquās armārī et cōfestim sēsē subsequī jussit.

Cum paulō longius ā castrīs prōcessisset, suōs ab hostibus premi atque aegrē sustinēre et cōnfertā legiōne ex omnibus partibus tēla conici animadvertit. Nam quod, omni ex reliquīs partibus dēmesso frūmentō, pars ūna erat reliqua, suspicātī hostēs, hūc nostrōs esse ventūrōs, noctū in silvīs dēlituerant; tum dispersōs dēpositīs armīs 15 in metendō occupātōs subitō adortī, paucīs interfectīs reliquōs incertīs ordinibus perturbāverant, simul equitatū atque essedīs circumdederant.

Chariot fighting of the Britons.

33. Genus hōc est ex essedīs pugnae. Prīmō per omnēs partēs, perequant et tēla coniciunt atque ipsō 20 terrōre equōrum et strepitū rotārum ordinēs plērumque perturbant, et cum sē inter equitum turmās insinuāvērunt, ex essedīs dēsiliunt et pedibus proeliantur. Aurīgae interim paulātīm ex proeliō excēdunt atque ita currūs collocant, ut, sī illi ā multitudine hostium premantur, 25 expeditū ad suōs receptum habeant. Ita mōbilitātem equitum, stabilitātem peditum in proeliīs praestant ac tantum ūsū cotīdiānō et exercitātiōne efficiunt, utī in dēclivī ac praecipiti locō incitātōs equōs sustinēre et brevī moderārī ac flectere et per tēmōnem percurrere 30 et in jugō insistere et sē inde in currūs citissimē recipere cōnsuērint.

The Britons are defeated and sue for peace. Caesar returns to Gaul.

34. Quibus rēbus perturbātis nostrīs novitāte pugnae tempore opportūnissimō Caesar auxilium tulit; namque 5 ejus adventū hostēs cōstitērunt, nostrī sē ex timōre recēpērunt. Quō factō ad lacessendum hostem et ad committendum proelium aliēnum esse tempus arbitrātus, suō sē locō continuit et brevī tempore intermissō in castra legiōnēs redūxit. Dum haec geruntur, nostrīs omni-10 bus occupātis, quī erant in agrīs reliquī, discessērunt. Secūtae sunt continuōs complūrēs diēs tempestātēs, quae et nostrōs in castrīs continērent et hostem ā pugnā prohibērent. Interim barbarī nūntiōs in omnēs partēs dīmī-sērunt paucitātemque nostrōrum militum suis praedicā-15 vērunt et, quanta praedae faciendae atque in perpetuum suī liberandī facultās darētur, sī Rōmānōs castrīs expul-lissent, dēmōstrāvērunt. Hīs rēbus celeriter magnā multitudīne peditātūs equitātūsque coāctā, ad castra vērunt.

20 35. Caesar, etsī idem, quod superiōribus diēbus ac-ciderat, fore vidēbat, ut, sī essent hostēs pulsī, celeritāte periculum effugerent, tamen nactus equitēs circiter xxx, quōs Commius Atrebās, dē quō ante dictum est, sēcum transportāverat, legiōnēs in aciē prō castrīs cōstituit.
25 Commissō proeliō diūtius nostrōrum militum impetum hostēs ferre nōn potuērunt ac terga vertērunt. Quōs tantō spatiō secūtī, quantum cursū et vīribus efficere potuērunt, complūrēs ex eis occidērunt, deinde, omnibus longē lātēque aedificiīs incēnsīs, sē in castra recēpērunt.

36. Eōdem diē lēgātī ab hostibus missī ad Caesarem dē pāce vērērunt. His Caesar numerum obsidum, quem ante imperāverat, duplicāvit eōsque in continentem addūcī jussit, quod propinquā diē aequinoctī infirmīs nāvibus hiemī nāvigationem subiciendam nōn exīstimābat. 5 Ipse idōneam tempestātem nactus paulō post mediam noctem nāvēs solvit; quae omnēs incolumēs ad continentem pervērērunt; sed ex eīs onerāriae duae eōsdem portūs, quōs reliquae, capere nōn potuerunt, et paulō infā delātae sunt. 10

CHAPTERS 37, 38. — THE REBELLION OF THE MORINI.

The Morini attack a small body of Romans as they disembark.

37. Quibus ex nāvibus cum essent expositī mīlitēs circiter trecentī atque in castra contenderent, Morinī, quōs Caesar in Britanniam proficiscēns pācatōs reliquerat, spē praedae adductī prīmō nōn ita magnō suōrum numerō circumsteterunt ac, sī sēsē interficī nōllent, arma 15 pōnere jussērunt. Cum illī orbe factō sēsē dēfenderent, celeriter ad clāmōrem hominum circiter milia sex convērērunt. Quā rē nūntiātā Caesar omnem ex castrīs equitātum suis auxiliō mīsīt. Interim nostrī mīlitēs impetum hostium sustinuerunt atque amplius hōrīs quatuor fortissimē pugnāvērunt et paucīs vulneribus acceptīs complūrēs ex hīs occiderunt. Postea vērō quam equitātus noster in cōspectum vēnit, hostēs abjectīs armīs terga vertērunt magnusque eōrum numerus est occīsus. 20

The Morini fall into the hands of Labienus.

38. Caesar posterō diē Titum Labiēnum lēgātum cum 25 eīs legiōnibus, quās ex Britannia redūxerat, in Morinōs, quī rebelliōnem fēcerant, mīsit. Quī cum propter siccitātēs palūdum, quō sē reciperent, nōn habērent, quō perfugiō superiōre annō fuerant ūsī, omnēs ferē in potestatem Labiēnī pervēnērunt. At Q. Titūrius et L. Cotta

5 lēgātī, quī in Menapiōrum finēs legiōnēs dūxerant, omnibus eōrum agrīs vāstātīs, frūmentīs succīsīs aedificiīsque incēnsīs, quod Menapii sē omnēs in dēnsissimās silvās abdiderant, sē ad Caesarem recēpērunt.

The Roman army goes into winter quarters. Thanksgiving at Rome.

Caesar in Belgīs omnium legiōnum hiberna cōstituit.
10 Eō duae omnīnō cīvitātēs ex Britannīā obsidēs mīserunt, reliquae neglēxērunt.

Hīs rēbus gestīs, ex litterīs Caesaris diērum vīginti supplicātiō ā senātū dēcrēta est.

BOOK I.

Page 1, LINE 1. Gallia omnis: Gaul as a whole, or better, Gaul in the wide sense, as opposed to the narrow sense of Gallia, which embraces merely the country between the Seine and Garonne rivers. 'Gaul in the wide sense' is Farther Gaul (Gallia ulterior), i.e. Gaul beyond the Alps. There was also a Hither Gaul (Gallia citerior), lying south of the Alps in what is now northern Italy. Farther Gaul, the scene of the events described in this volume, was roughly identical with modern France, but extended somewhat farther north and east, as Caesar himself tells us later on in this chapter. Note the special emphasis on omnis, as indicated by its position after its noun ; omnis regularly precedes the noun it limits. est divisa: is divided ; divisa is here a participial adjective used predicatively ; B. 337, 2 ; A. 495 ; G. 250, R. 2 ; H. 640, 3. partes tres: in most Latin writers cardinal numerals precede their nouns, but Caesar usually places the cardinal after the noun. quarum: Genitive of the Whole ; B. 201, 1 ; A. 346, a, 1 ; G. 367 ; H. 442.

2. unam, aliam, tertiam: understand partem with each of these words. The literal translation of the relative clause is: of which the Belgæ inhabit one, the Aquitani another, the third, those who in their own language, etc. But this is somewhat awkward, and it is better to render: of which one is inhabited by the Belgæ, another by the Aquitani, the third by those who in their own language, etc. In general, the pupil may follow this rule: Never translate literally unless the Latin idiom conforms to the English. Very frequently the idioms of the two languages differ, and then it is necessary to reproduce the Latin thought in fitting English form. Always remember, however, that the key to the construction of the Latin words is to be sought not in the free English rendering, but in a literal translation. Thus here unam (partem), aliam (partem), tertiam (partem) are the objects of incolunt, and Belgae, Aquitani, are its subjects. Belgae, Aquitani: as regards Latin proper names, usage sanctions only one pronunciation, viz. the English, with the accent on the same syllable as in the Latin word. Thus the words Belgae, Aquitani, are to be pronounced Bêl-jee, Āk-wi-tā-nī. Another method of dealing with these proper names is to convert them into English forms, as: Belgians, Aquitanians, etc. But this is admissible only in case of proper names of frequent occurrence, such as those just cited. In the case of most it is best to keep the Latin form with the English pronunciation. qui: the antecedent of qui is ei ('those') to be supplied in thought. This ei, like Belgae and Aquitani, is one of the subjects of incolunt. ipsorum lingua: in their own language; literally, in the language of themselves; lingua is an Ablative of Accordance; B. 220, 3; A. 418, a and n.; G. 399, n. 1; H. 475, 3.

3. Celtae, Galli: these words are predicate nominatives. They are the predicates of qui, the subject of appellantur. Verbs of calling very frequently take this construction; B. 168, 2, b; A. 284; G. 256; H. 393, 8. Note that Galli, as applied to the inhabitants of the central division of Gaul, is used in the narrow sense of the term, just as Gallia in the narrow sense applies to the central division itself. nostra: understand lingua, in the same construction as lingua before Celtae.

4. lingua, institutis, legibus: in (literally, in respect to) language, institutions, (and) laws; Ablative of Specification; B. 226; A. 418; G. 397; H. 480, 3. In enumerations the Latin form of expression is more varied than the English. In English we regularly say 'language, institutions, and laws'; but in Latin it is very common to omit the connective between all the members of the series, as here, — language, institutions, laws. Other Latin forms of expression in such series are to insert et between all the objects enumerated (for example, lingua et institutis et legibus), or to use -que joined to the last member of the series (for example, lingua, institutis, legibusque). But the Romans carefully avoided using et to connect the last two words of such enumerations (unless, as explained, et was used with all the members of the series); B. 341, 4, a; A. 323, c; G. 474, n.; H. 657, 6. inter se: from each other; literally, among, or between, themselves. In such expressions se is a reciprocal pronoun.

5. Matrona et Sequana dividit: although the subject is compound, the verb is singular, since the compound subject is thought of as a whole, the Seine being a continuation of the Marne; B. 255, 3; A. 317, b; G. 285, 2; H. 392, 4.

7. horum omnium: Genitive of the Whole; B. 201, 1; A. 346, a, 2; G. 367; H. 442. propterea quod: because; literally, on account of this, (namely) that.

8. cultu atque humanitate: civilization and refinement. provinciae: of the Province. The Province was an extensive district in southeastern France, which had been subdued by the Romans and organized as a province in 120 B.C., some sixty odd years before the events soon to be narrated. It was later called Gallia Narbonensis, from Narbo, its capital. The old Roman name provincia survives in the modern name of this district, Provence.

9. minimeque . . . commeant: the second reason for the sturdiness of the Belgae. In translating this clause it is advisable to bring out its relationship by repeating the conjunction 'because.' minime saepe: very rarely; literally, least often. mercatores: these traders came from such southern marts as Massilia (Marseilles).

10. ea: those (things). ad effeminandos animos: toward weakening the character, or, to weaken the character. The pupil, however, should note that in the Latin animos is governed by ad, while effeminandos limits animos; literally, therefore, to the character being weakened. English has no idiom directly corresponding to this Latin gerundive construction; B. 338, 3, 339, 2; A. 506; G. 427; H. 628. Note that the Latin has the plural animos, where the English naturally uses the singular. Where a distinct reference to several things is involved, the Latin is often more exact than the English, and employs the plural; so here; B. 353, 1.

11. proximique sunt, etc.: the third reason for the superior bravery of the Belgae. Germanis: the dative depends on proximi; B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434, 2.

12. quibuscum: i.e. cum quibus; cum is often thus appended to relative pronouns; B. 142, 4; A. 150, d; G. 413, r.; H. 182, 2. qua de causa: and for this reason; literally, from which reason. Notice that Latin favors the use of the relative at the beginning of the sentence where in English we naturally employ a demonstrative (often with a conjunction), i.e. Latin which, who = English and this, but this, and he, but he, etc.; B. 251, 6; A. 308, f and n.; G. 610; H. 510. Prepositions are often thus placed between the noun and the adjective limiting it.

13. Helvetii quoque: i.e. the Helvetians too, as well as the Belgae; note that quoque always stands immediately after the word it emphasizes. reliquos Gallos: the Helvetii are reckoned by Caesar as Gauls. This is substantially correct. They probably belonged to the great Celtic race. virtute: Ablative of Specification, like lingua above in line 4; B. 226; A. 418; G. 397; H. 480.

14. proeliis: in battle; but the ablative is one of Means; B. 218, 7.

15. suis finibus: from their own borders or territory; note that the possessive when emphatic regularly stands before its noun; B. 243, 1, a; H. 675; finibus is Ablative of Separation; B. 214, 2; A. 400; G. 390, 2; H. 464, 1. prohibent, gerunt: as subject understand in thought ei, referring to the Helvetii; eos and eorum refer to the Germans.

17. eorum una pars: one district of this land; literally, of them; eorum properly refers to the inhabitants, but Caesar loosely uses it as referring to the country itself. quam . . . dictum est: (namely the one) which it has been stated that the Gauls occupy; literally, the Gauls to occupy which, has been stated. Gallos is the subject accusative of the infinitive obtinere, quam the object, while obtinere is the subject of the impersonal dictum est; B. 330; A. 561 and a, 566, b; G. 528; H. 615. Note that Caesar is here using Gallos in the narrower sense of the inhabitants of the central division of Gaul. This is his regular use of the term.

18. a flumine Rhodano: at the River Rhone; literally, from the River Rhone; but the Romans were very apt to speak of the place from which a thing presented itself to the eye of the observer or the mind of the speaker, instead of mentioning the spot where a thing was. Caesar says that this district begins at the Rhone; as may be seen from the map, the Rhone also forms a part of its eastern boundary.

19. Oceano: i.e. the Bay of Biscay on the west, and the English Channel on the north. The words flumine, Oceano, finibus, are without a conjunction, like lingua, institutis, legibus, above in line 4. ab Sequanis et Helvetiis: on the side of the Sequani and Helvetii, i.e. on the east; literally, from the Sequani, etc.; another instance of the idiom mentioned in connection with a flumine Rhodano.

Page 2. 1. flumen Rhenum: the Rhine forms the eastern boundary of Gaul for several hundred miles. Where flumen is combined with river names, the name sometimes precedes (for example, Garumna flumine, p. 1, line 18), sometimes follows (for example, flumine Rhodano, p. 1, line 18), but the Romans always said flumen Rhenus. vergit ad septentriones: i.e. the general direction in which the country extends is toward the north; the 'long way,' as we call it, ran north and south; septentriones literally means 'the seven plough-oxen,' the name given by the Romans to the seven stars which we call the 'dipper' in the constellation of the Great Bear.

2. ab . . . finibus: at the outermost borders, namely, in the north. Galliae: here in the narrow sense of the central division of Gaul, not in the wide sense occurring at the very opening of this chapter.

3. pertinent ad inferiorem partem, etc.: i.e. the Belgae inhabited a small part of modern Holland.

4. in septentrionem et orientem solem: by saying 'toward the north and east,' Caesar means the northeast; i.e. the general direction in which the country extends (the 'long way') is northeast (and southwest). Note the peculiar singular form, septentrionem.

5. eam partem Oceani, etc.: namely, the Bay of Biscay.

6. ad Hispaniam: ad here means near. inter occasum solis et septentriones: Caesar evidently means toward the northwest, i.e. the general direction in which the country extends (the 'long way') is northwest (and southeast).

9. Orgetorix: pronounce Or-jét-o-rix. M. Messala, M. Pisone consulibus: in the consulship of Marcus Messala and Marcus Piso; Ablative Absolute; B. 227, 1; A. 419, a; G. 410; H. 489. The Romans dated events by the annual consulships. Messala and Piso were consuls in 61 B.C., three years before Caesar began his campaigns against the Gauls. In expressions of this kind the names of the consuls follow each other without connective; we, of course, must insert and in English; B. 346, a; G. 474, n.; H. 657, 5.

10. cupiditate: Ablative of Means. conjuratiōnem: a league.

11. civitati: for the dative (merely a variety of Indirect Object), see B. 187, II, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 2. ut exirent: to march out; ut exirent is a substantive clause developed from the Volitive Subjunctive, and is the object of persuasit. The simplest type of such clauses is seen in an expression like postulo ut fiat, originally 'I demand, let it be done'; B. 295, 1; A. 563; G. 546; H. 565. Note that the verb exirent is in the plural, though civitati is singular; but collective nouns often take a plural verb; B. 254, 4, a; A. 280, a; G. 211, R. 1, Exc. a; H. 389. This is called 'construction according to sense.' de finibus: the preposition de means 'from' in the sense of from a place where a person or thing properly belongs; hence here it implies the notion of leaving their borders for good and all. Otherwise e would have been used. cum omnibus copiis: with all their belongings.

12. perfacile esse, etc.: dependent upon the idea of saying involved in persuasit; B. 314, 2; A. 579, ftn. 1, 578, 580; G. 650; H. 641, 642, 1; literally, (saying) to obtain the mastery of all Gaul to be easy, i.e.

that it was easy to obtain the mastery, etc.; esse is the object of the word of saying to be understood; the subject of esse is the infinitive potiri, while perfacile is a predicative adjective limiting potiri; it is neuter because infinitives are treated as neuter substantives. virtute: Ablative of Specification. omnibus: dative, indirect object of praestarent; B. 187, III, 1; A. 370; G. 347; H. 429. praestarent: subjunctive because introduced by cum causal; B. 286, 2; A. 549; G. 586; H. 598.

13. imperio: for the ablative with potiri (really a variety of the Ablative of Means), see B. 218, 1; A. 410; G. 407; H. 477. id hoc facilius eis persuasit: he induced them (to do) that the more easily for this reason; literally, he persuaded that to them the more easily on account of this; id refers to the proposed emigration. Notice that persuadeo, besides a dative of the person, may take also an Accusative of Result Produced, as here id; B. 176, 2, a; A. 369; G. 332; H. 426, 6; hoc is Ablative of Cause (B. 219; A. 404; G. 408; H. 475), and is explained by the following quod-clause.

14. quod continentur: the author's reason; hence the indicative; B. 286, 1; A. 540; G. 541; H. 588, I. loci natura: i.e. by natural boundaries, as Caesar goes on to explain.

15. una ex parte: on one side; literally, from one side: for this force of ex see the note on a flumine, p. 1, line 18. For the position of ex between the adjective and noun, see the note on qua de causa, p. 1, line 12. flumine Rheno: on the north side; flumine is Ablative of Means. latissimo atque altissimo: here, as often, the best rendering of the superlative is by very. Note that of the two forms, atque and ac, the latter never stands before a word beginning with a vowel.

16. qui: qui takes its gender from Rheno, not from flumine; similarly below in line 18. altera: the second; a very common meaning of the word. This second side is the western.

17. monte Jura: not a single peak, but a chain of mountains.

18. tertia: i.e. tertia ex parte. lacu Lemanno et flumine Rhodano: on the south side. Caesar is alluding to that portion of the Rhone that flows westerly into Lake Geneva.

19. provinciam nostram: this is the provincia of p. 1, line 8. Caesar often alludes to it as 'our province.' his rebus fiebat ut, etc.: as a result of this they moved about, etc.; literally, on account of these things it happened that they moved about; rebus is Ablative of Cause; ut vagarentur is a Substantive Clause of Result, and is the subject of æbat; B. 297, 2; A. 569, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 571, 1. Note the force of the imperfect tense in fiebat and (2 lines below) afficiebantur. Caesar wishes to bring out the idea of continued or repeated action ; B. 260, 2 ; A. 470 ; G. 231 ; H. 534, 3.

20. minus late : i.e. less widely than they would otherwise have been able to do. finitimis : dative, indirect object of inferre ; B. 187, III, 2 ; A. 370 ; G. 347, R. 3 ; H. 429, 1. The pupil should avoid regarding such datives as dependent upon the preposition. The fact is simply this : Many verbs incapable of taking the dative themselves become capable of taking an indirect object when compounded with certain prepositions, such as in, ob, cum, etc.

21. qua ex parte : this phrase ordinarily means in this respect ; here it is equivalent to and on this account ; literally, from which part. For the relative at the beginning of a sentence used as equivalent to an English demonstrative with a conjunction, see the note on p. 1, line 12. homines : (being) men ; homines is in predicate apposition with ei understood, the subject of afficiebantur.

22. bellandi : the gerund, dependent on cupidi ; B. 204, 1 ; A. 349, a ; G. 374 ; H. 451, 1. dolore : discontent. pro : in view of. multitudine hominum : i.e. their large population. In chapter 29 Caesar tells us that they numbered 263,000 souls.

23. belli atque fortitudinis : Objective Genitives dependent on gloria ; belli atque fortitudinis illustrates the rhetorical figure known as Hen-di'a-dys (literally, 'one through two'), whereby two ideas are made coördinate, when logically one limits the other. Thus here war and bravery is put for bravery in war. The genitive is not necessarily translated by of ; here we may say, (reputation) for bravery in war.

24. se habere arbitrabantur : thought that they had ; literally, thought themselves to have ; se is the subject accusative of habere, and habere the object of arbitrabantur. qui : referring to fines.

25. milia passuum : literally, thousands of paces, or, roughly, miles. The passus was two steps, reckoned at five Roman feet. A thousand paces therefore equalled five thousand Roman feet. This, however, was equivalent to only forty-eight hundred English feet, about twelve-thirteenths of an English mile ; milia is Accusative of Extent of Space ; B. 181 ; A. 425 ; G. 335 ; H. 417 ; passuum is Genitive of the Whole. CCXL = ducenta quadraginta, two hundred and forty. Two hundred and forty Roman miles are equivalent to about two hundred and twenty English miles. CLXXX = centum octoginta, one hundred and eighty ; probably a manuscript error for eighty (i.e. about seventy-five English miles).

28. constituerunt: namely, the Helvetii. ea: object of comparare. quae . . . pertinerent: a Clause of Characteristic, — such things as were necessary to the emigration; B. 283, 2; A. 535; G. 631, 2; H. 591, 1.

Page 3. 1. comparare: object of constituerunt; for this frequent use of the infinitive as object, see B. 328, 1; A. 457; G. 423; H. 607, 1. quam maximum: the greatest possible; quam is often thus used to intensify the superlative; B. 240, 3; A. 291, c; G. 303; H. 159, 2.

2. coëmere, facere, confirmare: in the same construction as comparare. Note the absence of the conjunction between the last two infinitives, and see note on lingua, institutis, legibus, p. 1, line 4. ut suppeteret: Subjunctive of Purpose; B. 282; A. 531; G. 545; H. 568.

4. ad eas res conficiendas: for consummating these plans; literally, for these plans to be consummated. The gerundive construction with ad is a very common means of denoting purpose. Remember that in the gerundive construction the gerundive always agrees with the substantive (here res), while the substantive has its own construction; here res is governed by ad.

5. biennium . . . duxerunt: considered that two years were sufficient for them; literally, considered two years to be sufficient; biennium is the subject of esse, satis a predicate noun limiting biennium, while esse itself is the object of duxerunt. Notice that the Romans regularly said biennium, 'two years'; triennium, 'three years'; quadriennium, 'four years,' avoiding the expressions duo annos, tres annos, quattuor annos. Longer periods were expressed by two words; for example, sex annos, decem annos, etc. in: for.

6. confirmant: historical present, i.e. the present used for the past; B. 259, 3; A. 469; G. 229; H. 532, 3. This is very common in Caesar, but it should rarely, if ever, be translated by the English present. We do not often use the idiom.

7. sibi suscepti: took upon himself; sibi is indirect object.

8. legationem ad civitates: most of the civitates were probably little more than rudely organized clans; the prepositional phrase ad civitates is a modifier of the noun legationem; but the pupil should bear in mind that prepositional phrases are very sparingly employed in Latin to limit nouns, though often so employed in English.

9. filio, Sequano: in apposition with Castico.

10. regnum: here not hereditary regal power, but absolute authority. multos annos: Accusative of Duration of Time; B. 181, 1;

A. 423 ; G. 336 ; H. 417. obtinuerat : had held. Remember that this verb seldom means 'obtain.' senatu : the Roman Senate was not, like our American Senate, primarily a legislative body. It was rather an influential advisory board whose utterances on public affairs largely determined public opinion and policy.

11. populi Romani : to be taken with senatu. amicus : predicate nominative agreeing with pater ; B. 168, 2, b ; A. 284 ; G. 206 ; H. 393, 8. ut occuparet : to seize. The ut-clause is the object of persuadet, and is another Volitive Substantive Clause ; see above on p. 2, line 11. As regards the sequence of tenses, note that the historical present may serve either as a principal or historical tense. Here, as shown by occuparet, it is historical.

12. ante : here, as often, an adverb.

13. Dumnorigi : governed by persuadet, in line 15. qui : referring to Dumnorix. eo tempore : Ablative of Time.

14. principatum : not an office, but merely the acknowledged leadership. in civitate : namely, of the Haedui. plebi acceptus : popular with the common people ; literally, acceptable to. For the dative dependent on the adjective, see B. 192, 1 ; A. 384 ; G. 359 ; H. 434, 2.

15. ut idem conaretur : a Volitive Substantive Clause, object of persuadet. See the note on ut exirent, p. 2, line 11. The historical present persuadet is again followed by an historical tense.

16. in matrimonium : in marriage. The Latin says into. perfacile factu esse illis, etc. : he showed them that the accomplishment of their undertakings was very easy ; literally, he showed them to accomplish their undertakings to be very easy to do ; perficere is the subject of esse ; perfacile is a predicate adjective limiting perficere ; while factu is the Supine, used as an Ablative of Specification limiting perfacile ; B. 340, 2 ; A. 510, n. 1 ; G. 436 ; H. 635, 1. Note that the addition of factu is rather superfluous ; the meaning would be sufficiently clear without it.

17. propterea quod : as p. 1, line 7. suae : note the emphasis of suae, as indicated by the position.

18. obtenturus esset : he was proposing to seize ; the active periphrastic conjugation often involves this idea of intended action. The subjunctive is used because we have a subordinate clause in indirect discourse ; B. 314, 1 ; A. 580 ; G. 650 ; H. 643. Note the historical sequence after the historical present probat. non esse dubium : (saying) that there was no doubt ; esse depends upon the idea of saying involved in probat, precisely like the esse of p. 2, line 12 ; dubium is a predicate adjective limiting the substantive clause quin possent. quin possent: for the subjunctive introduced by quin after expressions of doubting and the like, see B. 298; A. 558 and a; G. 555, 2; H. 595, 1. The clause quin possent is the subject of esse.

19. totius Galliae: Genitive of the Whole; B. 201, 1; A. 346, a, 2; G. 367; H. 442. plurimum possent: were the most powerful; literally, were able the most; for the way in which the Accusative of Result Produced develops adverbial force, see B. 176, 3, a; A. 214, d; 240, a; G. 333, r, 2; H. 306, 3, 416, 2. se conciliaturum confirmat: conciliaturum is for conciliaturum esse; the auxiliary is usually omitted in the future infinitive; hence, declared that he would secure. suis, suo: note the position of these possessives with reference to their nouns.

20. illis: for them. regna: plural, because the absolute power of several states was thought of; B. 353, 1.

21. oratione: do not translate oratio as 'oration,' unless it has that meaning. The word more often means 'plea,' 'words,' 'representations,' as here. inter se: reciprocal, as on p. 1, line 4. fidem et jus jurandum: literally, a pledge and an oath, i.e. a pledge sealed by an oath; Hendiadys, as in belli atque fortitudinis, p. 2, line 23.

22. regno occupato, etc.: Ablative Absolute; literally, the absolute power having been seized; but the pupil should avoid the literal translation of the Ablative Absolute and should aim to render it by some natural English expression. The range of meaning of the Ablative Absolute is so wide that the proper translation can be determined only from the sense of the passage. Here regno occupato stands in the relation of means to potiri; hence, by seizing absolute power they hoped to win the mastery, etc.; sese is subject accusative of posse. tres populos: namely, the Helvetii, Sequani, and Haedui.

23. totius Galliae: dependent upon imperio. imperio: for the construction, see the note on imperio, p. 2, line 13. sese potiri posse sperant: literally, hope themselves to be able to obtain, i.e. hope to be able to obtain.

Orgetorix had been sent by the Helvetii 'to establish peace and friendship with neighboring states.' What he actually did was to form a Gallic triumvirate with Casticus and Dumnorix, declaring to these chieftains his treasonable purpose of usurping absolute power in his own state.

25. ea res: i.e. the fact of Orgetorix's treasonable conduct. per indicium: literally, by information, i.e. through informers,—the abstract for the concrete.

26. moribus suis: in accordance with their custom; Ablative of Accordance; B. 220, 3; A. 418, a and n.; G. 399, n. 1; H. 475, 3. ex vinculis: we should say in chains. For the Latin idiom, see the note on a flumine, p. 1, line 18.

27. damnatum . . . oportebat: if condemned, it was necessary that punishment should visit him; literally, punishment to visit him condemned was necessary; poenam is the subject accusative of the infinitive sequi; damnatum limits eum understood, the object of sequi; while sequi itself is the subject of the impersonal oportebat. Note that the participle is freely used in Latin as the equivalent of various subordinate clauses; thus here damnatum is equivalent to a conditional clause, — if condemned; B. 337, 2, b; A. 496; H. 638, 2. ut igni cremaretur: a Substantive Clause of Result, in apposition with poenam, (the penalty) of being burned at the stake; literally, (the penalty) that he should be burned by fire. For the subjunctive, see B. 297, 3; A. 571, c; G. 557; H. 571, 4. Note that ignis regularly forms the ablative in i.

28. die constituta: Ablative of Time; as constituta shows, die is here feminine; B. 53; A. 97, a; G. 64; H. 135. dictionis: for the pleading; see the note on gloria belli atque fortitudinis, p. 2, line 23; dictionis depends on die, and causae upon dictionis.

29. familiam: household, including not merely his kinsmen, but all his retainers and dependents, like the households of the mediaeval feudal lords. ad: about; here an adverb modifying decem. hominum milia decem: hominum is Genitive of the Whole; milia is in apposition with familiam.

31. eodem: the adverb, — to the same place, namely, the scene of the trial.

Page 4. 1. ne causam diceret: from pleading his cause; literally, lest he plead his cause; Clause of Purpose; B. 282; A. 531; G. 545; H. 568. cum conaretur, cogerent: cum temporal (i.e. cum meaning 'when,' 'as') with the imperfect and pluperfect regularly takes the subjunctive to denote the circumstances or situation of affairs; the indicative to denote the point of time at which something occurs; B. 288, 1, B; A. 546; G. 585; H. 600, II, 1.

4. neque abest suspicio: nor is suspicion lacking; a rhetorical way of saying, there is a strong suspicion. The figure is called Lit-otes, which means 'plainness,' i.e. the characterizing of a thing in mild language for rhetorical effect. The figure is common in all languages. ut: as; a common meaning when ut is followed by the indicative.

5. quin . . . consciverit: that he inflicted death on himself. For the subjunctive with quin, after expressions of doubt, suspicion, and the like, see B. 298; A. 558; G. 555, 2; H. 595, 1. ipse: with his own hand; the special force of ipse must be gathered from the context. It is always intensive in some way.

6. nihilo minus: nevertheless; literally, the less by nothing; nihilo is Ablative of Degree of Difference; B. 223; A. 414; G. 403; H. 479. The fact that the Helvetii persisted in their plan of emigration even after the death of Orgetorix suggests that the Germans were probably pressing hard upon them from the north.

7. ut exeant: a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, in apposition with id. In translating supply namely. Note that here the historical present conantur is followed by principal sequence. As already stated, the historical present may be followed by either a principal or an historical tense.

8. paratos esse: not the perfect infinitive; paratos is here used as an adjective, being in predicate agreement with se, the subject of esse.

9. numero ad duodecim: numero is Ablative of Specification, limiting duodecim; B. 226; A. 418; G. 397; H. 480; ad is again adverbial in the sense of 'about'; so also before quadringentos.

10. reliqua privata aedificia: such as isolated farm-houses, barns, etc.

11. praeter quod = praeter id quod, i.e. the antecedent of quod is id understood governed by praeter. secum: with the reflexive se, cum is always thus appended. portaturi erant: in translation think of the force of obtenturus esset on p. 3, line 18. ut paratiores essent: Subjunctive of Purpose; when there is a comparative in the purpose clause, quo is ordinarily used for ut. domum . . . sublata: Ablative Absolute; here again denoting means, like regno occupato on p. 3, line 22. Translate, by taking away the hope of returning home; literally, the hope of returning home having been taken away; domum is Accusative of Limit of Motion; B. 182, 1, b; A. 427, 2; G. 337; H. 419, 1.

12. ad . . . subeunda: another instance of the gerundive construction denoting purpose; remember that the gerundive limits the noun, while the noun has its own construction; here pericula is governed by ad; literally, for all dangers to be encountered; i.e. for encountering, etc.

13. trium mensium: i.e. a three months' supply; Genitive of Quality; B. 203, 2; A. 345, b; G. 365, 2; H. 440, 3. The amount of meal necessary for 263,000 persons for three months has been estimated at eight thousand tons. Such a supply would require a continuous line of wagons stretching over twenty miles. molita cibaria : i.e. meal. sibi quemque : each for himself.

14. domo : on this Ablative of Place from which, see B. 229, 1, b ; A. 427, 1 ; G. 390, 2 ; H. 462, 4.

15. uti . . . proficiscantur : to adopt the same plan, burn their towns and villages, and set out with them ; literally, (persuaded them that) having used the same plan, their towns having been burnt, they should set out with them. Grammatically, of course, usi limits the subject of proficiscantur, while oppidis exustis is Ablative Absolute ; but logically the adoption of the plan and the burning of their towns are the object of persuadent, and we may so translate ; for the mood of proficiscantur, see the note on ut exirent, p. 2, line 11. consilio : really an Ablative of Means with usi ; B. 218, 1 ; A. 410 ; G. 407 ; H. 477.

16. una : an adverb, literally meaning together, and often joined with cum in the sense of together with. cum eis : secum would have been the normal mode of expression, i.e. the indirect reflexive ; but that would have involved confusion, as suis has already been used referring to the Rauraci, and suus and se naturally refer to the same person ; hence eis for the sake of clearness.

17. Bojos : a tribe of Celtic origin, whence the name Bohemia is said to be derived. agrum Noricum : the Noric territory included parts of modern Bavaria and western Austria.

18. Noreiam : the modern Neumarkt in Styria. oppugnaverant = oppugnaverant ; B. 116, 1 ; A. 181, a ; G. 131, 1 ; H. 238. receptos ad se socios sibi asciscunt : they received and joined with themselves as allies ; literally, they joined to themselves as allies, having been received to themselves ; receptos limits Bojos, while socios is a predicate accusative with asciscunt, Bojos being the direct object. For the use of the participle as the equivalent of a coördinate clause, see B. 337, 5 ; A. 496, x, 2 ; G. 664, x, ; H. 639.

20. erant omnino : there were in all. itineria duo, quibus itineribus : we should simply say, two ways by which. The Latin, however, frequently, as here, repeats the antecedent in the relative clause ; B. 251, 3 ; A. 307 ; G. 615 ; H. 399, 1. quibus itineribus : Ablative of the Way by which ; B. 218, 9 ; A. 429, a ; H. 476. quibus . . . possent : Clause of Characteristic ; B. 283 ; A. 535 ; G. 631, 2 ; H. 591, 5. domo : used as above in line 14.

21. unum, alterum : understand iter from itineria. per Sequanos : this route was by the so-called Pas de l'Écluse.

22. vix qua: where scarcely; qua is an adverb. The ordinary word order would have qua vix; the inversion emphasizes vix. singuli: i.e. in single file.

23. ducerentur: Clause of Characteristic.

24. prohibere: as object understand eos, referring to the Helvetii. possent: Subjunctive of Result; B. 284, 1; A. 537; G. 552; H. 570.

25. multo: Ablative of Degree of Difference.

27. nuper pacati erant: the Allobroges had been conquered by Fabius in 121 B.C., but had revolted and been again reduced in 61 B.C. nonnullis locis: for the absence of the preposition in in the Ablative of Place, see B. 228, 1, b; A. 429, 1; G. 385, n. 1; H. 485, 2.

28. vado: by fording; Ablative of Means. extremum: i.e. the farthest north.

Page 5. 1. est: the position of est is peculiar; we should naturally expect it to stand immediately before Genava. finibus: for the dative, compare p. 1, line 11, proximi Germanis.

2. Allobrogibus: governed by persuasuros; the Allobroges formed a part of the Province.

3. vel . . . vel: either . . . or. Words so used are said to be cor-relatives. persuasuros, coacturos: for persuasuros esse, coacturos esse; with coacturos we must supply eos from Allobrogibus, expressed with persuasuros. quod viderentur: subjunctive, because a subordinate clause in indirect discourse. bono animo: of kindly feeling, or kindly disposed; Ablative of Quality, limiting the subject of viderentur; B. 224, 1; A. 415; G. 400; H. 473, 2. in: toward.

4. ut . . . paterentur: to permit them to go, etc.; eos refers to the Helvetii, suos to the Allobroges; ut paterentur is a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, and is the object of persuasuros (esse) and coacturos (esse); cogo naturally governs the infinitive, and would do so here except for the influence of persuasuros. Y

5. omnibus rebus comparatis: since we seldom employ a case absolute construction in good English, it is often advisable in translating the Latin Ablative Absolute to use the perfect active participle with an object; so here, — having made all things ready.

6. diem, qua die: repetition of the antecedent in the relative clause, as in itinerā, quibus itineribus above. The ablative is one of time, B. 230; A. 423; G. 393; H. 486. qua omnes conveniant: on which all should assemble; Relative Clause of Purpose; B. 282, 2; A. 531, 2; G. 630; H. 590; the essential notion is 'a day on which to meet.' ad: at.

7. is dies : note the change of gender from qua die to is dies ; B. 53 ; A. 97 and a ; G. 64 ; H. 135. a. d. V. Kal. Apr. = ante diem quintum Kalendas Apriles, equivalent to die quinto ante Kalendas Apriles, 'on the fifth day before the Calends of April.' Inasmuch as the Romans called that day 'the fifth before' which we call 'the fourth before,' this day was the 28th of March. For the Roman method of reckoning time, see B. 371, 5, d ; A. 631 ; G. p. 491 f. ; H. 754, III, 2. The whole phrase a. d. V. Kal. Apr. serves as an indeclinable predicate with erat.

8. L. Pisone, A. Gabinio consulibus : their year of office was 58 B.C. The construction is Ablative Absolute.

9. Caesari cum id, etc. : the chief actor in the drama of the Gallic wars here appears for the first time on the scene, — Gaius Julius Caesar. The time is the spring of 58 B.C. Caesar had held the consulship in 59, and was now proconsul of cisalpine Gaul, Illyricum, and the Province. He was at this time forty-three years old. Nature had endowed him with a rare sense for affairs, a unique skill in dealing with men, and a marvellous rapidity of action when once his decision was taken. The situation on the Gallic frontier in the spring of 58 B.C. was beyond question serious. Caesar's way of meeting the emergency is characteristic of the man ; so too is his direct and simple way of telling of it. Caesari cum id nuntiatum esset . . . maturat : when a word is subject of the main clause, and also the object, either direct or indirect, of a subordinate clause, it stands before both, as here ; B. 351, 2, a, 1. cum nuntiatum esset : a cum-clause of situation ; B. 288, 1, B ; A. 546 ; G. 585 ; H. 600, II. id : explained by the following infinitive clause, eos conari, in apposition. eos : subject accusative of conari.

10. facere, proficisci : infinitives without subject accusative, used as the objects of conari and maturat ; B. 328, 1 ; A. 457 ; G. 423 ; H. 609. ab urbe : i.e. from Rome ; Caesar had only just finished the duties of his consulate, and had not yet departed for his province, when he first heard of the commotion in the North (probably in February). Ab as opposed to ex shows that he was not in the city, but simply near it. As proconsul he possessed the so-called imperium, or military authority, which could not be exercised within the city limits.

11. quam maximis potest : merely a fuller form for quam maximis, 'as long stages as possible.' Plutarch tells us that Caesar consumed only seven days in travelling from Rome to the Rhone. in Galliam ulteriorem : i.e. Gaul beyond the Alps ; here identical with provincia nostra.

12. ad Genavam: to the neighborhood of Geneva; ad is regularly used to denote 'near' or 'to the neighborhood of.' provinciae toti: dependent on imperat; B. 187, II, a; A. 369; G. 346; H. 426, 1, 6. Note the emphasis on toti as shown by its position after its noun; totus usually precedes.

14. legio una: i.e. only one legion. This legion was the tenth. A legion normally numbered six thousand men, but Caesar's legions probably did not exceed thirty-six hundred. Introd. § 11.

16. certiores facti sunt: were informed; literally, were made more certain. nobilissimos: used substantively.

17. principem: here an adjective.

18. qui dicerent: to say; Relative Clause of Purpose; B. 282, 2; A. 531, 2; G. 630; H. 590. sibi esse in animo, etc.: that they intended to pass through the Province without damage; literally, it to be in mind to them to make a way, etc.; sibi is Dative of Possession; B. 190; A. 373; G. 349; H. 430; the subject of the impersonal esse is facere; esse itself is infinitive as representing a principal clause of indirect discourse; it is the object of dicerent. The direct form would be: nobis est in animo iter facere, 'we intend to make.'

19. propterea quod haberent: subjunctive, because a subordinate clause in indirect discourse. Direct discourse: 'because we have no other way' (propterea quod . . . habemus).

20. nullum: notice the emphasis on nullum as shown by its separation from aliud iter and its place at the very end of the clause. The effect may be reproduced in the English because other way they had none. rogare, ut liceat: (saying) they begged that they be permitted to do that with his consent; as subject of rogare, se, referring to the Helvetii, would naturally have been expressed. But the subject of the infinitive in indirect discourse is sometimes omitted when it is clear from the context who is meant; B. 314, 5; A. 580, 581, N. 1; H. 642, foot-note, last line. ut liceat: Substantive Clause, Developed from the Volitive; B. 295, 1; A. 563; G. 546; H. 565. The origin of such clauses may be seen in an expression like rogamus, ut liceat, 'we ask, let it be permitted.' In the Caesar passage, ut liceat is the object of rogare. Notice that, despite the historical sequence in dicerent, liceat is principal. This is because mittunt, the main verb of the sentence, is a principal tense; see note on p. 3, line 11. voluntate: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; B. 221; H. 473, 3.

21. sibi: indirect object of liceat. facere: subject of liceat. memoria tenebat: remembered; literally, held by memory; memoria is Ablative of Means. The indicative is used because the reason is that of Caesar the writer, not of Caesar the general, whose acts are here described. These two personages (or rather these two phases of the same personage) are systematically kept distinct in the Gallie War; B. 286, 1; A. 540; G. 541; H. 588, 1.

22. L. Cassium . . . missum: that Lucius Cassius had been killed and his army routed, etc.; literally, Lucius Cassius to have been killed and his army to have been routed, etc. With occisum, pulsum, and missum, esse is to be understood. The infinitives are the object of memoria tenebat, which is equivalent to a verb of knowing. Many such phrases are capable of taking the construction of indirect discourse. L. Cassium consulem: the consul regularly took the field as commander-in-chief in time of war. The death of Cassius and the rout of his army had occurred in 107 B.C., at the time of the attempted invasion of Italy by the Cimbrians and Teutons. The Helvetii had joined these as allies.

23. sub jugum missum: defeated armies, in token of submission, were often forced to pass under the yoke. The act consisted in passing under a spear resting horizontally upon two other spears placed upright in the ground. concedendum non putabat: did not think any concession should be made; concedendum (= concedendum esse) is used impersonally.

24. homines: subject of temperaturos (esse). inimico animo: Ablative of Quality; B. 224; A. 415; G. 400; H. 473, 2. In translating animus, remember that 'mind' is seldom the idiomatic English rendering; 'spirit,' 'temper,' 'disposition,' and the like are often better equivalents. data facultate: if opportunity should be afforded; Ablative Absolute equivalent to a conditional clause.

25. itineris faciundi: of marching; literally, of a march to be made; itineris depends grammatically upon facultate; faciundi is for the commoner faciendi; B. 116, 2; A. 6; G. 130, 8; H. 243.

27. dum milites convenirent: till the soldiers should assemble; dum, 'until,' regularly takes the subjunctive to denote expectancy or purpose, as opposed to an actual fact. Thus here, not, until the soldiers actually did assemble, but, until they should assemble; B. 293, III, 2; A. 553; G. 572; H. 603, II, 2.

28. diem: time.

29. si quid vellent, reverterentur: if they wished anything, let them return. This is the indirect form of si quid vultis, revertimini, 'if you wish anything, return'; vellent is subjunctive as being a subordinate clause in indirect discourse; reverterentur is an imperative clause in indirect discourse; B. 316; A. 588; G. 652; H. 642. The imperfect tense is used because the leading verb (respondit) is historical. ad: on. Idus Apriles: April 13; B. 371, 372; A. 631, b; G. p. 491 f.; H. 754, i, 3.

Page 6. 1. ea legione militibusque: the Ablative of Means sometimes refers to persons, as here.

4. milia: Accusative of Extent of Space.

5. xviii = undeviginti. Nineteen miles is the distance by the river from Lake Geneva to the Jura Mountains. For five-sixths of this distance the naturally rugged south bank of the Rhone gave sufficient defence. Probably not more than three miles of the entire distance were fortified in the manner mentioned by Caesar. murum: an earthwork, or rampart. in altitudinem pedum sedecim: literally, of sixteen feet into height, i.e. sixteen feet high; pedum sedecim is Genitive of Quality; B. 203, 2; A. 345, b; G. 365, 2; H. 440, 3.

6. eo opere perfecto: having finished that work. Do not think of opus as 'labor.' It means the actual fortifications. praesidia: garrisons of troops. disponit: notice the force of the inseparable preposition dis,—he placed here and there, or at intervals. castella: these were to be occupied and defended by the praesidia.

7. communis: notice the intensive force of com-(con-) in compounds. Thus here: strongly fortifies. quo facilius possit: Subjunctive of Purpose; quo is used for ut in purpose clauses containing a comparative; B. 282, 1, a; A. 531, a; G. 545, 2; H. 568, 7. si conarentur: subjunctive, as being a subordinate clause in indirect discourse. The term 'indirect discourse' is used with some freedom; it applies not merely to constructions after expressions of saying, thinking, and perceiving, but also to any construction in which a thought is indirectly expressed. Thus Caesar's thought was, 'If they try to pass through without my consent, I wish to stop them' (si transire conabantur, etc.). This thought is here indirectly expressed; hence the subjunctive. se invito: without his consent; literally, himself being unwilling; Ablative Absolute; B. 227, 1; A. 419, a; G. 410; H. 489. transire: the infinitive is the object of conarentur; B. 328, 1; A. 457; G. 423; H. 609.

8. prohibere: understand eos as object. possit: note again the alternation in the sequence after the historical present; conarentur is historical; possit principal. Such shifting is common.

10. reverterunt: notice that revertor is deponent in its present system, but has the active forms in the perfect system. negat se posse: said he could not; literally, denied himself to be able.

This is a very common idiom in Latin. more et exemplo: Ablative of Accordance.

11. iter per provinciam: note the prepositional phrase limiting a noun. This is relatively rare in Latin as compared with English. Nouns derived from verbs or having a strong verbal force (as iter, from eo, 'go') are, however, thus limited with some frequency. ulli: to any one. Normal Latin would have been cuiquam, since quisquam is regularly used as the substantive ('any one'), while ullus is properly an adjective ('any'). si conentur: subordinate clause in indirect discourse (direct: si conabimini, 'if you shall attempt').

12. vim facere: use (literally, make, do) force. prohibiturum (esse): principal clause in indirect discourse. For the omission of the subject se, see the note on p. 5, line 20. ea spe: Ablative of Separation; B. 214; A. 402; G. 390, 2; H. 462.

13. navibus junctis, etc.: navibus and ratibus may be either Ablative of Means (by means of boats joined together and numerous rafts they had made, literally, rafts made) or Ablative Absolute (having joined and having made).

14. alii: most of the Helvetii attempted to cross by pontoons and rafts; others (alii) by wading through the shallows of the stream. vadis: Ablative of the Way by which; B. 218, 9; A. 429, a; H. 476. qua: adverb.

15. si possent: indirect question. These are only rarely introduced by si; B. 300, 3; A. 576, a; G. 460, 1, b; H. 649, 11, 3. The clause si possent is the object of conati.

16. conati, repulsi: agreeing with Helvetii, the subject of destiterunt. militem: dependent upon telis as well as upon concurso.

17. conatu: Ablative of Separation; B. 214; A. 402; G. 390, 2; H. 462.

18. relinquebatur: there remained, there was left; the verb is made emphatic by being placed at the beginning of the sentence. una per Sequanos via: only the route through the Sequani; literally, the way alone; for the prepositional phrase limiting the noun, see the note above, on line 11. qua: adverb. Sequanis invitis: the Ablative Absolute here has the force of a condition, — if the Sequani should be unwilling.

19. angustias: namely, of the Jura Mountains, as already mentioned by Caesar in chapter 6. his: emphatic, and so put first. sua sponte: by their own influence; ordinarily the phrase means 'of their (his) accord.'

20. possent: subjunctive in a clause introduced by cum causal;

B. 286, 2; A. 549; G. 586; H. 598. Dumnorigem: already mentioned in chapter 3 as the most influential man among the Haedui.

21. eo deprecatore: the Ablative Absolute here denotes means, by his intercession; literally, he being intercessor.

22. gratia et largitione: Ablatives of Means or Cause.

23. plurimum poterat: had very great influence. For the accusative with adverbial force, see the note on p. 3, line 19. Helvetiis: for the dative with amicus, here an adjective, see B. 192, 1; A. 383; G. 359; H. 434.

24. in matrimonium duxerat: had married; literally, had led into marriage; ducere with or without in matrimonium is a standing expression for 'to marry.'

25. novis rebus studebat: was eager for a revolution. He had already shown this by his league with Orgetorix and Casticus. For the dative, see B. 187, II, a; A. 368, 3; G. 346; H. 426, 1. quam plurimas: as many . . . as possible.

26. beneficio: ablative.

27. rem: the task. a Sequanis impetrat, ut patiantur: secured permission from the Sequani for the Helvetii to go; literally, secured from the Sequani that they permit, etc. The clause ut patiantur is a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive; B. 295, 2; A. 563; G. 546; H. 565.

28. obsides: object of dent. uti dent, perficit: literally, brings it about that they give. What should we say in idiomatic English? The clause uti dent is the object of perficit. inter sese: se is again reciprocal, as frequently in this phrase.

Page 7. 1. Sequani, Helvetii: with these nominatives supply in thought obsides dant. ne prohibeant, ut transeant: not clauses of purpose, which would give an absurd meaning, but rather instances of the so-called 'Stipulative' Subjunctive. This subjunctive expresses the stipulation or terms of an agreement. Hence here: the Sequani (give hostages), with the agreement not to keep the Helvetii from going through; the Helvetii, with the agreement to pass through without mischief and damage. itinere: Ablative of Separation.

3. renuntiatur: notice the force of the inseparable re- ('back'), implying that Caesar had sent out scouts. Helvetiis esse in animo: that the Helvetii were intending; literally, it to be in mind to the Helvetii. Helvetiis is Dative of Possession (B. 190; A. 373; G. 349; H. 430), as above, p. 5, line 18. The subject of esse is facere; esse itself is subject of the impersonal renuntiatur.

4. Santonum: the Santones dwelt in the extreme western part of Gaul, near the Bay of Biscay. Elsewhere in Caesar the word is of the second declension: Santoni. Their name survives in the modern province of Saintonge.

5. non longe . . . absunt: the Tolosates were the inhabitants of Tolosa, the modern Toulouse. This city was some two hundred miles distant from the proposed goal of the Helvetii. Caesar, therefore, is merely giving a pretext for his interference. He had evidently already determined to undertake the further subjugation of Gaul. A great historian (Mommson) has urged that Caesar's Gallic campaigns were begun and continued in the exercise of great political sagacity; that Caesar foresaw the inevitable clash between Rome and Gaul, and aimed to supplant the defective political institutions of the Celts with the superior civilization of Rome. quae civitas: note the incorporation of the antecedent in the relative clause. We say, a state which. Such incorporation is especially frequent when the antecedent of the relative is an appositive; B. 251, 4, b; G. 616, 2.

6. id: emphatic and so placed first. si fieret, futurum (esse): indirect discourse. The direct form would have been: si hoc fiet, erit, etc., 'if this happens, it will be,' etc.; a so-called simple condition.

7. provinciae: genitive; yet in English we should translate by 'for,' as often. ut haberet: to have; literally, that it should have; a Substantive Clause of Result, used as the subject of futurum (esse); B. 297, 2; A. 569, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 571, 1. The subject of haberet is ea understood, referring to provincia.

8. locis: dative dependent upon finitimos; B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434.

9. finitimos: Predicate Accusative with homines, to have as neighbors; literally, neighboring (adjective). munitiōni: indirect object of praefecit; B. 187, III, 2; A. 370, a, n. 1; G. 347, 3; H. 429, 1.

10. T. = Titus. legatum: the legatus, or 'lieutenant,' was originally a deputy of the commanding general; but Caesar's legati were regularly commanders of legions. Introd. § 21.

11. Italiam: i.e. cisalpine Gaul, one of Caesar's provinces. mag-nis itineribus: rapid stages, not forced marches, for Caesar was probably alone or accompanied only by a few trusty companions. The rapidity of his movements may be conjectured from the fact that he had recently travelled from Rhone to Geneva in seven days. Speed was necessary now, if ever. To cope with the Helvetians and their allies (numbering in all 368,000) Caesar, we must bear in mind, had but one legion—under four thousand men—and such troops as he had enlisted in the Province. Immediate reinforcements were therefore imperative. A glance at the map will show that it was no mean achievement to cross the Alps, enlist two legions, muster others from their barracks in distant Aquileia, and then return with these troops in the face of hostile tribes. Napoleon III estimated that Caesar's movements occupied two months. He began them in April; it was probably the middle of June when he returned to his army. duas legiones: the eleventh and twelfth.

12. tres: these were the seventh, eighth, and ninth. Caesar's total force was now some twenty-one thousand legionaries, besides the troops enlisted in the Province. Two legions, however, were raw recruits. Aquileiam: at the head of the Adriatic Sea.

13. proximum iter: the nearest route was by the pass of Mont Genève.

15. ibi: i.e. among the Alps.

17. compluribus his proeliis pulsus: his is the subject of the Ablative Absolute construction; compluribus proeliis is Ablative of Means. ab Ocelo: from the neighborhood of Ocelum; B. 229, 2; A. 428, a.

18. citerioris provinciae: namely, cisalpine Gaul. extremum: i.e. the northernmost.

19. ulterioris provinciae: Genitive of the Whole dependent upon Vocontiorum. die septimo: namely, after leaving Ocelum. The pupil should carefully trace Caesar's movements on the map.

21. trans Rhodanum: namely, on the west bank of the river.

23. Helvetii jam per angustias: i.e. through the narrow Pas de l'Écluse, where wagons could pass only one at a time. Owing to the narrowness of the route and the immense host of people, their progress had naturally been slow.

25. populabantur: were plundering. Haedui: the common subject of the principal and subordinate clauses, placed first; B. 351, 2; H. 684. sua: their possessions.

26. possent: subjunctive with cum causal; B. 286, 2; A. 549; G. 586; H. 598.

27. rogatum: the supine, expressing purpose; B. 340, 1, a; A. 509; G. 435; H. 633. ita: so, or so well. se meritos esse: the infinitive depends upon the idea of saying involved in rogatum. de: of.

Page 8. 2. agri vastari . . . non debuerint: their lands ought not to have been laid waste, etc.; literally, their lands did not deserve to be laid waste, etc.; debuerint is an instance of the perfect subjunctive used as an historical tense; B. 268, 6; A. 485, c; G. 513; H. 550. Note that in Latin the idea 'ought to have' is expressed by a past tense of the indicative (debebat or debuit) with the present infinitive; literally, deserved to be (loved), etc.; B. 270, 2; A. 486, a; H. 618, 2.

3. eodem tempore quo: at the same as; quo, like tempore, is Ablative of Time when. Note that the Latin says same who, same which, where we say 'same as.'

5. sese non prohibere: that they did not easily keep off, or better, that they could not, etc. depopulatis: note that the perfect passive participle is here used passively, though depopulor is deponent; B. 112, b; A. 190, b; H. 222, 2.

7. trans Rhodanum: namely, on the north side of the Rhone before the river turns to the south. Most of the Allobroges dwelt to the south and east of the river. A few lived across the stream on the north side.

8. sibi: Dative of Possession.

9. solum: note that the word is solum (not solum). nihil esse reliqui: nothing was left; literally, nothing of remainder to be (to them); reliqui is the adjective employed substantively and used as Genitive of the Whole.

10. non expectandum (esse) sibi statuit: decided that he must not wait; literally, that it must not be waited by him; expectandum (esse) is used impersonally; sibi is Dative of Agent; B. 189, 1; A. 374; G. 355; H. 431. dum . . . pervenirent: the subjunctive is used because the dum-clause involves the notion of expectation or purpose; B. 293, III, 2; A. 553; G. 572; H. 603, II, 2. The notion of expectancy attaches also to the Ablative Absolute (fortunis consumptis), till all the property . . . should be destroyed and the Helvetii should arrive, etc.

13. flumen est Arar: there is a river, the Arar. The modern name of this stream is the Saône. quod: agreeing in gender with flumen, not Arar. per: between.

14. incredibili lenitate: of remarkably slow course; Ablative of Quality, B. 224; A. 415; G. 400; H. 473, 2.

15. oculis: Ablative of Means with judicari. fluat: subjunctive in an indirect question; B. 300, 1; A. 574; G. 467; H. 649, II. The clause as a whole is the subject of the impersonal possit.

16. ratibus, lintribus: Ablative of Means; junctis is to be combined only with lintribus. transibant: the imperfect represents the act as in process. Naturally the passage of so large a number was extremely slow, and only about three-fourths of the Helvetii had crossed at the time when Caesar came up.

17. tres partes . . . traduxisse: the subject of traduxisse is Helvetios, partes is the object, while flumen depends upon trans in composition; B. 179, 1; A. 395 and N. 1; G. 331, R. 1; H. 413; traduxisse is governed by the idea of saying involved in certior factus est; tres partes means 'three-quarters.'

19. citra: i.e. to the east. Ararim: note the accusative in -im, as though from the nominative Araris; B. 37, 1; A. 74, d; 75, a, 1; G. 57, R. 1; H. 102, 3, N. de tertia vigilia: in (literally out of) the third watch; the time from sunset to sunrise was divided into four watches. Their length varied, of course, with the season, but the third always began at midnight. Hence Caesar here means, 'shortly after midnight.'

20. legionibus tribus: how many men?

23. mandarunt = mandaverunt; B. 116, 1; A. 181, a; G. 131, 1; H. 238. in proximas silvas: we should say, in the neighboring forest, but Caesar uses the accusative because of the idea of fleeing involved in abdiderunt.

24. pagus: literally canton, but here used of the inhabitants of the canton. The Tigurini, before their emigration, are said to have dwelt in the vicinity of Zurich.

25. divisa est: in the same sense as in the opening sentence of the Gallic War.

26. domo: for the ablative without a preposition, see B. 229, 1, b; A. 427, 1; G. 390, 2; H. 462, 4. memoria: Ablative of Time within which; B. 231; A. 423; G. 393; H. 487.

27. Cassium interfecerat: at the time of the Cimbrian invasion, 107 B.C.; see note on p. 5, line 22.

29. quae pars intulerat, ea princeps persolvit: the part that had inflicted disaster, was the first to pay, etc.; literally, which part had inflicted, that paid, etc. For the incorporation of the antecedent in the relative clause, a favorite Latin idiom, see B. 251, 4, a; A. 307, b, N.; G. 616, 1; H. 399, 3.

30. populo Romano: indirect object of intulerat. princeps persolvit: was the first to pay; B. 241, 2; A. 290; G. 325; H. 497, 3.

31. qua in re: for the position of in, see the note on p. 1, line 12, qua de causa.

32. ejus: his; namely, Caesar's. soceri L. Pisonis: Caesar had married as his last wife Calpurnia, daughter of Lucius Calpurnius Piso.

3. hoc proelio facto: notice that the Romans spoke of 'making a battle'; we ordinarily speak of 'fighting a battle.' reliquas copias Helvetiorum: placed at the very beginning of the subordinate clause for the purpose of emphasis.

4. pontem faciendum curat: arranged for the construction of a bridge; literally, cared for a bridge to be built. For the gerundive construction used in place of an object clause, see B. 337, 8, b, 2; A. 500, 4; G. 430; H. 622. A number of competent engineers (fabri), employed for the bridging of rivers, the construction of fortifications, etc., attended every legion. These did not constitute a separate corps, as in our modern armies, but fought in the ranks like common soldiers. See Intro. § 15. in Arari: over the Arar. The Romans regularly spoke of building a bridge in a river.

6. id: the object of fecisse. diebus xx: in twenty days; i.e. it had taken them a full twenty days to do it; B. 231; A. 423; G. 393; H. 487.

7. ut flumen transirent: namely, the passage of the river; literally, that they should cross the river. The clause, a Substantive Clause of Result, is in apposition with quod; B. 297, 3; A. 568; G. 557; H. 571, 3. illum: referring to Caesar.

9. bello Cassiano: the war of 107 B.C. As that struggle had occurred forty-nine years before the present events, Divico must at this time have been nearly or quite seventy-five years of age. The Helvetii doubtless thought to strike terror into the hearts of the Romans by sending this old champion to negotiate with Caesar; bello is Ablative of Time.

10. egit: parleyed. si pacem, etc.: this and the following chapter bristle with the difficulties of indirect discourse. But if the pupil will carefully master these at the outset, subsequent passages of indirect discourse will seem relatively simple and easy. Remember the two main principles: Principal clauses stand in the infinitive and subordinate clauses in the subjunctive. An outline of the substance of Divico's speech is here given: "If the Romans would make peace with the Helvetii, the latter would settle where Caesar should locate them. But if Caesar persisted in war, let him think of the crushing defeat the Helvetii had once inflicted on the Romans. They may repeat it. Merely because Caesar had surprised and cut to pieces one canton, he must not rate his own prowess too high or theirs too low. They had been taught to rely on their own valor, not on trickery. Therefore let Caesar beware lest they take a stand against him; if they do, they will destroy him, and the name of the spot shall forever bear witness to his ruin."

11. in eam partem: partem is here used in the sense of place. ituros (esse), futuros (esse): principal clauses in indirect discourse; futuros here means stay, remain. Direct discourse of these first three lines would be: si pacem populus Romanus cum Helvetiis faciet, in eam partem ibunt atque ibi erunt Helvetii ubi eos tu (i.e. Caesar) constitueris atque esse volueris. The subordinate clauses of the direct discourse become subjunctives in the indirect, while the principal clauses become infinitives. Note further that the future perfect of direct discourse, upon becoming indirect, passes over into the pluperfect subjunctive after an historical tense; thus here constitueris becomes constituisset; B. 319, B, a; A. 589, 3; G. 654; H. 644, 2.

13. sin: for the use of sin in Latin, see B. 306, 3; G. 592; H. 575, 5. bello: Ablative of Means. persequi: object of perseveraret. As object of persequi understand eos referring to the Helvetii. perseveraret: subject is Caesar (not populus Romanus). reminisceretur: let him remember; an imperative clause in indirect discourse; B. 316; A. 588; G. 652; H. 642.

14. veteris incommodi: Divico means the defeat of Cassius in 107 B.C. He calls it the 'former inconvenience,' as though wishing to spare the feelings of the Romans. incommodi, virtutis: for the genitive with verbs of remembering, see B. 206, 2; A. 350; G. 376; H. 454. Direct discourse of the passage: sin bello persequi perseverabis, reminiscere et veteris incommodi populi Romani et pristinae virtutis Helvetiorum.

15. unum pagum: namely, the Tigurini above mentioned.

16. suis: to their (countrymen).

17. ne tribueret . . . despiceret: literally, let him not attribute . . . or scorn them; imperative clauses in indirect discourse; magnopere is here virtually a substantive (overmuch), used as object of tribueret; aut . . . aut means 'either . . . or,' or, with ne, 'neither . . . nor,' the so-called correlative use.

18. ipsos: them; i.e. the Helvetii; se, as indirect reflexive, might have been expected; but suae has just been used referring to Caesar; hence se would have been ambiguous. For ipse as an indirect reflexive instead of se, see B. 249, 3; A. 300, b; H. 509, 6. Direct discourse of the last sentence: quod improvise unum pagum adortus es, cum nos qui flumen transieramus nostris auxilium non possemus, noli ob eam rem aut tuae magnopere virtuti tribuere aut nos despiciere. ita: explained by the following ut-clause.

19. ut . . . contenderent, quam . . . niterentur: to contend by valor rather than to depend on, etc. The clauses are the objects of didicisse; ut is to be supplied in thought after quam.

20. dolo aut insidiis: implying that Caesar's surprise of the Tigurini had been treacherous, as it really seems to have been. Caesar had simply refused to permit the Helvetii to march through the Province. He had not prohibited their passage through the Sequani, nor had he given any formal notice of hostilities. For the case of dolo, insidiis, see B. 218, 3; A. 431; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 3. Direct discourse of the passage: nos ita a patribus majoribusque nostris didicimus, ut magis virtute contendamus quam dolo aut insidiis nitamur. ne committeret: let him not allow; imperative clause in indirect discourse. ut locus caperet aut proderet: substantive clauses, object of committeret.

21. ubi constitissent: i.e. where the Helvetii should take their stand to defend their liberties. Divico means that the spot will witness the destruction of the Roman army, and hence be named from the event. Direct discourse of the passage: quare noli committere ut is locus, ubi constiterimus, ex calamitate populi Romani et internecione exercitus nomen capiat aut memoriam prodat.

22. memoriam: i.e. the memory of the destruction of the Roman army.

24. his: understand legatis. An outline of the substance of Caesar's speech is here given: "He felt less ground for hesitation inasmuch as he remembered perfectly the facts referred to by Divico. Furthermore, he was highly indignant at the circumstances of the Roman defeat, for the Roman troops had been attacked without warning. Even if Caesar could forgive and forget this act of the Helvetii, could he forget their recent conduct, especially their attempt to force a way through the Province? Their insolent boasts of what they had done in the past were most offensive. Evidently the gods were granting them temporary success that they might feel misfortune the more keenly when it should come. However, despite all this, he would make peace with them, if they would give him hostages and make reparation to the Haëdui and others for the damage done in passing through their lands." eo: on this account; explained by the quod-clause; eo is Ablative of Cause; B. 219; A. 404; G. 408; H. 475. sibi: to him, Caesar; indirect reflexive, B. 244, 1, 11; A. 300, 2; G. 520; H. 504. dubitationis: Genitive of the Whole with minus; literally, less of hesitation; B. 201, 2; A. 346, a, 3; G. 369; H. 442.

25. commemorassent = commemoravissent.

26. atque eo gravius ferre, quo, etc.: and he was the more indignant in that they (eas res) had not happened by any fault, etc.; literally, he bore them the more heavily, the less they had happened in accordance with the desert, etc.; quo and eo are Ablatives of Degree of Difference; B. 223; A. 414, a; G. 403; H. 479; merito is an Ablative of Accordance; B. 220, 3; A. 418, a and n.; H. 475, 3; G. 399, n. 1. In strictness se should have been expressed as subject of ferre; B. 314, 5; A. 581, n. 1; H. 642, foot-note.

27. qui si, etc.: for if they had been conscious; qui here refers to populus Romanus, a collective noun; hence the rendering they. For the relative at the beginning of a clause equivalent to a demonstrative with a conjunction, see B. 251, 6; A. 308, f; G. 610; H. 510. alicujus injuriæ: i.e. of having done the Helvetii any wrong. For the genitive, see B. 204, 1; A. 349, a; G. 374; H. 451, 1.

Page 10. 1. sibi: with consciis; we should hardly translate it. non fuisse difficile cavere: it would not have been difficult to be on their guard; fuisse is the apodosis of a contrary-to-fact condition in indirect discourse, representing a fuit of the direct; B. 304, 3; A. 437, a; H. 583, 3. Ordinarily this would have been futurum fuisse (representing fuisset of the direct); B. 321, 2; A. 589, b, 2; H. 647, 2, 3. The subject of fuisse is cavere. sed eo deceptum, etc.: but they (the Roman people) had been deceived for this reason, that, etc.; eo (Ablative of Cause) is explained by the following quod-clauses; as subject of deceptum (esse), understand eum referring to populum Romanum.

2. quod neque . . . intellegeret, neque . . . putaret: because they neither knew that (anything) had been done by them on account of which they should be afraid, nor thought they ought to be afraid without reason; as subject of commissum (esse) we must understand quicquam.

3. quare timeret: why they should fear; quare (= propter quod) is relative, the antecedent being quicquam understood; quare timeret is a Relative Clause of Purpose,—(anything) to be afraid of. timendum (esse): literally, it ought to be feared; impersonal. Direct form of the foregoing passage: eo mihi minus dubitationis datur, quod eas res, quas commemoravistis, memoria teneo, atque eo gravius fero, quo minus merito populi Romani acciderunt; qui si alicujus injuriæ sibi conscius fuisset, non fuit difficile cavere; sed eo deceptus est, quod neque commissum a se intellegebat, quare timeret, neque sine causa timendum putabat. In this, as in the preceding and following passages of indirect discourse, remember that principal clauses stand in the infinitive, subordinate clauses in the subjunctive. quod si vellet; but if he were willing.

4. veteris contumeliae: referring to the defeat of Cassius. For the genitive with verbs of forgetting, see B. 206, 2; A. 350; G. 376; H. 454. num memoriam deponere posse: could he lay aside the memory; for the infinitive in rhetorical questions in indirect discourse, see B. 315, 2; A. 586; G. 651, R.; H. 642, 2. recentium injuriarum: Objective Genitive, dependent on memoriam.

5. quod temptassent, . . . quod vexassent: the fact that they had attempted, . . . that they had harassed. These clauses are explanatory of injuriarum. eo invito: without his consent. Direct discourse for this passage: quod si veteris contumeliae oblivisci volo, num etiam recentium injuriarum, quod me invito iter per provinciam per vim temptavistis, quod Haeduos, quod Ambarros, quod Allobroges vexavistis, memoriam deponere possum?

7. quod, etc.: the fact that they boasted, etc. The quod-clauses are the subject of pertinere.

8. sua victoria: of their victory, referring again to the defeat of Cassius. Ablative of Cause with gloriarentur.

9. se impune injurias tulisse: had escaped unpunished for their misdeeds; impune aliquid ferre has special idiomatic force. eodem pertinere: was of a piece with the rest of their conduct: literally, tended in the same direction, namely, as their attempt to go through the Province and their assaults upon the Haedui; eodem is, of course, the adverb.

10. consuesse, etc.: for the immortal gods are wont at times to grant greater prosperity and longer exemption from punishment to those men whom they wish to punish for their wickedness, that they may suffer more severely from the change in their circumstances; consuesse = consuevisse; B. 116, 1; A. 181, a; G. 131, 1; H. 238. quo: instead of ut in a purpose clause containing a comparative; B. 282, 1, a; A. 531, a; G. 545, 2; H. 568, 7. ex commutatione rerum: i.e. in consequence of the change from prosperity to adversity.

11. doleant, velint: the regular law for the sequence of tenses would require the imperfect here, as in the previous part of this chapter. But for greater vividness the tenses of the direct discourse are sometimes retained in the indirect form, even after an historical tense. This is called repraesentatio, 'a bringing back to the present.' quos: this looks forward to his as its antecedent.

12. velint: namely, the gods.

13. concedere: dependent upon consuesse. Direct discourse for the passage: quod vestra victoria tam insolenter gloriamini quodque tam diu vos impune injurias tulisse admiramini, eodem pertinet. Consuerunt enim di immortales, quo gravius homines ex commutatione rerum doleant, quos pro scelere eorum ulcisci volunt, his secundiores interdum res et diuturniorem impunitatem concedere. cum: adversative, although. sint, dentur, etc.: the repraesentatio continues to the end of the chapter.

14. sibi: to him; indirect reflexive. facturos = eos facturos esse.

15. Haeduis: dative dependent upon satisfaciant. de injuriis: for the injuries. ipsis: the Haedui. Direct discourse of last sentence: Cum haec ita sint, tamen, si obsides a vobis mihi dabuntur ut ea, quae pollicemini, vos facturos intellegam, et si Haeduis de injuriis, quas ipsis sociisque eorum intulistis, item si Allobrogibus satisfacietis, ego vobiscum pacem faciam.

19. uti . . . consuerint: to the habit of receiving, not giving; literally, that they are accustomed, etc.; a substantive clause dependent upon institutos esse; consuerint (= consueverint) furnishes another illustration of repraesentatio, for the perfect of consuesco means 'I am wont,' and is therefore virtually a present.

22. movent: namely, the Helvetii.

23. equitatum: cavalry formed no regular part of the Roman standing army in Caesar's day. Horsemen were regularly furnished by the Roman allies, as here.

25. coactum habebat: here hardly different from the pluperfect (coëgerat); B. 337, 6; A. 497, b; H. 431, 3. qui videant: subjunctive in a relative clause denoting purpose; videant is plural, since qui refers to equitatem, a collective noun; B. 250, 4; A. 306, b; G. 614, r. 3; H. 397. quas faciant: indirect question.

26. qui: but these. cupidius: too eagerly, a common force of the comparative. novissimum agmen: the rear (of the enemy); literally, the last column.

27. loco: for the ablative without a preposition, see B. 228, 1, b; A. 429, 1; G. 385, r. 1; H. 483, 485, 2.

28. de nostris: of our (men); de with the ablative is a common substitute for the Genitive of the Whole; B. 201, 1, a; A. 346, c; G. 372, r. 2; H. 444.

29. equitibus: Ablative of Means.

31. agmine: i.e. of the Helvetii. Ablative of Place, without in, like loco in line 27. proelio: Ablative of Means.

Page 11. 1. satis habebat: regarded it sufficient; the object of habebat is prohibere; satis is predicate accusative.

2. rapinis: Ablative of Separation.

3. dies: Accusative of Duration of Time; B. 181; A. 423; G. 336; H. 417.

4. nostrum primum: our van; with primum understand agmen.

5. amplius: more; here used substantively as subject of inter-esset. quinis aut senis milibus: milibus is Ablative of Comparison; the distributives quinis and senis (instead of quinque and sex) are used to indicate five or six each day.

7. Haeduos frumentum . . . flagitare: demanded of the Haedui the grain which, etc.; for the two accusatives with verbs of demanding, see B. 178, 1, a; A. 396; G. 339; H. 411; flagitare is the Historical Infinitive; B. 335; A. 463; G. 647; H. 610. Note that the subject of the Historical Infinitive stands in the nominative. quod essent polliciti: subjunctive in implied indirect discourse, — which (he reminded them) they had promised; B. 323; A. 592, 3; G. 508, 3; H. 649, 1.

8. publice: in the name of their people. frigora: the cold climate; Caesar naturally compares it with that of Rome.

10. frumenta: note the plural, regularly used in Caesar to denote uncut grain; the singular denotes threshed grain. ne pabuli quidem: with ne quidem the emphatic word always stands between the two members.

11. eo frumento: dependent upon uti.

12. flumine Arari navibus: flumine is Ablative of the Way by which; B. 218, 9; A. 429, a; H. 476; navibus is Ablative of Means. propterea . . . quod: here separated; more often quod follows propterea immediately.

13. minus: here, as often, equivalent to non. iter ab Arari averterant: to the westward; see the map opposite p. 6.

14. diem ex die ducere: put him off day after day; diem is Accusative of Duration of Time; ducere (like the following dicere) is Historical Infinitive.

15. conferri, comportari, adesse: as subject of these infinitives understand frumentum. The infinitives themselves are the object of dicere. Note the gradual climax: was being gathered, was being hauled to headquarters, was at hand.

16. diutius: too long. quo die: repetition of the antecedent with the relative, as repeatedly before.

17. metiri: twice a month each soldier received a half bushel of grain or flour; metiri is the subject of oporteret. oporteret: subordinate clause in indirect discourse. eorum = Haeduorum.

19. in his: among these. magistratui: here office. For the dative, see B. 187, III; A. 370; G. 347; H. 429.

20. quem: grammatically its antecedent is magistratui, but logically it is the holder of the office, not the office itself. vergobretum: Latinized form of a Celtic designation, meaning 'dispenser of justice.' annuus: yearly; as often, the adjective has the force of an adverb.

21. in suos: over his countrymen.

22. quod sublevetur: subjunctive, because the reason is not the writer's; Caesar the writer ascribes it to Caesar the general; B. 286, 1; A. 540; G. 541; H. 588, II. posset: as subject understand id referring to frumentum; note the alternation in historical and principal tenses after the historical present; in posset . . . sublevetur.

23. propinquis hostibus: Ablative Absolute.

24. magna ex parte: in large measure; the phrase limits adductus.

25. susceperit: subjunctive with cum-causal. multo: Ablative of Degree of Difference.

26. quod sit destitutus: the subjunctive, as above in sublevetur, line 22.

28. quod: object of tacuerat; its antecedent is id understood, the object of proponit.

29. plurimum valeat, plus possint: plurimum and plus (originally Accusatives of Result Produced) have adverbial force.

Page 12. 2. ne conferant: from gathering; a substantive clause dependent upon detertere; B. 295, 3; A. 558, b; G. 547; H. 566; conferant and debeant are plural because of the plural force of the collective multitudinem; B. 254, 4, a; A. 280, a; G. 211, r. Exc. 1; H. 389, 1.

3. praestare: (saying) it was better; the infinitive depends upon the idea of saying involved in oratione. jam principatum: the actual supremacy; literally, the supremacy already.

4. possint: as subject understand ei referring to the Haedui.

5. neque dubitare debere, etc.: nor ought they to doubt that, etc. As subject of debere we should naturally expect se referring to the same persons as hos above. quin sint erepturi: that they intended to take away; a substantive clause, the object of dubitare; B. 298; A. 558; G. 555, 2; H. 595, 1. The inverted order (sint erepturi for erepturi sint) is not uncommon. The active periphrastic conjugation often indicates intended or contemplated action.

6. Haeduis: Dative of Separation; B. 188, 2, d; A. 381; G. 347, r. 5; H. 427.

8. quaeque = et quae, i.e. et ea quae. hos a se coerceri non posse: i.e. despite his position as supreme magistrate or vergobretus.

9. quin etiam: in fact or moreover. quod, etc.: as to the fact that he had announced, as to his having announced. necessario coactus: under compulsion; literally, of necessity, having been forced. His position as chief magistrate naturally compelled him to account for the failure of the Haedui to keep their engagements.

10. id: namely, giving the real causes of the failure to supply the promised grain.

14. pluribus praesentibus: in the presence of a large number, or too many.

15. concilium dimittit, Liscum retinet: an instance of Adversative A-syn-de-ton. Asyndeton is the omission of a conjunction; 'adversative' means that the omitted conjunction is 'but' (sed); B. 346, b; A. 601, c; G. 473, r.; H. 657, 6.

16. ex solo: understand eo, referring to Liscus.

18. esse vera: that they (namely, the representations of Liscus and others) were true; esse vera is more fully explained by what follows. ipsum esse: was the very person.

19. summa audacia: (a man) of the greatest boldness; Ablative of Quality.

20. rerum novarum: a change in government, as above, p. 6, line 25.

21. portoria, vectigalia: portoria were customs duties; vectigalia, all other revenues.

22. redempta habere: had farmed; redempta is the participle limiting portoria and vectigalia. The expression is hardly different from redemisse. Compare coactum habebat, p. 10, line 25, in the sense of coegerat. Farming the revenues consisted in undertaking their collection on private account. They were sold by auction to the highest bidder, who naturally paid as little as possible and collected as much as possible, often more than he was justly entitled to. In Dumnorix's case, as Caesar tells us, the auction was a farce. illo licente: when he made a bid.

23. contra: against him; contra is here an adverb. et . . . et: both . . . and.

26. neque = et non, a combination avoided in Latin.

27. largiter posse: had great power; for the adverb in -iter from largus, see B. 77, 4; A. 214, c; G. 92. 2. hujus potentiae causa: B. 198, 1; A. 359, b; G. 373; H. 475, 2.

28. Biturigibus: their name survives in the modern town of Bourges. They dwelt to the west of the Haedui.

29. collocasse = collocavisse; had given (literally placed) in marriage. ex Helvetiis uxorem: namely, the daughter of Orgetorix.

30. sororem ex matre: his half-sister; literally, sister from his mother. Dumnorix's mother married twice. nuptum: the supine, expressing purpose. Do and colloco are treated as verbs of motion; B. 340, 1, b; A. 509; G. 435; H. 633, 1. in alias civitates: the idea of motion in collocasse leads to the use of in with the accusative instead of in with the ablative. Above, however, p. 12, line 28, in Biturigibus collocasse occurs.

Page 13. 1. cupere: was kindly disposed to. Helvetiis: for the dative, see B. 187, II, a; A. 367; G. 346, R. 2; H. 426, 4, n.

2. suo nomine: privately, personally; literally, on his own account. Dumnorix's opposition to Caesar was twofold: 1) he was opposed on public grounds to the extension of Roman influence in Gaul; 2) he was privately opposed to the diminution of his own influence.

5. si quid accidat Romanis: i.e. if the Romans should receive any check in Gaul; a simple future condition in indirect discourse. summam in spem venire: entertained the highest hopes; literally, came into the highest hope.

6. regni obtinendi: gerundive construction. Note that regni depends upon spem; obtinendi limits regni. imperio: under the sway; Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; B. 221; H. 473, 3.

9. quod proelium . . . esset factum: as regarded the unfavorable cavalry fight that had occurred, etc.; literally, as to the fact that the fight had occurred. For the fight referred to, see chapter 15.

10. paucis ante diebus: diebus is Ablative of Degree of Difference.

11. factum (esse) a Dumnorige: Caesar implies that Dumnorix had fled unnecessarily.

12. auxilio: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2, b; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433.

15. cum accederent: a causal clause; B. 286, 2; A. 549; G. 586; H. 598

16. res: facts. quod traduxisset, etc.: (namely) that he had conducted. The quod-clauses are in apposition with res. The subjunctive is due to attraction; B. 324; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652.

17. quod . . . curasset: that he had arranged for the exchange of hostages; B. 337, 8, b, 2; A. 500, 4; G. 430; H. 623. inter eos: namely, the Sequani and Helvetii.

18. injussu suo et civitatis: without his (Caesar's) order and that of the state (of the Haedui).

19. inscientibus ipsis: without their knowledge; ipsis refers to Caesar and the Haedui; inscientibus and insciente are almost the only forms of this adjective; it occurs chiefly in the Ablative Absolute.

20. satis esse causae: that there was sufficient reason; literally, enough of reason (Genitive of the Whole); satis is the subject of esse. quare . . . animadverteret: why he should either punish him himself; Relative Clause of Purpose. Compare quare timeret, p. 10, line 3, and the note.

21. aut . . . juberet: or order the state to. The Latin repeats the verb (animadvertere); in English we avoid this.

23. his . . . repugnabat: to all this there was only one obstacle; literally, only one thing fought against these things, etc. For the dative with verbs of resisting, see B. 187, 11, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 1. quod cognoverat: the fact that he knew. Observe that the perfect of cognosco means 'I know' (literally, 'I have become acquainted with'), and the pluperfect, 'I knew' (literally, 'I had become acquainted with').

26. ne offenderet: lest he should offend; a Substantive Clause Developed from the Optative, used as the object of verebatur; B. 296, 2; A. 564; G. 550; H. 567, 1. ejus: namely, Dumnorix.

27. priusquam conaretur: priusquam regularly takes the subjunctive to denote an act as anticipated, i.e. an act that some one looks forward to as something to prepare for, to avoid, or the like. Thus here, before he should undertake anything, is equivalent to in preparation for his undertaking; hence the subjunctive; B. 292, 1, a; A. 551, b; G. 577; H. 605.

28. cotidianis: i.e. the ordinary, customary.

30. principem: a prominent man. Galliae provinciae: i.e. provincia nostra. cui . . . habebat: in whom (literally, to whom) he had the highest confidence in all things.

2. simul: this limits both commonefacit and ostendit. ipso: Divitiacus.

3. sint dicta, dixerit: indirect questions.

4. apud se: in Caesar's presence.

5. ut statuatur vel jubeatur: Substantive Clauses Developed from the Volitive; objects of petit atque hortatur; B. 295, 1; A. 563; G. 546; H. 565. ejus: depending on animi, which in turn depends upon offensione. ipse : this refers to Caesar. Caesar's request is that he himself be permitted either to take action in Dumnorix's case or to order the state of the Haedui to take action. The regular form of expressing this idea would have been ut sibi statuere liceat, etc. causa cognita : having heard the case; cognoscere is the regular word for conducting a judicial investigation.

8. ne statueret : another Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive; object of obsecrare. The origin of such clauses may be clearly seen in a sentence like te obsecro, ne quid gravius statuas, originally, 'I entreat you, take no severe action.' quid gravius : anything very severe; literally, severer, i.e. than absolutely necessary.

10. scire se : dependent on the idea of saying involved in obsecrare. nec quemquam : and that no one. The Latin avoids et neminem. ex eo : eo is neuter and refers to the general situation of affairs.

11. ipse : Divitiacus. plurimum : to be taken with posset.

12. ille : (and) he; Asyndeton. The reference is to Dumnorix.

13. per se crevisset : i.e. Dumnorix had grown powerful through Divitiacus; se is the indirect reflexive. opibus ac nervis : dependent upon uteretur.

15. suam : again the indirect reflexive referring to Divitiacus; it limits gratiam as well as perniciem. uteretur : namely, Dumnorix; subjunctive of subordinate clause in indirect discourse. Yet strictly we should have had the infinitive here; B. 314, 4. fraterno : for his brother; the adjective is here equivalent to an objective genitive.

16. quod si : but if, the regular meaning of this phrase. si quid accidisset : a mild form of expression for 'if any penalty should be inflicted on him'; accidisset represents a future perfect indicative of direct discourse.

17. eum locum : such a position.

18. neminem existimaturum, non, etc. : in English we should convert the two negatives into an affirmative, — everybody would think it had been done with his approval; sua voluntate is Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; B. 221; A. 412; G. 399; H. 473, 3.

19. futurum uti averterentur : the hearts of all Gaul would be turned away from him; literally, it would happen that the hearts would be turned away. The future infinitive passive (in -um iri) is very rare. Ordinarily its place is taken by an ut-clause with futurum (esse) as here; uti averterentur is a Substantive Clause of Result and is the subject of futurum (esse).

21. cum : the conjunction. pluribus verbis : Ablative of Attendant Circumstance. The comparative here, as frequently, has the force merely of a stronger positive, — in many words.

22. rogat, finem orandi faciat: begs him to make an end of entreating; faciat is a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, used as the object of rogat, — originally, begs him, let him make an end, etc. Do not conceive this kind of clause to result from the omission of ut; this is really the earliest form of such clauses; ut was added later, but the simple subjunctive without ut is often found at all periods of the language; B. 295, 8; A. 565, a; G. 546, r. 2; H. 565, 4.

23. tanti: of so much account; predicate Genitive of Quality; B. 203, 3; A. 417; G. 380; H. 448, 1. ejus: Divitiacus. se: Caesar.

24. uti . . . condonet: that he pardons the wrong to the state and abandons his own resentment in deference to his wish and entreaties; literally, relinquishes . . . to his wish, etc., voluntati and precibus being indirect objects. Note that in English we must translate condonet differently with injuriam and dolorem. Caesar is not entirely frank in the reasons he assigns for the pardon of Dumnorix. The fact was, he could not afford to arouse the further hostility of the Haedui by punishing Dumnorix. Dumnorix was undoubtedly selfish, unscrupulous, and treacherous. Yet he was the head of an influential party, who doubtless regarded him as a sort of national champion opposed on patriotic grounds to the further extension of Roman sovereignty in Gaul. His execution or imprisonment would have been the signal for a formidable uprising. Caesar, therefore, was forced either to spare Dumnorix or to incur the risk of embarrassing his plans at a most critical juncture.

25. fratrem adhibet: Asyndeton (omission of the conjunction), just as above, p. 12, line 15, concilium dimittit, Liscum retinet. Where et is lacking, we call the asyndeton copulative. Asyndeton is particularly characteristic of vivid, rapid narration, as here.

26. reprehendat, intellegat, queratur: subjunctive in indirect question.

27. ut vitet: Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive. Compare moneo, suspiciones vites, 'I advise you, shun suspicion.'

28. in reliquum tempus: for the future. praeterita: the past; literally, past things.

29. Divitiaco fratri condonare: this is precisely like injuriam voluntati condonare above. Dumnorigi: over Dumnorix.

30. ut: introducing possit. agat, loquatur: indirect questions; quibuscum loquatur is another instance of Copulative Asyndeton.

Page 15. 1. eodem die, etc.: Caesar now resumes the narrative broken off at chapter 16. The pupil will recall that the Romans were following closely on the heels of the Helvetii, and at times even engaging in skirmishes with them. Caesar was merely waiting to secure a favorable opportunity for engaging them in a pitched battle. What chiefly hampered him was the lack of adequate provisions for his troops. The Haedui had promised to provide him with supplies, but had failed to do so, owing to the machinations of Dumnorix. Even after the latter's treachery was revealed, the Haedui do not seem to have furnished the promised grain. As Caesar tells us in chapter 22, he was obliged temporarily to abandon the pursuit of the Helvetii and turn aside to Bibracte to procure the necessary provisions. hostes consedis: dependent on the idea of saying in certior factus.

3. qualis esset: indirect question, dependent upon cognoscerent. qualis in circuitu ascensus: i.e. of what nature the ascent, in case part of his forces should make a detour around the foot of the hill, ascend it from the opposite side, and thus secure the advantage of position.

4. qui cognoscerent: Relative Clause of Purpose. The antecedent of qui is homines understood, the object of misit.

5. facilem esse: understand eum (i.e. ascensum) as subject of esse. de tertia vigilia: as on p. 8, line 19. T. Labienum: Titus Labienus, a trusted officer. Caesar had left him in charge of the line of defence near Geneva at the time he had set out for northern Italy to enroll fresh legions. legatum pro praetore: lieutenant with authority of general. Note that praetor has two meanings: 1) general, commander, as here; 2) praetor, i.e. a magistrate charged with the administration of justice. The second is the more common meaning. The first, however, is the original one.

6. et eis ducibus: and with those as guides; eis is governed by cum; ducibus is in predicate relation to eis. qui iter cognoverant: the scouts referred to in line 4, above.

8. quid sui consili sit: what his plan is; literally, what is of his plan, what belongs to his plan; a predicate Genitive of Possession. de quarta vigilia: i.e. in the last quarter of a short summer night. The sun rises at 4 o'clock in central France at this season.

9. itinere, quo: Ablatives of the Way by which. ad: here, against; ordinarily, to, towards.

10. rei militaris: in military affairs; Genitive with Adjectives; B. 204, 1; A. 349, a; G. 374; H. 451, 1.

11. habebatur: was considered. The sequel shows that Considius's reputation was not borne out on the present occasion; but Caesar wishes to justify his choice. L. Sullae, M. Crassi: Sulla was one of the greatest masters of warfare produced by Rome. He had served in the Jugurthine War, 112-106 B.C., and later in the war against Mithridates, 88-84 B.C. Crassus had successfully conducted operations against the insurrection headed by Spartacus, 73-71 B.C.

12. in: understand eo (i.e. exercitu).

14. cum teneretur, abesset: cum-clauses of situation; B. 288, 1, B; A. 546; G. 585; H. 600, II. summus mons: the top of the mountain.

15. ipse abesset: Copulative Asyndeton; ipse refers to Caesar.

16. passibus: Ablative of Comparison; with plus, minus, longius, and amplius we may have either the Ablative of Comparison or the Accusative of Time or Space. neque . . . aut . . . and . . . neither . . . nor; neque connects cognitus esset to abesset.

17. cognitus esset: also dependent upon cum.

18. equo admisso: with his horse at a gallop; literally, his horse let out; Ablative Absolute.

20. Gallicis: the Helvetii were ranked as Gauls. insignibus: ornamental devices of various kinds.

22. ut erat ei praeceptum a Caesare: in accordance with the directions given him by Caesar, not to join, etc.; literally, as (= just as) it had been ordered to him. The pupil must not regard ut as causal. It practically never has that force in Latin. ne committeret: a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive ('let him not engage'). It is the subject of erat praeceptum.

23. ipsius = Caesaris.

24. visae essent: subjunctive of subordinate clause in indirect discourse, representing a future perfect indicative of the direct discourse, — 'do not join battle, unless my forces shall (first) have been seen.' undique: i.e. Labienus from the mountain and Caesar from level ground.

26. multo die: late in the day; literally, in the late day; Ablative of Time.

28. quod: its antecedent is id understood, the object of renuntiasset.

29. pro viso: as seen; viso is the participle used substantively. The substantive use of adjectives in the neuter singular is not common; it occurs most frequently in the Genitive of the Whole and after prepositions; B. 237, 2, a. sibi: Caesar; indirect reflexive. quo consuerat intervallo: condensed form for eo intervallo quo consuerat; intervallo is Ablative of Attendant Circumstance. The usual distance between the two armies was five or six miles, as Caesar tells us in chapter 15, p. 11, line 5. consuerat = consueverat.

3. diei: B. 201, 3, a; A. 359, b; H. 446, 5. biduum: observe that the Latin regularly says biduum, 'two days'; triduum, 'three days'; quadriduum, 'four days'; not duos, tres, quattuor dies. Larger numbers of days are expressed by quinque dies, sex dies, etc. Compare the corresponding expressions for 'two years,' 'three years,' 'four years,' biennium, triennium, quadriennium.

4. cum: (up to the time) when.

5. Bibracte: in the case of proper names, neuter i-stems regularly have -e (not -i) in the ablative; B. 39, 2; A. 76, n. 2; H. 103, 2. Bibracte is identified with the modern Mont Beuvray, some miles west of Autun.

6. milibus: Ablative of Comparison. rei frumentariae prospiciendum (esse): that he ought to be providing for grain; literally, that it ought to be looked out, etc.

8. Bibracte ire: he marched northward. fugitivos: runaway (slaves).

9. Gallorum: here an adjective.

10. quod existimarent commisissent, confiderent: reasons existing in the minds of the Helvetii; B. 286, 1; A. 540; G. 541; H. 588, 11. timore perterritos: the emphasis rests on these words, not on discedere. It was perfectly plain that the Romans were retreating; the Helvetii thought they were retreating from fright.

11. eo magis: all the more; literally, the more on account of this; eo is explained by quod non commisissent; eo quod may be compared with propterea quod. superioribus locis occupatis: though they had seized higher ground; Ablative Absolute. The reference is to Labienus's occupation of the mountain top. The Helvetii, however, misinterpreted Labienus's failure to fight.

13. re frumentaria: Ablative of Separation. posse: as subject understand Romanos.

14. a novissimo agmine: at the rear; for this use of a, compare a flumine Rhodano, 'at the Rhone,' p. 1, line 18, and the note.

16. id animum advertit: noticed that; animum advertit forms one transitive idea and hence takes the accusative.

17. in proximum collem: the place is uncertain. It was most probably near Toulon on the Arroux, some fifteen miles southeast of Bibracte (Mont Beuvray). qui sustineret: Relative Clause of Purpose.

19. triplicem aciem: this was the usual arrangement. The ten cohorts of each legion were arranged in three lines, four in the front line, and three in each of the others. Each cohort numbered about 360 men. legionum quattuor veteranarum: of (i.e. consisting of) four veteran legions; Genitive of Material; B. 197; A. 344; H. 440, 4. These four comprised the original legion mentioned in chapter 7, along with the three that Caesar had brought from Aquileia (chapter 10). The four legions stood side by side, each in three lines.

20. duas legiones: these were raw troops and hence unfit to be put in a position of the greatest responsibility.

21. auxilia: these were light-armed provincial troops.

22. ac: and so; explanatory of what has just preceded. totum montem: i.e. above the triple line, which was in colle medio. hominibus: Ablative of Means; hence not ab hominibus (Agent). sarcinas: the packs of the legionaries, which they carried on the march. Each sarcina consisted of rations, a cooking outfit, tools, etc. The weight of the whole was some forty pounds. Modern soldiers often carry as much. Introd. § 30.

23. his qui . . . constiterant: namely, the two legions and the auxiliaries; superiore acie is not a part of the triplex acies.

26. ipsi: they themselves, as opposed to their wagons and baggage. confertissima acie: Ablative of Means with rejecto. equitatu: Caesar had sent the cavalry to meet the first onset of the Helvetii while he was drawing up his own troops.

27. phalange facta: in the Gallic phalanx "the men stood close together, forming a compact mass. The shields of the front rank formed a vertical wall, and those of the rest were held overhead, lapping over one another like the shingles on a roof, only in the reverse order. It will be seen that the phalanx depended for its success on the momentum of its mass. However, only those on its outer edges could raise their weapons; while the rest were practically imprisoned in the crowd. Here the Romans had a great advantage; for from their open and pliable order of battle, nearly every man sooner or later was in action" (Judson, Caesar's Army, § 224). sub: the proper word, since the Helvetii advanced upwards from lower ground.

28. suo: understand equo remoto from the following remotis equis. omnium: i.e. of all the mounted officers, such as the legati and the tribuni militum.

3. pilis: the pilum was the characteristic weapon of the Roman legionary. It was a heavy spear, some ten pounds in weight, with a thick wooden shaft, four and one-half feet long, and a projecting iron point measuring two feet. Intro. § 29.

5. Gallis = Helvetiis. magno impedimento: literally, for a great embarrassment; Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2, a; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433. But translate as though nominative. ad pugnam: in fighting.

6. quod: that. The quod-clause is the subject of erat. pluribus: several; as often. scutis transfixis et colligatis: this was a result of the arrangement of the Helvetii in the phalanx, as already described.

7. cum ferrum inflexisset: whenever the iron had bent; cum with the subjunctive, denoting recurring action. The indicative is more usually employed to denote recurring action; B. 288, 3 and a; G. 584, r.; H. 601, 4.

8. sinistra impedita: the shield was held in the left hand. multi: the usual order would have been ut multi; this order emphasizes multi.

10. nudo corpore: Ablative Absolute.

11. pedem referre: to withdraw; literally, to carry back the foot.

12. suberat: we should have expected aberat, 'was distant'; subesse means 'to be near at hand.' mille: ordinarily an adjective, but here used as a noun; B. 80, 5, a; A. 134, d. n.; G. 293; H. 168. eo: thither; the adverb.

13. capto monte, etc.: when the mountain had been gained and our men were, etc. Boji et Tulingi: mentioned in chapter 5 as allies of the Helvetii.

15. praesidio: Dative of Purpose. ex itinere: on the march.

16. ab latere aperto: on the exposed flank, i.e. on the side away from the hill on which Caesar's forces were originally drawn up. circumvenire: dependent upon coeperunt, to be supplied from coeperunt farther on in this sentence.

19. conversa signa, etc.: wheeled about and advanced in two divisions; literally, bore their changed standards, etc. Caesar's statement is inexact; not all of the Romans faced about, — only those belonging to the tertia acies, which met the Boji and Tulingi. The rest were already in position to withstand the rallying Helvetii. prima et secunda acies: in partitive apposition with Romani.

20. victis ac summotis: those conquered and driven from the field, namely, the Helvetii. For the dative, see B. 187, ii; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426. venientes: namely, the Boji and Tulingi.

22. ancipiti: double, two-fold; literally, two-headed. pugnatum est: they fought, the battle raged; literally, it was fought.

24. alteri . . . alteri: the one host . . . the other; namely, the Helvetii on the one hand and the Boji and Tulingi on the other.

25 nam: justifying the statements se in montem receperunt and se contulerunt, which imply an orderly withdrawal, not flight. hoc toto proelio: in the course of this whole battle; Ablative of Time within which; B. 231; A. 423, 424, d; G. 393; H. 486, 1.

26. cum: though; cum adversative regularly takes the subjunctive; B. 309, 3; A. 326; G. 587; H. 598. hora septima: the first hour after noon, ending about one o'clock. The Romans divided the time from sunrise to sunset into twelve horae, whose duration varied with the season of the year. But the seventh hora always began at noon. pugnatum sit: the perfect subjunctive is here used as an historical tense; B. 268, 6; A. 485, c; G. 513; H. 550.

27. aversum: in flight; in predicate agreement with hostem. ad multam noctem: till late at night.

29. e loco superiore: namely, from the top of the wagons.

30. coniciebant, subiciebant, vulnerabant: kept hurling, etc.

32. impedimentis castrisque: for the ablative with potior, really an Ablative of Means, see B. 218, 1; A. 410; G. 407; H. 477.

Page 18. 2. unus e filiis: e filiis takes the place of the Genitive of the Whole; B. 201, 1, a; A. 346, c; G. 372, r, 2; H. 444, 1. captus est: agreeing with the nearer of the two subjects; B. 255, 2; A. 205, d; G. 285, Exc. 1; H. 392.

4. ea tota nocte: Ablative of Duration of Time, a construction not particularly infrequent, especially when the noun is modified by totus; B. 231, 1; A. 424, b; G. 393, 2; H. 417, 2. nullam partem noctis, die quarto: i.e. they marched all the first night, not all three nights.

5. in fines Lingonum: some seventy miles to the north of the scene of the battle.

6. cum: since.

7. triduum: not tres dies; see note on biduum, p. 16, line 3.

8. Lingonās: a Greek accusative formation; B. 47, 3; A. 81, 82; G. 66, 4; H. 109, 5.

9. ne juvent: not to help them; a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, dependent on the notion of ordering involved in litteras misit,—literally, let them not help. qui si: if they, namely, the Lingones; literally, if who.

10. juvissent: should help (them); subordinate clause in indirect discourse, representing a future perfect of the direct. eodem loco: in the same light; the preposition in is freely omitted with loco. quo: as; literally, in which. Helvetios: dependent upon haberet understood. habituum (esse): dependent on the idea of saying involved in litteras misit.

13. qui cum: when these.

15. eos: the Helvetii, of course, not the envoys.

16. essent: Subjunctive by Attraction; B. 324, 1; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652.

18. qui perfigissent: who (he alleged) had fled; subjunctive in implied indirect discourse; B. 323; A. 592, 3; G. 508, 3; H. 649, 1. dum conquiruntur: dum, 'while,' regularly takes the indicative of the historical present; B. 293, 1; A. 556; G. 229, R.; H. 604, 1. Translate: were being hunted up, etc. ea: these things.

21. perterriti: agreeing with milia in sense, but not in strict grammatical form; B. 235, B, 2, c; A. 286, b; G. 211, R. 1, Exc. b; H. 389, 2. ne . . . afficerentur: lest they should be visited with punishment; for the subjunctive after expressions of fearing, see B. 296, 2; A. 564; G. 550; H. 567, 1.

23. aut occultari aut ignorari posse: could either be concealed (if Caesar tried to find them) or (better yet) remain unnoticed.

24. existimarent: the reason in the mind of the Helvetii; hence the subjunctive. prima nocte: in the early part of the night; B. 241, 1; A. 293; G. 291, R. 2; H. 498, 1.

27. quod ubi Caesar rescit: when Caesar learned this (literally which). quorum: the antecedent is his.

28. his: indirect object of imperavit. uti conquirerent: to hunt them up; Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, used as the object of imperavit ('let them hunt them up'). si vellent: subordinate clause in indirect discourse. Note that a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive frequently represents an imperative clause of direct discourse. Thus here: 'hunt them up and bring them back, if you wish,' etc. sibi: in his eyes; literally, to him; Dative of Person Judging; B. 188, 2, c; G. 353; A. 378, 1; H. 425, 4.

Page 19. 1. reductos: those led back; the participle is used as a substantive. in hostium numero habuit: i.e. he butchered them all, an act as atrocious and cruel as it was unnecessary.

5. domi . . . quo famem tolerarent: they had nothing at home with which to relieve hunger; quo tolerarent is a Relative Clause of Purpose.

6. ut copiam facerent: to furnish a supply.

7. quos: agreeing in gender with vicos, as the nearest word, but referring also to oppida.

9. ea maxime ratione: particularly for this reason; explained by the following quod-clause.

13. Allobrogibus: these really formed a part of the Province. Bojos, etc.: at the request of the Haedui, he permitted them to locate the Boji, etc.; literally, he permitted the Haedui, requesting it, to locate the Boji, etc. Bojos is object of collocarent, but is placed at the head of the sentence for emphasis. Haeduis is indirect object of concessit; the direct object is the ut-clause. The Boji, it will be remembered, were a wandering tribe from central Europe, who had no home of their own.

14. egregia virtute erant cogniti: were known (to be) of superior prowess; predicate Ablative of Quality.

16. in parem condicionem atque ipsi erant: into a like condition with themselves; literally, like as they themselves were. With words denoting similarity or comparison, atque often means 'as,' 'than'; B. 341, 1, c; A. 324, c; G. 643; H. 508, 5.

18. tabulae: lists; literally, tablets. For writing, the Romans often used thin boards covered with black wax, on which they wrote with a sharp-pointed instrument (of ivory or metal), called a stilus. Very likely the Gauls followed the same custom. litteris Graecis: the Gauls had probably become familiar with the Greek alphabet through intercourse with Marseilles, which was a Greek colony.

19. confectæ: written.

20. nominatim: item by item. The reference is to the different items afterwards mentioned. domo: from home; B. 229, 1, b; A. 427, 1; G. 390, 2; H. 462, 4.

21. qui possent: Clause of Characteristic.

22. pueri, senes mulieresque: loosely introduced. A verb is easily supplied in thought. rerum: items.

23. capitum: persons.

25. ex his qui . . . possent: of these, those who could bear arms; ex his depends upon ei understood, the antecedent of qui. ad: about, limiting nonaginta duo.

26. fuerunt: attracted to the number of the predicate noun, milia; B. 254, 4; A. 280, a; G. 211, r. 1, Exc. c; H. 389.

27. eorum: dependent upon censu.

28. milium C et X: dependent on numerus. About 250,000, therefore, of the original number were either dead or missing.

Page 20. 2. gratulatum: the supine, denoting purpose.

3. intelligere: dependent on the idea of saying involved in gratulatum. pro veteribus injuriis: the emphasis of the clause rests on these words. The reference is to the defeat of Cassius by the Helvetii; see p. 5, line 22, with note.

4. populi Romani: Objective Genitive.

5. repetisset: for repetivisset. The subjunctive is due to the indirect discourse. ex usu: to the advantage. terrae Galliae: the land of Gaul. But Galliae is really an appositive. Compare expressions like flumen Rhenus.

6. eo consilio: explained by the following uti-clause.

7. florētissimis rebus: with most flourishing prospects (of success); Ablative of Attendant Circumstance. domos: for the plural, see note on regna, p. 3, line 20.

8. imperio: for the ablative with potior (really an Ablative of Means), see B. 218, 1; A. 410; G. 407; H. 477.

9. domicilio: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 1; A. 382; G. 356; H. 425, 3. ex magna copia: understand locorum.

11. judicassent: representing the future perfect indicative of direct discourse. stipendiarias: in predicate relation to civitates.

12. haberent: in the same construction as inferrent.

13. sibi: dependent upon liceret. concilium totius Galliae: Caesar probably had no authority either to permit or to forbid such an assemblage. The Gallic chieftains, however, requested the privilege as a matter of policy.

14. voluntate: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; B. 221; A. 412; G. 399; H. 473, 3.

17. ne quis: observe that the Latin always uses ne quis (not ut nemo) in purpose clauses and in Substantive Clauses Developed from the Volitive. enuntiaret: a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, dependent on the idea of commanding involved in sanxerunt. As object of enuntiaret, we must understand id or ea, referring to the proceedings of the assembly. nisi quibus, etc.: except those to whom the duty should be assigned; mandatum esset is impersonal; as antecedent of quibus understand ei.

19. idem: nominative plural, instead of eidem. qui ante fuerant: i.e. who had previously come to his headquarters.

22. Caesari, etc.: threw themselves at Caesar's feet; literally, to Caesar at his feet; Caesari is Dative of Reference; B. 188, 1, n.; A. 377; G. 350; H. 425, 4, n.

23. non minus, etc.: indirect discourse, dependent upon a verb of saying to be supplied. id: Accusative of Result Produced; B. 176, 2, a; A. 390, c; G. 332; H. 409, 1. ne enuntiarentur: in apposition with id.

Page 21. 1. Galliae: used in the narrow sense of the country occupied by the Celts; and of this, probably only the eastern portion is meant.

2. alterius . . . alterius: the one . . . the other.

3. Arvernos: these dwelt to the southwest of the Haedui. Their name survives in the modern Auvergne. cum contenderent: after these had contended. We should have expected the pluperfect tense.

4. factum esse: it had come to pass.

5. uti arcesserentur: a Substantive Clause of Result, subject of factum esse; B. 297, 2; A. 569, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 571, 1. Sequanis: as rivals of the Haedui, these naturally had combined with the Arverni. mercede: Ablative of Price; B. 225; A. 416; G. 404; H. 478.

6. horum: the emphatic word of the sentence, and hence placed first.

7. posteaquam: for the commoner postquam.

8. adamassent: for adamarissent. traductos: understand esse. plures: i.e. Germanos. esse: as subject understand Germanos.

9. ad numerum: to the number.

10. clientes: dependent tribes are meant, as, for example, the Ambarri.

11. omnem nobilitatem, etc.: this must not be taken too literally. In his eagerness to enlist the sympathy of Caesar, Divitiacus naturally exaggerates the losses of the Haedui.

13. qui: its antecedent is eos understood, the subject of coactos esse.

14. hospitio: guest friendship, an institution extensively recognized among all ancient states, whereby the representatives of states sustaining this relation afforded each other mutual assistance and protection, often exchanging gifts and tokens of good will. plurimum: with adverbial force, as frequently with possum and valeo.

15. ante: the Haedui had been allies of the Romans as early as 121 B.C., when the Allobroges were subjugated.

16. obsides: as hostages; predicate accusative.

17. sese repetituros (esse), etc.: the infinitives depend upon the idea of promising involved in jure jurando.

18. recusaturos quo minus essent: refuse to be; quo minus essent is a substantive clause used as the object of recusaturos; B. 295, 3; A. 558, b; G. 549; H. 568, 8.

19. illorum: namely, the Sequani.

20. unum se esse: he was the only one.

21. potuerit: another instance of the perfect subjunctive used as an historical tense; B. 268, 6; A. 485, c; G. 513; H. 550.

23. postulatum: the supine.

25. pejus: a worse thing. victoribus: here used adjectively. victoribus Sequanis, Haeduis victis: an instance of the rhetorical figure known as Chiasmus; B. 350, 11, c; A. 598, f and n.; G. 682 and n.; H. 666, 2. Chiasmus consists in the inversion of the order of two parallel expressions for the purpose of emphasis. Thus, instead of victis Haeduis, corresponding to victoribus Sequanis, Caesar says Haeduis victis.

26. Ariovistus: thought by some to be the same word as the German Heerfürst, 'the leader of the host.'

28. optimus totius Galliae: the same district is still one of the richest and most beautiful in France. de altera parte tertia: from a second third. Note that de means 'from' in the sense of from a place where somebody or something properly belongs.

31. quibus . . . pararentur: for whom a place and abodes were to be provided; a Relative Clause of Purpose.

32. futurum esse: it would come to pass. omnes: namely, all the Gauls. uti pellerentur atque transirent: Substantive Clauses of Result, the subject of futurum (esse). For the periphrastic form of expression (futurum esse ut pellerentur, instead of pulsum iri), see B. 270, 3, a; A. 569, a; G. 248; H. 571, 1, 619, 2.

Page 22. 2. Gallicum: understand agrum from the following agro. In saying that the Gallic land was not to be compared with that of the Germans, Caesar means that the Gallic land was better, not worse. In English we should ordinarily reverse the terms of comparison.

3. hanc: i.e. Gallicam.

5. ut semel vicerit: when once he had conquered; by repraesentatio, vicerit and the other perfects and presents to the end of this chapter are used for the sake of greater vividness, instead of the pluperfect and imperfect, which we should naturally expect according to the principle for the sequence of tenses. In translation, however, the pluperfect and past should be used.

6. quod proelium: a battle which. For the incorporation of the antecedent in the relative clause, when the antecedent is an appositive, see B. 251, 4, b; G. 616, 2.

7. nobilissimi cujusque: of all the noblest men; literally, of each noblest man, — a very common Latin idiom.

8. in eos: upon them. omnia exempla cruciatusque: all punishments and tortures.

10. non posse: as subject understand eos, referring to the Sequani.

11. nisi quid sit auxili: unless there should be some help; literally, something of help.

12. Gallis: Dative of Agency; B. 189, 1; A. 374; G. 355; H. 431.

13. ut emigrant, etc.: substantive clauses in apposition with idem.

15. fortunam quaecumque accadat: whatever fortune should befall. Note the difference between the English and Latin idioms. haec si: the transposition emphasizes haec. By haec is meant the present conference.

16. enuntiata sint: should be reported. non dubitare: the subject is se understood, referring to Divitiacus. quin sumat: that he would inflict; the object of dubitare; B. 298; A. 558, a; G. 555, 2; H. 595, 1.

19. detertere posse, ne . . . traducatur: could prevent a greater multitude from being led across.

20. Rhenum: for the accusative dependent upon trans in composition, see B. 179, 3; A. 395 and n. 2; G. 331, r. 1; H. 413. traducatur: for the subjunctive, see B. 295, 3; A. 558, b; G. 547; H. 596, 2.

24. magno fletu: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance.

25. unos: alone.

26. tristes: the adjective has adverbial force; B. 239; A. 290; G. 325, r. 6; H. 497.

27. esset: Subjunctive of Indirect Question, dependent upon miratus.

28. respondere, permanere: Historical Infinitives; B. 335; A. 463; G. 647; H. 610.

29. saepius: i.e. again and again.

30. idem Divitiacus: Divitiacus again; literally, the same Divitiacus.

31. hoc: Ablative of Cause, on this account; explained by the following quod-clauses.

Page 23. 1. solī: limiting ei understood, referring to the Sequani.

2. in occulto: with ne . . . quidem. With ne quidem the emphatic idea is always placed between.

3. absentis: though absent. crudelitatem: object of horrent;

B. 175, 2, b; A. 388, a; G. 330, r.; H. 405, 1. velut si adesset: a Conditional Clause of Comparison. The subjunctive would be used even in direct discourse; B. 307, 1; A. 524; G. 602; H. 584.

4. reliquis: understand Gallis. tamen: at least, i.e. even if nothing else were possible.

5. Sequanis: Dative of Agency with essent perferendi.

9. sibi eam rem, etc.: he would consider that matter; literally, that matter would be for a care to him; curae is Dative of Purpose.

10. beneficio suo: Caesar alludes to the fact that in the previous year (namely, in 59 B.C.) he had been instrumental in securing the recognition of Ariovistus as a friend of the Roman people. This title was conferred only by the Senate.

11. facturum (esse): governed by spem.

12. secundum ea: next to those things; i.e. those things influenced him most, but other considerations, now to be mentioned, also weighed heavily.

13. quare putaret: to think. The construction is peculiar, and seems to result from the confusion of two different forms of expression: (1) multae res erant quare putaret, 'there were many things on account of which he thought' (Clause of Characteristic); (2) multae res eum hortabantur ut putaret, 'many things urged him to think' (Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive). Such instances of confusion must be reckoned a fault of style; yet they are occasionally to be met with, even in the best writers.

14. in primis: especially; literally, among the first things, a common adverbial phrase. quod videbat: the fact that he saw; in apposition with multae res above.

Of the different grounds here enumerated by Caesar as impelling him to resist the claims of Ariovistus, probably none was so cogent in Caesar's mind as the reflection that his recent defeat of the Helvetii had made him the champion of the Gauls. To maintain that prestige, he must now deliver them from the oppressor, or run the risk of a Gallic alliance with Ariovistus, directed against himself.

18. quod: (a thing) which; the antecedent of quod is involved in the preceding infinitives. in tanto imperio, etc.: i.e. in so great an empire as that of the Roman people; literally, in the so great empire.

20. Germanos consuescere, et multitudinem venire, etc.: for the Germans to become accustomed . . . and for a great host of them to come, he saw was dangerous. The infinitives are the subject of esse, to be supplied as object of videbat; periculosum is a predicate adjective agreeing with the infinitives taken together as representing one idea.

22. sibi temperaturos quin exirent: would refrain from marching forth; literally, would restrain themselves by which they should not march out. For the construction of sibi, see B. 187, II, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 4, n. For the quin-clause, see B. 298; A. 558; G. 555; H. 594, II.

24. ut: as; the subjunctive is due to the indirect discourse. The ut-clause limits exirent atque contenderent. Cimbri Teutonique: these barbarians invaded Gaul and northern Italy about 108 B.C. and defeated six Roman armies before they were finally crushed by Marius in 102 and 101 B.C.

27. Rhodanus: i.e. only the Rhone, which, being easily forded, offered but a slight barrier to an invader. quibus rebus, etc.: difficulties which he thought ought to be met as early as possible; literally, against which things he thought it ought to be run. For the dative, see B. 187, III; A. 370; G. 347; H. 429. With occurrentum, esse must be supplied.

29. non: grammatically this limits videretur. In English we should combine the negative with ferendus, — unbearable.

Page 24. 1. placuit ei, ut mitteret: he decided to send; literally, it pleased him, etc.; ut mitteret is the subject of placuit.

2. qui postularent: Relative Clause of Purpose. medium utriusque: between the two.

3. colloquio: Dative of Purpose. velle: dependent on the idea of saying involved in postularent.

4. summis utriusque rebus: matters of the greatest concern to both.

5. si quid ipsi . . . venturum fuisse: if he had needed anything from Caesar, he would have come to him; a contrary-to-fact condition in indirect discourse; B. 321, A, 2, a; A. 589, b; G. 597, 4; H. 647. Note that, though the condition refers to past time, the imperfect (not the pluperfect) tense is used. This is for the purpose of indicating that the act belongs to the present as well as to the past; i.e. if he had needed and were now needing; ipsi is Dative of Possession.

6. si quid ille, etc.: if he (Caesar) wanted anything of him (Ariovistus); velle takes two accusatives, like verbs of asking; B. 178, 1, a; A. 396; G. 341, n. 2; H. 411.

11. mirum: predicative adjective agreeing with the subject of videri, namely, the indirect question quid . . . esset. quid negoti: what business.

12. Caesari, populo Romano: Datives of Possession.

14. quoniam: introducing referret. tanto suo . . . affectus:

after being treated with so great kindness on his (Caesar's) part and that of the Roman people. A possessive pronoun and genitive are often treated as coördinate in Latin; thus here suo populi.

15. cum . . . appellatus esset: explaining beneficio. But this mark of honor had not been bestowed from motives of kindness; it had been dictated solely by political expediency. Ariovistus was supreme in Gaul, and the Romans had shrewdly sought to avoid an issue with him at a time when the migration of the Helvetii involved such danger to Roman interests in the province. in consulatu suo: 59 B.C.

17. hanc sibi gratiam referret: he made this return; literally, brought back this gratitude; sibi refers to Caesar. ut . . . gravaretur, etc.; (namely) that he objected, etc.; Substantive Clause of Result, in apposition with hanc gratiam.

19. dicendum sibi et cognoscendum (esse): that he (Ariovistus) ought to speak and examine. sibi: Dative of Agency. haec esse: these were the things; haec is explained by the following clauses, ne traduceret, etc.

20. ne quam . . . traduceret: let him not lead any, etc.; quam is the indefinite pronoun; traduceret and the following subjunctives are imperative clauses in indirect discourse.

21. trans Rhenum: trans is regularly expressed with traducere when the end of motion (as here in Galliam) is indicated.

22. Sequanis permetteret, ut illis liceret: in English, simply, let him allow the Sequani; literally, let him permit the Sequani that it be allowed to them, careless redundancy of expression; ut liceret is a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive; it is the object of permitteret.

23. voluntate ejus: with his (Ariovistus's) approval; Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; B. 221; A. 412; G. 399; H. 473, 3.

24. reddere: namely, to the Haedui. illis: i.e. the Sequani; dependent upon liceret. neve: neve (neu) and not neque is regularly used with any kind of subjunctive that regularly takes ne and not non.

27. impetraret: namely, Caesar.

28. sese: subject of non neglecturum (esse) at the close of this sentence. M. Messala, M. Pisone: consuls in 61 B.C. For the omission of the conjunction, see note on p. 2, line 9.

29. uti: introducing defenderet.

Page 25. 1. quod posset: so far as he could do it; B. 283, 5; A. 535, d; G. 627, R. 1; H. 591, 3. commodo: to (literally, with) the interest of the state; Ablative of Attendant Circumstance.

2. Haeduos defenderet: to the modern reader this appeal to the decree of three years before is not without a touch of humor. The situation at the time was this: Ariovistus had just crushed the Gauls (including the Haedui) at the battle of Admagetobriga, and the Haedui had appealed to Rome for protection; but the only solace they received was the decree referred to, — 'protection, so far as might accord with Roman interest,' — a decree that meant nothing and was intended to mean nothing, except a tacit recognition of Ariovistus's supremacy. To find Caesar now invoking this decree against Ariovistus is somewhat amusing.

4. ut imperarent: Substantive Clause of Result, used as the subject of esse; B. 297, 3; A. 569, 2; G. 557; H. 571, 2.

5. qui vicissent: the antecedent of qui is the subject of imperarent. eis: governed by imperarent; B. 187, II, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 1. quem ad modum: as; literally, according to which way, i.e. according to the way which.

6. victis: the conquered; the participle used substantively; it is governed by imperare. alterius: of another; alterius, it should be noted, is the regular genitive of alius, as well as of alter. The genitive alius is practically unknown; B. 66, foot-note 1.

7. consuesse = consuevisse.

8. si non praescriberet: on the force of si non as compared with nisi, see B. 306, 1; A. 525, a; G. 591, a; H. 575, 2. quem ad modum uteretur: how it was to exercise; quem ad modum is here interrogative; uteretur is a Deliberative Subjunctive in an indirect question; B. 300, 2; A. 587; G. 467.

9. suo jure: suo refers to the Roman people.

10. suo jure: suo here refers to Ariovistus.

11. sibi: with stipendarios.

13. magnam: emphasized by being put at the head of the sentence. qui faceret: literally, who made; but the sense is decidedly causal, — since he made; B. 283, 3; A. 535, e; G. 633; H. 592. suo, sibi: the first refers to Caesar, the second to Ariovistus.

14. vectigalia deteriora: Ariovistus fears that the Haedui, relying on Caesar, will refuse to continue payment of tribute.

16. injuria: wrongfully; Ablative of Manner without cum; B. 220, 2; A. 412, b; G. 399, n. 1; H. 474. si in eo manerent: if they should abide by that; literally, in that. quod convenisset: which had been stipulated.

18. longe eis afuturum: in saying that the title of 'brothers of the Roman people' would be far from them, Ariovistus means it would be of no help to them; eis is dative. fraternum nomen = nomen fratrum.

19. quod sibi Caesar denuntiaret: as for Caesar's declaring. sibi, se, secum, sua: note the freedom with which the reflexive may be used, referring even in the same sentence to different persons. Thus sibi refers to Ariovistus; se to Caesar; secum again to Ariovistus; and sua to neminem.

21. congrederetur: let him (Caesar) come on; an imperative clause in indirect discourse; B. 316; A. 588; G. 652; H. 642. intellecturum: for the omission of the subject (eum, referring to Caesar), see B. 314, 5; A. 581, n. 1; H. 642, foot-note.

22. quid virtute possent, etc.: how valiant were the Germans, etc.; literally, what the Germans availed in valor; quid is an adverbial accusative; B. 176, 2, a; A. 390, c; G. 332; H. 416, 2; virtute is an Ablative of Specification.

25. haec eodem tempore: Caesar makes the two clauses coördinate, connecting them by et. In our idiom we should subordinate the first, — at the time these despatches were brought, envoys came.

26. Treveris: their name survives in the modern Treves, situated in western Germany near the Belgian frontier.

27. Haedui: i.e. the Haeduan envoys. As verb understand veniebant. questum: the supine.

29. obsidibus datis: the Ablative Absolute here denotes means, — by giving hostages.

Page 26. 1. Treveri: understand veniebant questum. pagos: used, as often, of the population of the cantons. Sueborum: their name survives in the modern Swabia, a district of southwestern Germany.

4. vehementer commotus: there was good reason for Caesar's agitation. Joined to the grave perils threatening from Ariovistus and the hordes of fresh German invaders, were the dangers threatening from the instability of the Gauls themselves. maturandum sibi: that he must make haste. ne . . . posset: lest resistance could be less easily offered (to them); resisti and posset are both impersonal, — literally, lest it be able to be resisted. With resisti, eis is to be supplied in thought, as indirect object.

7. magnis itineribus: by forced marches.

9. viam: Cognate Accusative; B. 176, 4, a; A. 390; G. 333, 2; H. 409.

10. ad occupandum Vesontionem: for seizing Vesontio; gerundive construction. The name Vesontio survives in the modern Besançon. The word is irregularly of the masculine gender.

11. quod: attracted to the gender of the predicate noun oppidum; B. 250, 3; A. 306; G. 614, R. 3; H. 396, 2.

12. id: namely, the occupation of Vesontio by Ariovistus.

17. ut circumductum: as though drawn.

18. reliquum spatium: the object of continet.

19. pedum mille sexcentorum: Genitive of Quality; B. 203, 2; A. 345, b; G. 365, 2; H. 440, 3; amplius and some other words are freely introduced without affecting the construction; B. 217, 3; A. 407, c; G. 296, R. 4; H. 471, 4. Translate: which is not more than sixteen hundred feet (broad).

20. qua: where. intermittit: literally, stops; i.e. breaks the circle. magna altitudine: Ablative of Quality; B. 224; A. 415; G. 400; H. 473, 2.

21. radices, ripae: radices is the object of contingant; ripae the subject.

22. hunc: namely, the mountain; hunc is direct object of efficit; arcem is the predicate accusative.

26. dum moratur: for dum, 'while,' with the historical present, see B. 293, 1; A. 556; G. 229, R.; H. 604, 1. ad Vesontionem: near Vesontio; B. 182, 3; A. 428, d.

28. magnitudine, virtute, exercitatione: predicate Ablatives of Quality limiting Germanos.

4. non mediocriter: an instance of Litotes.

5. ortus est a tribunis: we say, 'began with'; the Latin, 'began from.' See note on p. 1, line 18. tribunis militum: these were originally legionary officers; six to each legion, exercising command in rotation; but in Caesar's army the legion was usually commanded by a legatus, while the positions of the tribuni were largely sinecures.

6. praefectis: not the technical designation of a special officer, but a general term for a commander of any portion of the infantry or cavalry, particularly of the auxiliaries. amicitiae causa: the friendship of these men was hardly disinterested. Most of them probably accompanied Caesar in the spirit of adventure, or for the purpose of advancing their fortunes.

7. non magnum: another instance of Litotes.

8. alius alia causa illata: one alleging one cause, another another; B. 253, 2; A. 315, c; G. 221, R. 1; H. 516, 1. quam diceret: probably a Clause of Characteristic. The number of diceret is determined by alius.

9. petebat, remanebant, etc.: notice the five successive imperfects, and observe that this tense, as the tense of continued action, is particularly adapted to the purposes of description, as opposed to mere narration. ejus voluntate: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance.

12. vultum fingere: i.e. to look cheerful. interdum: at times. Do not confound this word with interim or interea, which mean 'meanwhile.'

15. vulgo: the adverb. totis castris: for the omission of the preposition in, see B. 228, 1, b; A. 429, 2; G. 388; H. 483, 485, 2. obsignabantur: note that this word strictly means 'were sealed' (i.e. with the names and seals of the witnesses), not 'signed.'

16. in castris: i.e. in military service.

17. quique = et qui (i.e. et ei qui).

18. qui ex his = ex his ei qui. se existimari volebant: volo usually takes the infinitive without subject accusative, when the subject of both verbs is the same, but the subject accusative is frequent in the case of passive infinitives, as here; B. 331, iv, a.

19. non: made emphatic by position.

21. rem frumentariam: grammatically the object of timere, by the figure called Prolepsis; B. 374, 5; A. 576; G. 468. By our idiom we should expect it to be the subject of posset, and should so translate it.

22. ut satis posset: that it could not be; B. 296, 2; A. 564, n.; G. 550; H. 567, 1.

23. cum jussisset: to be joined, not with nuntiabant, but with the following infinitives; jussisset represents a future perfect indicative of direct discourse.

24. fore = futuros esse. dicto audientes: obedient; literally, listening to the word; B. 187, II, a; A. 367, a, n. 2; G. 346; H. 433, 4.

25. signa laturos: i.e. march.

27. omnium ordinum centurionibus: the centurions, of whom there were sixty in each legion, were of different rank. Ordinarily only those of the first class were invited to a council of war. See Introd. § 24.

28. quod putarent: the reason in the mind of Caesar the general, not of Caesar the writer. quam in partem . . . ducerentur: this indirect question is the subject of quaerendum (esse).

Page 28. 1. se consule: i.e. in the preceding year. cupidisime appetisse: hardly in accordance with the facts. The truth was that the Roman Senate, guided by Caesar himself, seeking to avoid an issue with Ariovistus, had voluntarily conferred on him the title of friend; see note on p. 24, line 15.

2. cur judicaret, etc.: why should any one think? A Deliberative Subjunctive of direct discourse retained in the indirect; B. 315, 3; A. 444, 587; G. 651, R. 2; H. 642, 3.

4. sibi quidem persuaderi: he at least was persuaded; literally, it was persuaded to himself at least; persuadeo, like other intransitive verbs, which take the dative in the active, can be used in the passive only impersonally. Note that quidem emphasizes the word standing immediately before it; it is never a mere sentence modifier. cognitis suis postulatis, etc.: when his demands should become known. The future time of repudiaturum is shared by the Ablative Absolute.

6. repudiaturum (esse): this is the subject of persuaderi. quod si: but if.

7. quid tandem vererentur, cur desperarent: what, pray, should they fear, why should they despair? Deliberative Subjunctives in indirect discourse, like cur judicaret above.

8. sua: referring to the soldiers. ipsius: i.e. Caesar.

9. factum periculum: trial had been made.

10. memoria: Ablative of Time within which; B. 231; A. 423; G. 393; H. 487. cum . . . videbatur: at which time the army was seen, etc. The indicative is used to denote the point of time at which; B. 288, A; A. 545; G. 580; H. 601. Cimbris . . . pulsus: the barbarians were defeated and crushed in two battles in 102 and 101 B.C.

12. meritus: i.e. meritis esse. For the nominative form of the participle, see B. 328, 2; A. 458; H. 611, 2, N. 2. factum: understand esse periculum. nuper: namely, some fifteen years before, 73-71 B.C.

13. servili tumultu: Ablative of Time. Note that the adjective here, as often, has the force of a genitive. The reference is to the insurrection headed by Spartacus. Many of the slaves who participated in it were Cimbrians and Teutons, who had been captured in the time of Marius. quos: its antecedent is implied in servili, already explained as equivalent to servorum; B. 251, 2; A. 306, b; H. 399, 4. tamen: however. aliquid: somewhat, to some extent.

14. quae: for the agreement of a relative with a compound antecedent, see B. 250, 2; A. 305, a; G. 614, R. 5; H. 398, 1.

15. quantum haberet: Indirect Question, subject of posse. Note that in Latin, expressions conveying a general truth follow the principles for the sequence of tenses; in English we regularly use the present tense in such expressions; haberet, therefore, may here be translated by a present. in se: referring to constantia. boni: Genitive of the Whole with quantum. constantia: one of the cardinal Roman traits, the mention of which might be expected to make a strong appeal to the soldiers.

16. quos: its antecedent is hos, referring to the slaves.

18. quibuscum . . . superassent: with whom the Helvetii often engaged . . . and whom they usually defeated; literally, engaging with whom the Helvetii usually defeated them.

20. illorum: i.e. the Germans. qui: its antecedent is Helvetii. tamen: i.e. despite their general superiority to the Germans.

21. pares . . . non potuerint: namely, in the recent contest, in which the Helvetii had been utterly crushed. For the perfect subjunctive as a secondary tense, see B. 268, 6; A. 485, c; G. 513; H. 550. quos: the indefinite 'any.' adversum proelium: the allusion is to the defeat of the Haedui by Ariovistus, mentioned in chapter 31.

22. commoveret: i.e. alarmed.

24. castris ac paludibus: Ablative of Means; B. 218, 7.

25. sui potestatem: i.e. an opportunity to attack him; sui is Objective Genitive. desperantes de pugna: i.e. despairing of engaging him in battle; desperantes limits eos understood, the object of adortum.

27. cui rationi . . . hac, etc.: did not expect that our armies could be caught by those tactics for which, etc.; literally, for which tactics . . . by these, etc.

28. ipsum: Ariovistus.

30. in . . . simulationem: to pretended concern for provisions.

31. cum: since.

Page 29. 1. curae: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2, a; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433. frumentum, frumenta: grain, crops; as p. 11, lines 7, 10.

2. sumministrare: were supplying. This represents a present indicative of direct discourse, in the sense of 'they are supplying.' jam: Napoleon III thinks the time was now about August 20.

3. brevi tempore: Ablative of Time within which.

5. quod: as to the fact that. non fore dicto, etc.: to be likely to disobey.

6. nihil: used adverbially. It is merely a stronger non, — not at all. quibuscumque: from quicumque; its antecedent is eis understood, to be supplied with defuisse. The dative depends upon dicto audiens; B. 187, II, a; A. 367, a, n. 2; G. 346; H. 433, 4.

7. male re gesta . . . aliquo facinore comperto: the Ablative Absolutes here denote cause, i.e. in consequence of some blunder or the discovery of some crime committed by them.

9. esse convictam: had been proved, i.e. against them. suam: emphatic; literally, HIS. One might translate, as for himself. innocentiam, felicitatem: Caesar has just said that where soldiers mutiny, it is because their general has exhibited either incompetency or corruption. These two qualities are now alluded to in inverse order; innocentiam takes up the second charge (corruption) and felicitatem the first (incompetency); Chiasmus; B. 350, 11, c; A. 598, f; G. 682; H. 666, 2. perpetua vita: Ablative of Duration of Time, a construction used especially when the noun is modified by totus, perpetuus, or some similar word; B. 231, 1; A. 424, b and n.; G. 393, 2; H. 417, 2.

10. bello: Ablative of Time at which.

11. quod collaturus fuisset: what he had intended to postpone. The antecedent of quod is id understood, the object of the infinitive, repraesentaturum.

12. repraesentaturum: he would do at once. Caesar's mode of dealing with the difficult situation confronting him was thoroughly characteristic. A weak or timid man would have postponed action. Caesar's courage and promptness of decision are both admirably illustrated by his conduct in this emergency.

13. quam primum: as soon as possible.

14. utrum . . . an valeret: a double indirect question; B. 300, 4; A. 335; G. 461; H. 380, 650.

17. praetoriam cohortem: just as praetor originally meant 'general,' so praetorius meant 'belonging to the general.' The praetorian cohort was thus the general's body-guard. legioni: B. 187, II; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426.

18. praecipue, maxime: adverbs usually precede the word which they modify; they are made emphatic by being placed after it, as here.

20. mirum in modum: marvellously. conversae sunt: observe the intensive force of con in composition, — were utterly changed, altered.

22. innata est: agreeing with the nearer subject. princeps gratias egit: was the first to tender thanks.

23. de se: referring to the legion.

26. ordinum = centuriarum; Introd. § 24.

27. egerunt: arranged. uti satis facerent: to apologize; a substantive clause, object of egerunt; B. 295, 5; A. 563; G. 546; H. 565.

28. suum sed imperatoris esse: (did not think) . . . was theirs, but the general's; imperatoris is a predicate Genitive of Possession; B. 198, 3; A. 343, b; G. 366; H. 439, 447.

31. ei: in him; Dative of Reference. ut . . . duceret: with a view to leading his army; Subjunctive of Purpose. milium quinquaginta: Genitive of Quality, limiting circuitu. With milium, passuum must be supplied; amplius, as frequently, does not affect the construction.

32. circuitu: a detour to the north was made necessary by broken wooded country. locis apertis: Ablative of Way by which; B. 218, 9; A. 429, a; H. 476. Caesar's route lay between the Vosges and Jura Mountains.

Page 30. 2. septimo die: Caesar probably encamped on the river Fecht, between Ostheim and Gemar. Ariovistus seems to have been near Colmar. cum iter non intermitteret: without stopping the march; cum-clauses of situation are often best translated without the use of 'when.'

3. nostris: understand copiis. milibus: Ablative of Degree of Difference.

6. postulasset: namely, Caesar. per se: so far as he was concerned.

7. accessisset: namely, Caesar.

10. petenti: agreeing with ei understood. ultro: voluntarily.

13. fore uti desisteret: would desist; fore depends upon spem; uti desisteret is a Substantive Clause of Result, used as the subject of fore. For this periphrastic future infinitive, see B. 270, 3; A. 569, a; G. 248; H. 571, 1, 619, 2.

14. colloquio: Dative of Purpose.

16. ne quem peditem adduceret; uterque veniret: a comparison of these two subjunctives throws light on the origin of the substantive clause after verbs of commanding, etc.; ne adduceret we call a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, and uterque veniret an imperative clause in indirect discourse. But both are the same in origin,—demanded, let him not bring, (saying), let each come. Observe that the Latin regularly uses ne quem (not ut neminem, etc.) in these volitive substantive clauses.

18. alia ratione: on other terms; Ablative of Accordance.

20. interposita causa: the Ablative Absolute here denotes means, — by the offering of a pretext.

21. commodissimum: in predicate agreement with imponere, which is the subject of esse.

22. omnibus . . . detractis, etc.: the Ablative Absolute is best translated as an infinitive coördinate with imponere, — to take away all the horses . . . and to mount. Gallis equitibus: Dative of Separation; B. 188, 2, d; A. 381; G. 345, R. 1; H. 427.

23. eo: the adverb, equivalent to in eos, on them, namely, the horses. As there were some four thousand Gallic cavalry, there were enough horses for all the soldiers of one legion. cui: fido and confido regularly take the dative of persons, the ablative of things; B. 219, 1, a.

25. si quid opus facto esset: if there should be any need of action; quid is an adverbial accusative; B. 176, 3, a; A. 390, c, d, R. 2; G. 333, R. 2; H. 416, 2. For the ablative of the participle with opus, see B. 218, 2, c; A. 411, a; G. 406; H. 477, III. quod cum fieret: as this was happening.

28. pollicitum: having promised. It agrees with eum understood, the subject of rescribere.

29. ad equum rescribere: a pun; ad equum rescribere may mean either 'enroll in the cavalry' or 'enroll in the equites.' The equites were a wealthy social class at Rome.

Page 31. 1. tumulus terrenus: as opposed to a wooded or rocky hill.

2. aequo spatio: Ablative of Degree of Difference.

3. ut erat dictum: as had been agreed.

4. equis: on horseback; literally, by horses; Ablative of Means.

5. passibus ducentis: Ablative of Degree of Difference.

6. pari intervallo: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance. ex equis: on horseback. See note on a flumine, p. 1, line 18.

7. ut colloquerentur et adducerent: substantive clauses, the object of postulavit.

9. ubi eo ventum est: when they arrived there; literally, when it was come thither. initio: Ablative of Time at which.

10. quod appellatus esset, etc.: the fact (as he said) that he had been called, etc.; subjunctive in implied indirect discourse. With quod amicus, appellatus esset is to be supplied in thought; with missa, understand essent. All these clauses are in apposition with beneficia.

12. quam rem: that this thing. et . . . et: literally, both . . . and; but in English we are often less particular to emphasize the antithesis; hence the first of two et's is often better left untranslated. pro magnis officiis: (only) in return for important services.

14. aditum: access to the Roman Senate.

15. sua: i.e. Caesar's. Note that sua agrees in form with liberalitate, but in sense limits beneficio also. As stated in the note on p. 28, line 1, Caesar had induced the Senate to show these marks of favor to Ariovistus for the sole purpose of insuring his temporary neutrality. praemia: the honors above enumerated.

16. quam veteres: how old.

17. ipsis cum, etc.: subsisted between them and the Haedui; literally, subsisted to them with the Haedui; ipsis refers to the Romans, and is Dative of Reference. intercederent, facta essent, tenuissent: Subjunctives of Indirect Question.

18. quae, quotiens, quam honorifica: three distinct ideas. quamque = et quam.

19. in eos: with reference to them. ut: how. This meaning, it should be noted, occurs in classical Latin only in indirect questions, not in direct ones.

20. prius etiam quam: even before.

21. appetissent: the subjunctive is due solely to attraction; B. 324; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652. hanc esse consuetudinem: this was the custom; hanc (attracted from hoc; B. 246, 5; A. 296, a; G. 211 r. 5; H. 396, 2) is explained by the following ut-clause.

22. ut . . . vellet: to desire that its allies and friends should not only lose nothing of their possessions, but should be advanced in influence, etc.; ut vellet is a Substantive Clause of Result; sui is a Genitive of the Whole, limiting nihil. It is a form of suum, the possessive adjective, used as a noun; literally, theirs, i.e. their property.

24. quod: its antecedent is id.

25. eis: Dative of Separation with eripi. eripi: the object of pati. quis posset: who would be able? representing a quis possit (Potential Subjunctive) of direct discourse.

26. in mandatis dederat: had charged upon. ne inferret, redderet, pateretur: explanatory of eadem. The subjunctives are imperative clauses in indirect discourse.

29. at: at least. quos: the indefinite; any.

Page 32. 1. respondit, praedicavit: Adversative Asyndeton.

2. suis virtutibus: note the emphatic position of the possessive.

4. non sine magna spe magnisque praemiis: not without high hope(s) and great rewards; Litotes.

5. ab ipsis: i.e. the Gauls.

6. obsides = et obsides; Asyndeton. voluntate: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance.

7. jure: Ablative of Accordance; B. 220, 3; A. 418, a; G. 399, n. 1; H. 475, 3. quod: referring to stipendium.

10. castra habuisse: i.e. had fought.

12. velint, velint, pependerit: the present and perfect (instead of imperfect and pluperfect), as though dependent upon a principal tense, give greater vividness to the report. decertare: note the force of de- in composition, — fight it out, fight to the end. uti: to enjoy, — a common meaning of the word.

14. ad: up to. amicitiam esse: amicitiam is the subject of esse, and esse is the subject of oportere; literally, the friendship to be an honor was fitting, i.e. the friendship ought to be an honor.

15. ornamento, etc.: the three datives are Datives of Purpose.

16. hac spe: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance. si . . . remittatur et . . . subtrahantur: i.e. if the tribute be stopped by withdrawing the hostages. The two clauses are grammatically coördinate, but logically the second is conceived as the means of the first. If Ariovistus lost the hostages he held, the Haedui might withhold the tribute with impunity; dediticii, literally captives, refers to the hostages of the Haedui. per: through the agency of.

20. quod: as to the fact that.

21. sui muniendi causa: for the sake of strengthening himself; gerundive construction.

22. ejus rei . . . defenderit: the fact that he had not come, except when asked, etc., was a proof of that. The subject of esse lies in the quod-clauses; testimonium is a predicate noun; defenderit is here used in the sense of 'ward off,' not 'defend.'

24. prius . . . quam, etc.: earlier than the Roman people; prius is here the adverb, while quam is a coördinate conjunction connecting se and populum. Ariovistus's statement, however, is incorrect. The Romans had subdued the Allobroges in 121 B.C.

26. quid vellet, cur veniret: real, not rhetorical, questions in indirect discourse; hence the subjunctive. sibi vellet: mean; literally, wish for himself.

27. provinciam: this is the predicate with esse, the subject being Galliam. hanc Galliam: this (part of) Gaul.

28. illam: understand Galliam. nostram: understand provin- ciam. In suam hanc . . . illam nostram, we have another illustration of Chiasmus. ut . . . oporteret: just as no concession ought to be made to him; literally, just as it ought not to be yielded (impersonal) to him. ipsi: Ariovistus.

Page 33. 1. quod diceret: as to the fact that he (Caesar) said.

2. rerum: of history; for the genitive, see B. 204, 1; A. 349, a; G. 374; H. 451, 1.

3. bello Allobrogum proximo: the rebellion of the Allobroges only three years before; bello is Ablative of Time.

5. Haedui: we should say they. Caesar repeats the word unnecessarily. secum: i.e. with Ariovistus.

7. debere suspicari: ought to suspect, i.e. had reason to suspect. simulata amicitia: though pretending friendship; the Ablative Absolute here has adversative force; B. 227, 2, c; A. 420, 3; G. 410; H. 489, 1. quod habeat: this causal clause is to be connected closely in thought with susplicari.

9. qui nisi: unless he.

11. quod si: but if. multis nobilibus gratum: a thing pleasing to many nobles. nobilibus principibusque: Caesar was the head of the popular party at Rome. As party spirit at this time ran high, it is unquestionable that the members of the aristocratic party would have rejoiced to learn that so formidable a political antagonist had been removed from the scene.

13. id se compertum habere: practically equal to id se comperisse; B. 337, 7; A. 497, b; G. 238; H. 431, 3.

14. quorum: referring to eorum.

18. confecturum: its object is to be supplied from bella.

19. in eam sententiam: to this purport (namely, to show); explained by the following indirect question.

21. pati uti desereret: permitted him to desert. Note that pati is usually construed with the infinitive, not with an ut-clause. The ut-clause, however, is admissible when pati is accompanied by a negative and its subject is a thing (not a person); B. 295, 2, footnote 1.

23. Ariovisti, populi Romani: predicate Genitives of Possession; B. 198, 3; A. 343, b; G. 366; H. 447.

24. Arvernos, Rutenos: these had been subjugated in 121 B.C., at the same time as the Allobroges. quibus ignovisset, etc.: these peoples were too distant from Rome to be effectively controlled; hence the procedure followed by the Roman people had been a practical necessity. For the dative quibus, see B. 187, II, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426.

25. redegisset: as object, supply in thought quos from the preceding quibus.

26. antiquissimum quodque tempus: priority of time; literally, each earliest time; B. 252, 5, c; A. 313, b; G. 318, 2; H. 515, 2.

30. quam . . . voluisset: which, though conquered in war, it (the Senate) had decreed should enjoy its own laws, i.e. be free.

Page 34. 2. tumulum: for the accusative with propius, see B. 141, 3; A. 432, a; G. 359, N. 1; H. 420, 5.

5. ne quod: not . . . any.

6. periculo legionis: we should say 'danger to the legion.'

7. committendum non putabat, etc.: he did not think he ought to permit the possibility of its being said, after the enemy were defeated; literally, permit that it be possible to be said, etc.; ut posset is a substantive clause used as the subject of committendum (esse).

8. per fidem: in violation of good faith. This meaning of per is rare; but compare perfidia, 'perfidy'; perjurium.

9. posteaquam = postquam.

10. qua arrogantia usus: with what arrogance; literally, having used what arrogance.

11. omni Gallia, etc.: had interdicted the Romans from all Gaul; Gallia is Ablative of Separation; Romanis is Dative of Reference.

12. ut: how.

13. major alacritas, studium majus: Chiasmus.

14. exercitui: for the dative, see B. 187, III; A. 370; G. 347; H. 429.

16. coeptae (essent): when the dependent infinitive is passive, coeptus sum is regularly used for coepti; B. 133, 1; A. 205, a; G. 423, N. 3; H. 299, 1. neque: and . . . not.

17. uti constitueret, mitteret: substantive clauses dependent upon the idea of asking or requesting involved in velle. colloquio: Dative of Purpose.

18. si minus = si non. vellet: Subjunctive by Attraction or (since uti constitueret, mitteret, being Substantive Clauses Developed from the Volitive are virtually indirect discourse) a subordinate clause in indirect discourse. suis: referring to Caesar.

19. se: referring to Ariovistus.

20. causa visa non est: there did not seem (any) reason. eo magis: the more on this account; eo, Ablative of Cause, is explained by the following quod-clause.

21. pridie ejus diei: ejus diei is superfluous. For its construction, see B. 201, 3, a; A. 359, b, n. 2; H. 446, 5.

22. quin conicerent: from hurting; B. 295, 3, and a; A. 558; G. 555, 1; H. 595, 2. legatum: as envoy; in predicate relation to unum understood. ex suis: i.e. unum e suis, one of his (lieutenants).

23. magno cum periculo: the emphasis of the whole sentence rests upon these words; literally, thought he would send . . . and expose with great danger, i.e. thought it would be dangerous to send and expose.

25. Gaium Valerium Procillum, C. Valeri Caburi: these men were Gauls. The father's name was originally Caburus, but upon receiving Roman citizenship at the hands of Gaius Valerius Flaccus, he took the praenomen (Gaius) and nomen (Valerius) of his benefactor, prefixing them to his own name. Procillus, the son, kept the first two parts of his father's name. Procillum is the object of mittere in line 2, p. 35.

26. summa . . . humanitate: of the highest character and education; Ablatives of Quality.

27. Gaio Valerio Flacco: governor of the Gallic Province in 83 B.C. civitate: citizenship.

28. qua multa Ariovistus utebatur: which Ariovistus used readily; multa is in predicate relation to qua; literally, which Ariovistus used much, the adjective, as often, having adverbial force.

Page 35. 1. longinqua consuetudine: Ablative of Cause. quod esset: the reason in the mind of Caesar the general; hence the subjunctive.

2. in eo: in his case. peccandi: i.e. of doing violence.

3. una: the adverb, — along with (him), namely, with Procillus. hospitio: guest friendship; for the character and sacredness of this relation, which existed between states as well as between individuals, see note on p. 21, line 14. utebatur: enjoyed.

5. apud se: before him; in his presence.

7. quid venirent: why did they come? a real question in indirect discourse; hence the subjunctive; B. 315, 1; A. 586; G. 651; H. 642. an speculandi causa: was it for the purpose of spying? an properly introduces the second member of a double question, but by the ellipsis of the first member the question with an sometimes stands alone. Its force depends upon the context; B. 162, 4, a; A. 335, b; G. 457, 1; H. 380, 3. conantes dicere: when they tried to speak; conantes limits eos understood, the object of prohibuit. For the participle equivalent to a temporal clause, see B. 337, 2, a; A. 496; G. 665; H. 638, 1.

13. uti intercluderet: a genuine Substantive Clause of Purpose, in apposition with eo consilio. frumento: Ablative of Separation. qui supportaretur: Subjunctive by Attraction; B. 324, 1; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652.

16. aciem instructam habuit: kept his army (literally, line of battle) drawn up. This use of the participle with habere is different from that already noted in quam coactam habebat (= quam coegerat), etc. ut non deesset: a purpose clause. Negative clauses of purpose are regularly introduced by ne; but non is here closely connected with deesset for the sake of litotes, — might be not lacking, i.e. might be afforded. si vellet: the subjunctive is due to attraction.

18. castris continuit: Ablative of Means, as in castris se tenuisset, p. 28, line 24.

19. contendit: Copulative Asyndeton. genus hoc erat: this was the kind; hoc is explained by what follows.

21. numero: Ablative of Specification. To our sense the word is superfluous.

22. singuli singulos: each taking one; singulos agrees with quos; singuli with the subject of delegerant.

23. his, eos, hi: these all refer to the foot-soldiers.

24. si quid erat durius: if there was anything especially difficult to be done; durius means, harder (than usual).

25. si qui: qui as well as quis may serve as the nominative singular masculine of the indefinite pronoun.

26. si quo erat, etc.: if it was necessary to advance especially far to any point.

29. sublevati: the passive participle here has middle force, supporting themselves; B. 256, 1; A. 156, a; G. 218; H. 517.

Page 36. 1. ne prohiberetur: this purpose clause is to be joined in thought with passus sexcentos . . . locum delegit.

2. ultra eum locum: i.e. farther to the south, toward the Haedui, his base of supplies. Ariovistus had taken a position cutting off Caesar's supplies. Caesar now marches to regain his line of communication.

4. castris: with idoneum. acie triplici instructa: see note on p. 16, line 19.

6. castra munire: for the plan of a Roman camp, see Introd. § 38.

8. milia expedita: the Latin says light-armed thousands. We should translate the adjective with hominum.

11. opus = munitionem.

13. reliquas: namely, legiones. castra majora: the one to the north of Ariovistus's army, which Caesar had left to regain communication with his base of supplies.

15. instituto suo: Ablative of Accordance.

21. acriter pugnatum est: a fierce encounter took place; literally, it was fought fiercely.

26. decertaret: i.e. fight in a pitched battle; literally, fight it out. As yet only a portion of Ariovistus's forces had engaged in battle. hanc reperiebat causam, quod, etc.: he discovered this reason, namely, that it was (reported to be) the custom; the clause quod esset is in apposition with causam; esset is the subjunctive of implied indirect discourse.

27. ut . . . declararent: for their matrons to declare; a Substantive Clause of Result, explanatory of ea consuetudo. matres familiae: Tacitus in his Germania (chapter 8) tells us that the Germans regarded their women generally as possessed of prophetic powers.

Page 37. 1. utrum . . . necne: whether or not it was expedient to join battle. For the form of double indirect questions, see B. 300, 4, a; A. 335; G. 461; H. 650. ita: explained by the following clause.

2. fas: it was not destined; literally, lawful, right. ante novam lunam: such superstition is frequently met with among ancient peoples, civilized and uncivilized. The date of the new moon here referred to has been calculated to have been September 18, 58 B.C.

3. contendissent: representing a future perfect indicative of direct discourse.

4. praesidio, castris: the first is a Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433; the second, a simple indirect object.

5. quod: its antecedent is id understood, the object of reliquit. alarios: the auxiliaries; literally, those posted on the wings, the place where the auxiliaries were regularly stationed.

7. minus multitudine valebat: was weaker (literally, availed less) in numbers. pro: in a different sense from that in the preceding line; here the word means as compared with.

8. ut uteretur: to be connected in thought with constituit. ad speciem: for a show, i.e. for the purpose of causing Ariovistus to believe that they were regular legionary soldiers.

11. generatim : i.e. each tribe by itself. There was no common military organization. paribus intervallis : Ablative of Attendant Circumstance.

13. omnem aciem : only the rear and wings.

14. ne qua : in purpose clauses, the Latin regularly has ne qua, not ut nulla. eo : therein ; namely, in the wagons and carts.

15. proficiscentes : limiting the omitted object of implorabant, — eos referring to the Germans. passis : from pando.

16. se : referring to the women.

18. singulis . . . singulos legatos : i.e. a lieutenant over each legion. Putting the legati in charge of the legions was an innovation of Caesar's. Before his Gallic campaigns the command had been exercised by tribunes, six to each legion, each tribune holding command for two months. quaestorem : apparently legati were put in charge of five of the legions, and a quaestor over the sixth. The quaestor was primarily charged with the care of the military chest, but sometimes took command of troops, as here.

19. eos testes : them as witnesses.

20. a dextro cornu : on the right wing, as frequently. eam partem : i.e. the part of the enemy opposite his own right wing. This, of course, was the enemy's left. minime firmam : weakest.

23. itaque : not 'accordingly,' but equivalent to et ita, the ita modifying repente and celeriter.

24. pila : object of the gerund coniciendi. rejectis pilis : throwing aside their javelins.

25. pugnatum est : the impersonal use, as above, p. 36, line 21.

28. qui insilirent, etc. : Clauses of Characteristic. phalangem : for the order and arrangement of the phalanx, see note on p. 16, line 27. et . . . et : notice the emphasis produced by the employment of et between all the verbs ; Polysyndeton ; B. 341, 4, b.

29. vulnerarent : as object, understand eos. a sinistro cornu : this and the following dextro cornu refer to the Germans.

Page 38. 2. Publius Crassus : a son of Marcus Crassus, the triumvir and close political ally of Caesar. Although one of those who followed Caesar into Gaul amicitiae causa (see p. 27, line 6), he nevertheless seems to have been a young man of keen perception and prompt action.

3. adulescens : this is probably added to distinguish him from his father. equitatu : for the case, see B. 187, III ; A. 370 ; G. 347 ; H. 429. expeditior : less occupied. The cavalry, being allied troops, were stationed on the wings and hence participated less actively in the engagement.

4. tertiam aciem: the third line; this had been kept in reserve for a critical emergency.

5. subsidio: Dative of Purpose.

7. neque prius destiterunt quam: priusquam, when following a negative sentence, is regularly construed with the indicative; B. 291, 2.

9. viribus: ablative; B. 219, 1; A. 431; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 3; but fido and confido take the dative of persons.

11. Ariovistus: nothing further is known of the career of this leader. In Book V. (54 B.C.) he is reported as already dead.

12. reliquos omnes: eighty thousand in number, according to Plutarch.

14. duae uxores: except with the chiefs, polygamy was unusual among the Germans. natione: Ablative of Specification.

16. quam in Gallia duxerat: duxerat here means married (i.e. in matrimonium duxerat); in the line above, it means brought.

17. duae filiae harum: i.e. each wife had borne him a daughter. altera, altera: in partitive apposition with filiae; B. 169, 5; G. 322; H. 393, 4.

18. occisa (est), capta est: the verbs agree with the appositives.

19. trinis catenis: for the use of the distributive, see B. 81, 4, b; cf. A. 137, d; H. 164, 3; catenae is only rarely used in the singular.

21. quidem: quidem regularly emphasizes the word immediately before it. Its translation varies greatly with the context: at least, indeed, to be sure, at any rate, or the like. Often, however, it is best left untranslated.

23. honestissimum: not a most honest, but a most honorable.

25. neque quicquam deminuerat: and because fortune had subtracted nothing; neque quicquam (not et nihil) is the Latin idiom; quicquam is the object of deminuerat.

27. ter: three is often a mystic number with uncivilized peoples. consultum (esse): they had consulted; literally, it had been consulted.

28. utrum necaretur, etc.: Deliberative Subjunctives in indirect questions; B. 300, 2; A. 587; G. 467.

29. sortium beneficio: thanks to the lots; beneficio is well on its way to its later value as a preposition. M. Metius: see p. 35, line 3.

Page 39. 3. Ubii: these lived near Cologne and were hereditary enemies of the Suebi. Rhenum: for the accusative, see B. 141, 3; A. 432, a; G. 359, n. 1; H. 435, 2.

6. maturius paulo, etc.: it was probably now about September 25; the army could have easily kept the field for several months.

7. in Sequanos: it is probable that part at least of Caesar's troops were quartered in the stronghold of Vesontio.

8. ad conventus agendos: for holding the assizes, or provincial courts. As provincial governor, Caesar had charge of the administration of justice. Cisalpine Gaul, it will be remembered, was in his jurisdiction. Another and probably weightier reason for his presence here was his desire to keep in close touch with affairs at Rome.

With the defeat of Ariovistus, "The question whether Gaul was to be a German or Roman province was settled for centuries. It was not until the fall of the Western Empire (476 A.D.) that the Germans were able to secure a footing here." (Drumann, History of Rome.)

BOOK II.

Page 40. 1. cum esset: when he (actually) was, as opposed to the statement made at the end of Book I., profectus est; esset is emphatic and hence put immediately after cum, instead of after Gallia; for the subjunctive with cum temporal, see B. 288, 1, ε; A. 546; G. 585; H. 600, II. citeriore Gallia: northern Italy, one of Caesar's provinces. ita uti: for the usual ut, but more formal. supra: at the conclusion of Book I.

2. demonstravimus, dixeramus: the editorial 'we'; B. 242, 3; A. 143, a; H. 500, 2. afferebantur, certior fiebat: imperfect of repeated action; B. 260, 2; A. 470; G. 231; H. 534, 3. litteris: Ablative of Means; B. 218; A. 409; G. 401; H. 476.

3. Labieni: he had been left in charge of the winter quarters of Caesar's army in the territory of the Sequani. certior fiebat, etc.: was informed that all the Belgae . . . were combining . . . and exchanging hostages; literally, all the Belgae . . . to combine . . . and to give; conjurare and dare are principal clauses of indirect discourse depending on certior fiebat; B. 313, 314; A. 459; G. 650; H. 642. Belgas is subject accusative of the infinitives; B. 184; A. 397, e; G. 343, 2; H. 415. quam: who; referring to Belgas, but attracted to the number and gender of the predicate noun partem; B. 250, 3; A. 306; G. 614, r. 3; H. 396, 2; quam is the subject of esse.

5. conjurare: were forming a league, combining. The word does not necessarily have the sense of 'conspire.' inter se: to each other, or, with dare, were exchanging; literally, between, or among, them selves. In this use se is a reciprocal pronoun.

6. has: explained by what follows. quod vererentur: because they feared; subjunctive of subordinate clause in indirect discourse; B. 314, 1; A. 580; G. 650; H. 643. ne . . . exercitus adduceretur: this was a very natural fear on the part of the Belgians. They had seen Caesar's operations gradually nearing them and had good reason to believe that they themselves would ultimately become the objects of attack. The clause ne adduceretur is a substantive clause, used as the object of vererentur; B. 296, 2; A. 564; G. 550; H. 567. omni pacata Gallia: if all Gaul should be subdued; Ablative Absolute with the force of a condition; B. 227; A. 420; G. 410; H. 489, 1. Notice that Caesar, as regularly, uses Gallia in the sense of the country inhabited by the Galli, i.e. Celtic Gaul, the region between the Seine and Garonne rivers.

8. partim qui . . . partim qui: some of whom . . . others of whom; literally, partly (by those) who . . . partly (by those) who. The antecedent of qui is (ab) eis understood. ut noluerant: just as they had been unwilling. Notice that Caesar here abandons indirect discourse and gives a statement of facts.

9. Germanos: subject accusative of versari. populi Romani . . . ferebant: were loth to have the army of the Roman people winter in Gaul and become established (there). The infinitives are the object of ferebant; in Gallia limits both hiemare and inveterascere.

11. mobilitate et levitate: Ablative of Cause.

12. novis imperiis: a change of control; i.e. a change from Roman control; literally, new controls. For the dative, see B. 187, 11, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 1. The two classes of malcontents were (1) those who objected to the presence of a Roman army in Gaul; (2) those who on general principles desired a change. Both these classes of Gauls urged the Belgae to resist the Romans, thinking that Belgian success might free central Gaul also from Roman domination. ab nonnullis: supply in sense sollicitabantur.

13. a potentioribus atque eis: these phrases limit occupabantur. ad conducendos homines: for hiring men, i.e. mercenaries. An instance of the gerundive construction. Note that, in the Latin, homines is governed by ad, while conducendos limits homines; B. 339, 2; A. 506; G. 432, r.; H. 628.

14. vulgo regna occupabantur: the sovereign power was usually seized. The plural is used in regna because different instances are referred to; vulgo is the adverb. qui minus, etc.: literally, who could less easily attain; but the clause is really a part of the reason begun by quod. We may render, and because these could less easily attain. The grammatical antecedent of qui is nonnullis.

15. eam rem: namely, the usurpation of royal power. imperio nostro: under our rule. Ablative of Attendant Circumstance. B. 221; A. 412; G. 399; H. 473, 3.

16. duas legiones: the thirteenth and fourteenth; Caesar already had six legions in Further Gaul.

17. inita aestate: at the beginning of summer; literally, summer having been begun; Ablative Absolute; B. 227; A. 419; G. 410; H. 489, 1.

18. qui deduceret: a Relative Clause of Purpose; B. 282, 2; A. 531, 2; G. 630; H. 590. The antecedent of qui is Pedium. Quantum Pedium: Caesar's grandnephew, his sister's grandson.

19. legatum: before Caesar's time the legati were deputies of the commanding general. But in Caesar's army they appear as commanders of legions. Introd. § 21. cum primum: here construed with the subjunctive, like the simple cum. Ordinarily cum primum takes the indicative; B. 287, 1; G. 561. The time of year referred to is the spring. Caesar above speaks of the season as 'the beginning of summer,' but aestas is often loosely used of the warm season of the year as opposed to the cold season.

20. dat negotium: practically equivalent to he directed. Senonibus: their name survives in the modern Sens, a town on the Seine.

21. Belgis: for the dative, see B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434, 2. uti cognoscant, certiore faciant: Substantive Clauses Developed from the Volitive ('let them learn, let them inform'), dependent upon the idea of ordering involved in dat negotium. Notice that the Historical Present dat here takes principal sequence; B. 268, 3; A. 485, e; G. 509, 2, 1 (a); H. 546. quae gerantur: Subjunctive by Attraction; B. 324; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652.

Page 41. 1. se: him; indirect reflexive referring to Caesar; B. 244, 11; A. 300, 2; G. 521; H. 504.

2. hi: i.e. the Senones and other neighbors of the Belgians. constanter: not constantly, but uniformly; all told the same story. manus: bands, forces.

3. dubitandum (esse) non, etc.: (concluded) that he must not hesitate.

4. quin proficisceretur: to set out; for the subjunctive, see B. 298 and b. ad eos: against them.

5. diebus quindecim: Ablative of Time within which; B. 231; A. 423; G. 393; H. 487.

6. ad fines Belgarum pervenit: trace on the map the course of Caesar's march from Vesontio to the Belgian frontier.

7. celerius omni opinione: more swiftly than any one expected. For the Ablative of Comparison, see B. 217, 4; A. 406, a; G. 398, n. 1; H. 471, 8.

8. venisset: a clause with cum temporal denoting the circumstances or situation, hence the subjunctive; B. 288, b; A. 546; G. 585; H. 600, ii. Remi: their name appears in the modern Rheims, the ancient Durocortorum, the capital of the Remi. Galliae: in the same narrow sense as above in chapter 1; B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434, 2. With propior and proximus Caesar uses either accusative or dative. ex Belgis = Belgarum; join with proximi.

9. legatos: as envoys; predicate accusative.

10. qui dicerent: to say. Relative Clause of Purpose; B. 282, 2; A. 531, 2; G. 630; H. 590. The following passage is in indirect discourse. If the student has not already mastered the peculiarities of the indirect form, he should do so at once. A careful study of this and the following chapters will do much to make all future passages in the indirect form seem relatively simple and easy. Remember that the two fundamental principles for the moods of indirect discourse are these: principal clauses stand in the infinitive; all subordinate clauses stand in the subjunctive. se . . . permittere: that they put themselves and all their property under the protection and power; literally, to intrust themselves and all their things, etc.; permittere is a principal clause in indirect discourse. In strictness, therefore, we should have expected se as subject of the infinitive, but since se is also the object, this would have involved an awkward repetition.

The Remi had been vassals of their powerful neighbors, the Suesiones, and apparently "discerned in this invasion of the foreigners an opportunity to shake off the rule which their neighbors had exercised over them" (Mommsen). This seems to be the secret of their prompt submission to Caesar.

11. neque se consensisse: and that they had not combined. Note that the subject accusative of the infinitive is here expressed. For 'and not' the Latin regularly has neque, not et non.

13. conjurasse = conjuravisse; B. 116, 1; A. 181, a; G. 131, 1; H. 238. et (obsides): correlative with the following et's and not to be translated.

14. oppidis: in their towns; but the ablative is really one of Means, like the following frumento and rebus; B. 218, 7; A. 429, 3; G. 389; H. 476. With recipere and juvare, eum is to be understood. The direct form of this first sentence would be: Nos nostraque omnia in fidem atque in potestatem populi Romani permittimus neque cum reliquis Belgis consensimus neque contra populum Romanum conjuravimus paratique sumus et obsides dare et imperata facere et oppidis recipere et frumento ceterisque rebus juvare.

16. Germanos qui, etc.: most of the Germans dwelt to the east of the Rhine; some, however, had crossed the river and dwelt on its west bank. These are here referred to. incolant: we should have expected the imperfect tense, since the main verb of saying, dicerent, above in line 10, is historical; but greater vividness is often lent to narration in indirect discourse by reproducing the tenses of the direct form as here. This use is known as repraesentatio, 'a bringing back to the present.'

18. Suessiones: object of detertere. suos: referring to the Remi; so ipsis in line 20.

19. jure, legibus: the former refers to the principles of justice, the latter to actual laws or statutes. For the ablative, see B. 218, 1; A. 410; G. 407; H. 477. unum imperium . . . habeant: (and) have one government, etc.; Copulative Asyndeton; B. 346; A. 601, c; G. 481, 3; H. 657, 6. In habeant we have another instance of repraesentatio.

20. cum ipsis: with them, namely, the Remi. potuerint: Subjunctive of Result. As shown by the following quin-clause, potuerint is here used as a secondary tense; B. 268, 6; A. 485, c; G. 513; H. 550. As subject, supply in thought ei, referring to the Remi.

21. quin . . . consentirent: from leaguings themselves with these. For the quin-clause, see B. 295, 3, a; A. 558; G. 551, 1; H. 595, 2. Direct discourse for the preceding passage: Reliqui omnes Belgae in armis sunt, Germanique qui cis Rhenum incolunt sese cum his conjunxerunt, tantusque est eorum furor ut ne Suessiones quidem, fratres consanguineosque nostros, qui eodem jure et isdem legibus utuntur, unum imperium unumque magistratum nobiscum habent, detertere potuerimus quin cum his consentirent.

22. quae essent, possent: indirect questions; B. 300; A. 574; G. 467; H. 649, II.

23. quid possent: how strong they were; for the adverbial accusative, see B. 176, 3; A. 390, c; G. 333, 2; H. 409, 1. sic: as follows. plerosque Belgas: most of the Belgians.

24. esse ortos, etc.: that the Belgians were of German descent is hardly correct. The view here mentioned by Caesar is probably due to the fact that the Belgians had originally come from further east, where at this time only Germans dwelt. But there is good reason for believing that the Belgians were of Celtic origin. Large numbers of Celts at one time occupied the upper valley of the Danube, prior to their migration through western Germany into Gaul. Hence, while Caesar's statement that the Belgians had anciently crossed the Rhine is undoubtedly correct, the conclusion that they were of Germanic origin does not necessarily follow. a Germanis: B. 215, 2; A. 403, a, n. 1; G. 395; H. 469, 1. Rhenum traductos: for the accusative dependent upon trans in composition, see B. 179, 1; A. 395 and n. 2; G. 331, R. 1; H. 413.

25. ibi: namely, in the country west of the Rhine.

27. memoria: Ablative of Time within which; B. 231; A. 423; G. 393; H. 487. omni Gallia vexata: when all (the rest of) Gaul was ravaged; Ablative Absolute. Teutonon Cimbroque: for several years prior to 101 B.C. these barbarians had ravaged Gaul. They were finally crushed by Marius in 102 and 101 B.C.

28. ingredi: from entering; literally, to enter; the object of prohibuerint. With prohibeo, the infinitive is the usual construction in Caesar and Cicero, though a substantive clause introduced by ne or quominus also occurs. prohibuerint: this is a subordinate clause in indirect discourse, but it is also a Clause of Characteristic after solos, and hence would be in the subjunctive even in the direct form. For the perfect subjunctive used as an historical tense, see B. 268, 6; A. 485, c; G. 513; H. 550.

Page 42. 1. qua ex re: and from this circumstance; B. 251, 6; A. 308, f; G. 610; H. 510. uti sumerent: a Substantive Clause of Result, subject of the impersonal feri; B. 297, 2; A. 569, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 571, 1. earum rerum: i.e. their successful repulse of the Teutons and Cimbri. memoria: Ablative of Cause. Direct discourse of the foregoing passage: Plerique Belgae sunt orti a Germanis Rhenumque antiquitus traducti propter fertilitatem loci ibi consederunt Gallosque qui ea loca incolebant expulerunt, solique sunt qui patrum nostrorum memoria omni Gallia vexata Teutonon Cimbroque intra suos fines ingredi prohibuerint; qua ex re fit ut earum rerum memoria magnam sibi auctoritatem magnosque spiritus in re militari sumant.

3. omnia se habere explorata: they had learned everything; literally, had all things learned; habere explorata is practically equivalent to exploravisse; B. 337, 7; A. 497, b; G. 238; H. 431, 3.

4. propinquitatibus affinitatibusque: by ties of blood and marriage.

5. conjuncti: namely, to the Belgae. quantam pollicitus sit: subjunctive in indirect question; B. 300, 1; A. 574; G. 467; H. 649, II. The perfect subjunctive is used, since cognoverint (see below) is principal. quisque: i.e. each chieftain of the different tribes.

6. cognoverint: really equivalent to the present tense, since cognovi means I know (literally, have become acquainted with); another instance of repraesentatio.

7. plurimum valere: had the greatest influence. Bellovacos: their name survives in that of the modern town Beauvais. virtute, etc.: Ablatives of Cause.

8. conficere: muster. armata milia: literally, armed thousands; we should say thousands of armed men.

9. pollicitos (esse): they had promised.

10. sibi: for themselves. Direct discourse of the foregoing passage: De numero eorum omnia habemus explorata, propterea quod propinquitatibus affinitatibusque conjuncti, quantam quisque multitudinem in communi Belgarum concilio ad id bellum pollicitus sit cognovimus. Plurimum inter eos Bellovaci et virtute et auctoritate et hominum numero valent; hi possunt conficere armata milia centum; polliciti ex eo numero electa milia sexaginta totiusque belli imperium sibi postulant. suos: referring to the Remi, whose envoys are speaking.

12. fuisse: had been; representing a fuit of direct statement.

13. Divitiacum: to be distinguished, of course, from Divitiacus, the Haeduan. cum . . . tum: not only . . . but also; literally, when . . . then, or while . . . at the same time; tum is strengthened by etiam, which does not here call for separate translation.

14. partis: governed by imperium. Britanniae: said to be the first allusion to Britain found in any Latin writer.

15. obtinerit: held; for the perfect subjunctive used as a secondary tense, see B. 268, 6; A. 485, c; G. 513; H. 550. ad hunc: upon him.

16. prudentiam: wisdom. The word seldom has the narrow meaning of our 'prudence.' summam: the conduct or direction.

17. habere: as subject understand Suessiones. numero: Ablative of Specification.

18. polliceri : i.e. promised to contribute them for warlike operations. Nervios : subject of polliceri, to be supplied in thought.

19. inter ipsos : the Belgae. habeantur, absint : the present instead of the imperfect, after an historical tense, for the sake of vividness ; repraesentatio. longissime absint : were very distant ; with the exception of the Morini and the Menapii, the Nervii were the northernmost of all the Belgian tribes. Direct discourse of the foregoing passage : Suessiones nostri sunt finitimi ; fines latissimos feracissimosque agros possident. Apud eos fuit rex nostra etiam memoria Divitiacus, totius Galliae potentissimus, qui cum magnae partis harum regionum, tum etiam Britanniae imperium obtinuit ; nunc est rex Galba ; ad hunc propter justitiam prudentiamque summa totius belli omnium voluntate deferitur ; oppida habent numero duodecim, pollicentur milia armata quinquaginta ; totidem Nervii, qui maxime feri inter ipsos habentur longissimeque absunt.

20. Atrebates : their name appears in the modern Arras, famous for its manufacture of tapestries, whence old English arras. Ambianos, Caletos, Viromanduos, Condrusos : these designations survive in the modern town names, Amiens, Calais, Vermand, Condroz.

23. decem et novem : nineteen ; for the commoner undeviginti.

24. qui : referring only to the last four tribes. uno nomine : i.e. by the general name. Germani : these are apparently the Germanos qui cis Rhenum incolant of chapter 3. appellantur : the clause qui appellantur is Caesar's own explanation ; hence the indicative ; B. 314, 3 ; A. 583 ; G. 655, 2 ; H. 643, 3. arbitrari : they reckoned. As subject, supply in thought se, referring to the ambassadors. Condrusos and the following tribal names are the objects of arbitrari.

26. liberaliter oratione prosecutus : having addressed them with friendly words ; literally, having attended them generously in his words.

27. senatum : some council of elders, corresponding roughly to the Roman Senate.

28. obsides : as hostages ; predicate accusative.

29. diligenter ad diem : "punctually to the day" (Westcott). Divitiacum Haeduum : not to be confounded with the Divitiacus mentioned above, who was already dead. This Divitiacus was under obligations to Caesar for the recent liberation of the Haedui from the tyranny of Ariovistus, as described in Book I. ; hence it was natural that Caesar should appeal to him for aid at this juncture.

30. magnopere : earnestly. quanto opere . . . intersit : how greatly it concerned the republic and the common safety. Though written as two words, quanto opere is practically as much an adverb as the preceding magnopere. rei publicae, salutis: for the genitive with interessit, see B. 211, 1; A. 355; G. 381; H. 449, 1, 2; rei publicae means the Roman state.

Page 43. 1. communis: i.e. of the Romans and the Haeduns. manus hostium distineri: for the bands of the enemy to be kept apart; manus is the subject accusative of distineri, while distineri itself is the subject of the impersonal interessit.

2. ne confligendum sit: lest it be necessary to fight; literally, lest it have to be fought. The periphrastic conjugation is often thus used impersonally.

3. id fieri posse: that that could be done, namely, that the forces of the enemy could be kept from uniting; posse depends upon the idea of saying implied in the context.

4. introduxerint et coeperint: representing future perfects indicative of direct statement.

6. coactas ad se venire: had been assembled and were coming. For the participle as the equivalent of a coordinate clause, see B. 337, 5; A. 496, n. 2; G. 664, r. 1; H. 639.

7. neque jam, etc.: and learned that they were no longer far off. The two elements of neque must often thus be separated, and connected in translation with different parts of the sentence. ab eis exploratoribus: limiting cognovit.

8. flumen Axonam: governed by the preposition trans in traducere; B. 179, 1; A. 395; G. 331, r. 1; H. 413. The Axona is the modern Aisne.

9. quod: its gender is determined by flumen, not by Axonam.

10. ibi: i.e. at the point where he crossed the river. This was at Berry-au-Bac, where remains of Caesar's fortifications have been brought to light in modern times. Consult the map. quae res: this action; subject of muniebat, reddebat, and efficiebat.

11. et . . . et: on the one hand . . . on the other. muniebat: protected.

12. post eum quae erant, etc.: made his rear secure. The antecedent of quae is ea understood, the object of reddebat; tuta is a predicate adjective limiting this ea. ab hostibus: Ablative of Separation with tuta. commeatus . . . efficiebat: made it possible for supplies to be brought; literally, brought it about that supplies could be, etc.; ut possent is a Substantive Clause of Result, the object of efficiebat; B. 297, 1; A. 568; G. 553, 1; H. 571, 3; ut would ordinarily stand at the beginning of this clause ; but, for the purpose of emphasis, commeatus is put first.

14. in eo flumine: across that river. This is the regular Latin idiom.

15. ibi: i.e. at the bridge on the north side of the Aisne, which here runs east and west. altera parte: i.e. on the south side of the river.

17. in altitudinem: in height; literally, into height. pedum duodecim: Genitive of Quality; B. 203, 2; A. 345, b; G. 365, b; H. 440, 3.

18. duodeviginti pedum: i.e. eighteen feet in breadth at the top. Its sloping sides naturally made the bottom much narrower.

19. nomine: Ablative of Specification; B. 226; A. 418; G. 397; H. 480.

20. ex itinere: on the march; i.e. they did not contemplate a protracted siege.

21. sustentatum est: the assault was withstood.

22. Gallorum . . . oppugnatio: the mode of assault of the Gauls, the same as that of the Belgians, is as follows; B. 341, 1, c; A. 324, c; G. 643; H. 508, 5.

23. circumjecta multitudine: Ablative Absolute. totis moenibus = the whole town; dative; indirect object of circumjecta; B. 187, 111; A. 370; G. 348; H. 429, 2.

24. coepti sunt: when the dependent infinitive is passive, coeptusum is regularly used instead of coepi.

25. defensoribus: Ablative of Separation. testudine facta: having made a testudo; testudo was the name given to a special military formation in which the shields of the soldiers overlapped one another like the scales of a tortoise.

26. quod: i.e. this mode of attack. tum: on the present occasion. facile fiebat: was easily put into operation.

27. conicerent: the plural, since multitudo is a collective noun; B. 254, 4; A. 317, d; G. 211, r. 1, Exc. a; H. 389, 1.

28. consistendi: the gerund, used as Objective Genitive with potestas. potestas erat nulli: no one had the ability, no one could; nulli is Dative of Possession; B. 190; A. 373; G. 349; H. 430. We should have expected nemini, but the adjective nullus is at times used for nemo.

29. Iccius Remus: Iccius, one of the Remi. summa nobilitate: of the highest rank. Ablative of Quality; B. 224; A. 415; G. 400; H. 473, 2.

30. suos: his countrymen. oppido: dative; indirect object of praefuerat; B. 187, III; A. 370; G. 347; H. 429.

Page 44. 1. legati: as envoys; predicate nominative with venerant, limiting qui. His embassy is referred to on p. 41, line 9. ad eum: i.e. to Caesar.

2. sibi, sese: probably to be taken as plurals referring to the Remi. summittatur: subordinate clause in indirect discourse. sustinere: here used absolutely in the sense of hold out.

3. posse: principal clause in indirect discourse, depending upon the idea of saying involved in nuntium mittit.

4. eo: i.e. to Bibrax. de: about. isdem ducibus usus: employing the same men as guides; ducibus is in predicate relation to isdem. Note that usus here has the force of a present participle, i.e. it denotes contemporary action,— using; B. 336, 5; A. 491; G. 282, x.; H. 640, 1.

5. Numidas et Cretās: often mentioned as bowmen; Cretās is a Greek accusative; B. 47, 3; A. 81, 5, 82; G. 66, 4; H. 109, 5.

6. Baleares: the inhabitants of the Balearic Islands were famous in antiquity for their skill as slingers. The story went that the Balearic boys were allowed no dinner until they could bring it down with their slings. subsidio: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433.

7. et . . . et: on the one hand . . . and on the other. cum spe defensionis: along with the hope of a (successful) defense.

8. hostibus: from the enemy; Dative of Separation; B. 188, 2, d; A. 381; G. 345, r. 1; H. 427. spes potiundi oppidi: hope of gaining the town; the gerundive construction. For the ending -undi, see B. 116, 2; A. 12, d; G. 138, 8; H. 243.

11. quo: the adverb, equivalent to ad quae, referring to viciis and aedificiis. omnibus copiis: Ablative of Accompaniment without cum; B. 222, 1; A. 413, a; G. 392, r. 1; H. 474, 2, n. 1.

12. a milibus, etc.: less than two miles off; a is here an adverb meaning off, away; milibus is Ablative of Degree of Difference; minus is introduced without affecting the construction of the sentence; B. 217, 1, 3; A. 407, c; G. 296, 4; H. 471, 4.

14. amplius milibus: milibus is here Ablative of Comparison with the adverb amplius.

17. opinionem virtutis: their reputation for bravery; B. 200; A. 348; G. 363, 2; H. 440, 2. proelio supersedere: to refrain from battle; proelio is Ablative of Separation.

18. quid hostis virtute posset: what the enemy's mettle was; literally, what the enemy availed in valor.

19. periclitabatur: i.e. made constant trials; B. 260, 2; A. 470; G. 231; H. 530, 534, 3.

20. loco . . . idoneo: since there was a place, etc.; Ablative Absolute, equivalent to a causal clause; B. 227, 2, d; A. 420, 2; G. 410; H. 489, 1.

21. ad aciem instruendam: to be joined in thought with opportuno atque idoneo.

22. quod is collis, etc.: explaining why the place was suitable for drawing up a line of battle; namely, there was rising ground of just sufficient width for an army in battle array, while steep declivities protected the flanks.

23. tantum adversus in latitudinem, etc.: was as wide in front (i.e. on the side toward the enemy, — the west) as a line of battle when drawn up could fill; tantum is an Accusative of Extent of Space; adversus is an adjective agreeing with collis, the subject of patebat; loci is a Genitive of the Whole with quantum; we should have expected it to limit tantum. quantum: object of occupare.

24. ex utraque parte: on each side.

25. lateris dejectus: lateral declivities. habebat: the subject is still collis. in frontem leniter, etc.: and in front, sloping gently, gradually returned to the plain. Remember that the front is the western side.

26. ab utroque: the principal clause of this long sentence begins here.

27. transversam: at right angles, namely, to the line of the eminence; see plan.

28. passuum quadringentorum: four hundred paces (long); Genitive of Quality; B. 203, 2; A. 345, b; G. 365, 2; H. 440, 3. ad extremas fossas: at the ends of the ditches; B. 241, 1; A. 293; G. 291, r. 2; H. 497, 3.

Page 45. 1. tormenta: engines for hurling missiles, such as javelins or heavy stones. See Introd. § 48.

2. instruxisset: Subjunctive by Attraction to posset; B. 324; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652. poterant: as the explanation of the writer, this clause stands in the indicative.

3. ab lateribus: on the flanks. pugnantes: limiting suos. suos: his men.

4. duabus legionibus quas proxime conscripserat: i.e. the thirteenth and fourteenth legions enrolled in Hither Gaul in the spring of this year; see chapter 1. As usual Caesar spares his raw troops, holding them back as reserves for a critical emergency.

5. si quo opus esset: if it was necessary for them to be led anywhere; quo is the indefinite adverb, limiting duci to be supplied. This duci (or, with subject accusative, eos duci) is the subject of esset; esset is attracted into the subjunctive. subsidio: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 1; A. 382; G. 356; H. 425, 3.

7. eductas instruxerant: i.e. had led them forth and drawn them up; B. 337, 5; A. 496, n. 2; G. 664, r. 1; H. 639.

9. inter nostrum . . . exercitum: between our army and that of the enemy. The possessive pronoun nostrum is made coördinate with the genitive hostium.

10. si nostri transirent: indirect question with si; B. 300, 3; A. 576, a; G. 460, 1, b; H. 649, II, 3.

11. si . . . fieret: in case a beginning should be made. The clause is subordinate to aggrederentur, which in turn is subordinate to parati.

13. proelio . . . contendebatur: a cavalry battle was in progress; literally, it was being contended, etc.

14. secundiore proelio: Ablative Absolute, with adversative force; B. 227, 2, c; A. 420, 3; G. 410; H. 489, 1.

15. nostris: with secundiore; B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434, 2.

16. quod esse, etc.: which, it has been shown, was behind our camp; literally, which to be behind our camp has been shown; quod is the subject of esse; esse is subject of the impersonal demonstratum est.

19. eo consilio: with this object. ut expugnarent: a Substantive Clause of Purpose, in apposition with eo consilio. si possent, si potuissent: Subjunctive by Attraction; possent represents a future, potuissent a future perfect, of more direct statement. castellum: at the southern end of the bridge. Their plan was to cross the river and surprise Sabinus from the rear.

21. si minus potuissent: if they should not be able; when an affirmative protasis is repeated in negative form, si non or si minus is regularly used; B. 306, 2, b; H. 575, 4. popularentur, prohiberent: ut must be supplied with these. The clauses are further appositives of eo consilio.

22. magno usui: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2, a; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433. commeatuque: commeatu is an Ablative of Separation; -que is here equivalent to and so; the supplies came from the Remi. ad bellum gerendum: for waging war.

24. certior factus: i.e. having been informed of the situation.

25. levis armaturae Numidas: light-armed Numidians; literally, Numidians of light equipment; Genitive of Quality; B. 203; A. 345; G. 365; H. 440, 3.

26. ponte: by the bridge; Ablative of the Way by which. ad eos contendit: the Belgians were to the west of the bridge. See the plan for the scene of this engagement.

2. audacissime: Caesar often pays such tributes as this to the bravery of his antagonists. It may be only an indirect way of enhancing the glory of his own achievements. conantes: agreeing with reliquos.

3. equitatu circumventos interfecerunt: they surrounded with the cavalry and cut to pieces. The cavalry are here conceived as the means, not as the agent; hence the absence of the preposition; B. 218, 10; A. 409; G. 401, R. 1; H. 468, 2.

5. oppido: Bibrax; chapters 6, 7.

6. spem se fefellisse: that hope had disappointed them. neque: and . . . not, as often.

8. res frumentaria deficere coepit: the Gauls were inexperienced in systematic campaigning. Ordinarily they provided insufficient supplies for lengthy operations, and hence were often forced to disperse prematurely to their homes. In the present instance Caesar was thus able to attack and subjugate each tribe singly.

9. optimum esse, etc.: that it was best for each to return to his own home; esse is the object of constituerunt; optimum is a predicate adjective, limiting reverti, the subject of esse. domum suam: B. 182, 1, b; A. 427, 2; G. 337; H. 418, 419, 1.

10. et convenirent: and that they should assemble; a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive (let them assemble); object of constituerunt. In these clauses ut is often absent, this being the original form of construction; B. 295, 4, 8; A. 563, d; 565, a; G. 546, R. 2; H. 565. quorum: its antecedent is eos in the next line.

11. introduxissent: Subjunctive by Attraction; B. 324; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652. It represents a future perfect of more direct statement.

12. ut decertarent, uterentur: purpose clauses. Note that decerto means more than merely 'contend'; it implies fighting to a finish.

14. sententiam: resolution. cum reliquis causis: along with other reasons, to be taken with haec quoque ratio.

15. quod cognoverant: the fact that they knew; explanatory of haec ratio. Note that the pluperfect of cognosco has the force of an imperfect of the verb 'know'; B. 262; A. 476; G. 175, 5; H. 538, 4. Divitiacum . . . appropinquare: i.e. Divitiacus was complying with Caesar's request, made above, p. 43, line 3.

16. finibus: for the dative, see B. 187, III; A. 370; G. 347; H. 429. his persuaderi non poterat: these (the Bellovaci) could not be persuaded; literally, it could not be persuaded to these. Verbs that govern the dative in the active, can be used in the passive only impersonally.

17. ut morarentur: to delay; a substantive clause dependent upon persuaderi. neque . . . ferrent: and to forego lending aid to their countrymen; literally, and (-que) not (ne-) to lend.

20. nullo certo ordine, etc.: without any definite arrangement and direction; Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; B. 221; A. 412; G. 399; H. 473, 3.

21. cum peteret: a causal clause.

22. fecerunt ut . . . videretur: they made their departure seem, etc.; literally, brought about that their departure seemed; ut videretur is a Substantive Clause of Result, the object of fecerunt; B. 297, 1; A. 568; G. 553, 1; H. 571, 3.

23. fugae: dative; B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434, 2.

24. veritus: fearing; for the perfect participle of deponents used with the force of the present, see B. 336, 5; A. 491; G. 282, x.; H. 640, 1. qua de causa discederent: why they were withdrawing; indirect question.

25. exercitum: here the infantry as contrasted with the cavalry.

26. castris: with teneo and contineo, the camp is considered as the means rather than the place; hence the simple ablative. confirmata re: when the fact was established, namely, of their retreat. exploratoribus: scouts; different from the spies (speculatores), who mingled among the enemy in disguise.

27. qui moraretur: Relative Clause of Purpose; B. 282, 2; A. 531, 2; G. 630; H. 590.

29. his: plural, as referring to the collective noun equitatum. For the dative, see B. 187, III; A. 370; G. 347; H. 429.

31. hi: referring to the infantry and cavalry just mentioned.

Page 47. 1. fugientium: as they fled. cum consisterent, etc.: cum is causal, and introduces the reason for the great slaughter, namely, only those on the rear of the Belgian host stood their ground, while the rest, instead of joining in the defense, hurried on madly in quest of safety. ab extremo agmine: at the rear.

2. ad quos ventum erat: the antecedent of quos is ei understood, the subject of consisterent,—those to whom they had come; literally, to whom it had been come.

3. priores = sed priores (those in front); Adversative Asyndeton; priores is the subject of ponerent.

4. viderentur, continerentur: Subjunctive by Attraction; B. 324; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652.

5. exaudito clamore perturbatis ordinibus: two Ablatives Absolute; but the first is the cause of the second, i.e. the ranks were thrown into disorder at the sound of the shouting.

6. sibi: Dative of Reference. praesidium ponerent: sought (literally, placed) security.

7. tantam . . . quantum: as many as time allowed; literally, as great a number as was the duration of the day,—a careless and inexact comparison.

11. priusquam reciperent: the subjunctive is used to denote anticipation; B. 292, 1, b; A. 551, b; G. 577; H. 605. Note that se recipere here means 'recovered.' It is used differently in line 10 above.

13. Remis: dependent upon proximi; B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434, 2. magno itinere: by a rapid march.

14. Noviodunum: the name means 'Newtown.' ex itinere: i.e. without stopping to institute a regular siege.

15. vacuum ab defensoribus: lacking defenders; vacuum is in predicate agreement with the omitted subject of esse; defensoribus is an Ablative of Separation.

16. latitudinem fossae murique altitudinem: Chiasmus; B. 350, 11, c; A. 598, f and n.; G. 682 and n.; H. 666, 2.

17. paucis defendentibus: Ablative Absolute with adversative force,—though few defended it.

18. vineas: movable sheds or mantlets, to protect the soldiers as they approached the walls of the enemy. Their dimensions are given as eight feet broad, seven feet high, and sixteen feet long. agere: to move up, advance. quaeque = et quae; the antecedent of quae is ea understood, the object of comparare.

21. aggere jacto: when an agger or siege-terrace had been thrown up. This was begun at some distance from the enemy's walls and gradually approached them at right angles as its construction advanced, the end toward the enemy being protected by sheds and other defenses. It was built as high as the hostile wall against which it was intended, and when completed furnished an avenue of approach to the battlements of the besieged. See Introd. § 41. turribus consti- tutis : these towers were called turres ambulatoriae, literally, 'walking towers,' so designated because they were on rollers and could be moved from place to place. In the construction of an agger they were often of service in protecting the workmen by harassing the enemy. These towers were of several stories and sometimes rose to a height of ninety feet. They were supplied with battering rams and engines for hurling heavy missiles against the enemy. See Introd. § 42.

23. ante : the adverb. audierant : had heard of.

25. petentibus Remis : since the Remi begged. ut conservarentur : a substantive clause, object of petentibus; B. 295, 1; A. 563; G. 546; H. 565, 566.

26. obsidibus acceptis primis, etc. : after their leading men had been received as hostages; obsidibus is in predicate relation to primis and liberis.

Page 48. 1. qui cum : when they.

4. majores natu : the elders; natu is an Ablative of Specification; B. 226, 1; A. 418; G. 397; H. 480.

6. sese . . . venire : that they submitted to (literally, came into) his protection and power. neque : and . . . not.

7. contendere : we might have expected the future here; but the present is more vivid, — they did not fight.

8. pueri : children, including both girls and boys.

9. passis : from pando. suo more : to be joined closely with passis manibus. Stretching out the hands was their way of indicating submission : suo more is Ablative of Accordance; B. 220, 3; A. 418, a and n.; G. 399, n. 1; H. 475, 3.

11. his : the Bellovaci. post discessum Belgarum : i.e. after the different tribes had dispersed owing to the failure of their supplies, as explained above, p. 46, line 8.

12. facit verba : spoke.

13. in fide atque amicitia civitatis : i.e. had been loyal and friendly.

14. impulsos : as indicated by the position, the emphasis of the sentence rests on this word, — it was because they had been impelled by their chiefs, . . . that they had revolted, etc.

15. dicerent : subordinate clause in indirect discourse. redactos : the participle.

16. indignitates contumeliasque : for abstract nouns in the plural, see B. 55, 4, c; A. 99, 3, 100, c; G. 204, n. 5; H. 138, 2.

17. qui : its antecedent is eos understood, the subject of profugisse.

18. quod : causal.

19. intulissent: this would be subjunctive (or indirect question) even in the direct discourse.

21. sua: his usual, or, his well known. in eos: toward them. utatur: this and the remaining subjunctives of this chapter are in the present and perfect tenses, instead of the imperfect and pluperfect, as though dependent upon a principal tense, thus giving greater vividness to the narration (repraesentatio).

22. quod si fecerit: if he do this; fecerit represents a future perfect of direct discourse.

23. amplificaturum (esse): the subject is eum understood, referring to Caesar. quorum: its antecedent is Belgas. si qua: whatever.

24. consuerint: equivalent to a present in the sense of be wont; its subject is ei understood, referring to the Haedui.

25. honoris Divitiaci causa: as a mark of honor to Divitiacus. Caesar's policy was to enhance the prestige of the Haedui, by attributing this act of pardon to the influence of Divitiacus.

27. civitas: namely, of the Bellovaci. magna auctoritate: Ablative of Quality.

28. multitudine: Ablative of Specification.

29. oppido: Bratuspantium.

Page 49. 1. eorum: namely, of the Ambiani; the word is emphatic by position.

2. sic: as follows.

3. ad eos: prepositional phrases are not freely used in Latin to limit nouns, but occur with some frequency when limiting nouns derived from verbs. mercatoribus: Dative of Possession, i.e. merchants had no access. pati: as subject understand eos, referring to the Nervii. vini: Genitive of the Whole with nihil, — no wine.

4. ad luxuriam pertinentium: i.e. which tend to encourage self-indulgence. inferri: to be imported.

5. existimarent: subordinate clause in indirect discourse.

8. patriam: the adjective.

11. eorum: referring to the Nervii. iter: the line of Caesar's march is indicated on the campaign map opposite p. 40.

12. Sabim: the modern Sambre, a tributary of the Meuse. For the accusative in -im, see B. 38; A. 75, a, 1; G. 57, r. 1; H. 102, 2.

13. milia: Accusative of Extent of Space; amplius is introduced without affecting the construction of the sentence.

16. utrisque: the plural of uterque occurs where there is a distinct reference to two groups of persons or things, as here; otherwise the singular is used; B. 355, 2, a, 2.

18. mulieres: the object of conjecisse. quique = et qui. The antecedent of qui is eos understood, object of conjecisse.

19. eum locum: a place.

20. quo esset: not merely a subordinate clause in indirect discourse, but a Clause of Characteristic; hence the subjunctive would have been used even in the direct form; quo is the adverb, equivalent to ad or in quem. exercitui: Dative of Possession.

22. deligant: Relative Clause of Purpose. Note that after the Historical Present either principal or historical sequence may follow. ex dediticiis: of those who had surrendered; used instead of the Genitive of the Whole, with complures.

24. una: the adverb.

25. eorum dierum consuetudine, etc.: having noticed the customary march of our army during those days; consuetudine is limited by dierum and itineris, while itineris is further limited by exercitus. Such an accumulation of genitives is stylistically bad and is usually avoided in Latin. This entire second book of the Gallic War, however, displays frequent evidences of hasty composition and inadequate revision.

28. magnum numerum: a large amount. intercedere: i.e. was placed between. neque esse quicquam negoti: and there was no difficulty. Note that the Latin regularly says neque quicquam, instead of et nihil, which would correspond to the English idiom; quicquam is predicate accusative with esse, the subject of esse being adoriri in line 2, p. 50; negoti is Genitive of the Whole.

29. in castra: the Romans regularly constructed a fortified camp when they came to the end of the day's march. Introd. § 38. venisset, abessent: corresponding respectively to the future perfect and future of direct statement.

Page 50. 2. sub sarcinis: i.e. carrying the heavy packs of rations, tools, and cooking utensils regularly borne by every soldier. Introd. § 30. qua pulsa, etc.: the Ablatives Absolute here denote means, — by routing these, etc.

3. futurum ut non auderent: a periphrasis for non ausuros esse; ut non auderent is a Substantive Clause of Result, the subject of futurum (esse). reliquae: namely, legiones. contra: the adverb.

4. adjuvabat etiam eorum consilium, etc.: a thing that supported the advice of these was the fact that, etc.; literally, it supported their advice that the Nervii, etc.; adjuvabat is emphatic, and hence heads the sentence.

5. cum: here causal. nihil: for the accusative, see B. 176, 2, b; A. 390, c, d; G. 333, r. 2; H. 416, 2. neque enim: nor indeed; enim did not originally mean for, but now, indeed. This meaning has for the most part disappeared in classical Latin, but survives in a few phrases like neque enim, sed enim, etc.

6. ei rei: i.e. cavalry forces; for the dative, see B. 187, ii; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 1.

7. quo impedirent: in purpose clauses quo is regularly used, if there is a comparative in the sentence.

8. venissent: Subjunctive by Attraction, representing the future perfect of more direct statement.

9. arboribus incisus, etc.: translate the Ablatives Absolute by clauses introduced by after, — after cutting into, etc. in latitudinem: side-wise. The young trees had merely been cut enough to make it possible to bend them over to a horizontal position without destroying their vitality.

10. interjectis: i.e. planted in between.

11. effecerant: its subject is Nervii in line 5. The clause quod effecerant is the subject of the impersonal adjuvabat. ut prae-arent: Substantive Clause of Result, the object of effecerant. instar muri: like a wall; B. 198, 2; A. 359, b; G. 373; H. 446, 4; instar is in apposition with munimentum. hae saepes: the farmers of this locality fence in their fields to-day with hedges of this same kind.

14. omittendum: understand esse. sibi: by them; Dative of Agent; B. 189, 1; A. 374; G. 355; H. 431. consilium: i.e. the project of attacking the first legion.

15. haec: explained by what follows. quem locum . . . delegerant: the spot chosen was on the heights near the modern hamlet of Neuf Mesnil. The antecedent is repeated in the relative clause, as often in Caesar. castris: Dative of Purpose.

16. aequaliter: evenly, regularly. ad flumen: with vergebat.

17. quod: the gender is determined by flumen, not by Sabim.

18. pari acclivitate: Ablative of Quality; i.e. the second hill had the same slope as the first. nasebatur: rose. adversus et contrarius: opposite and across (the stream). huic: for the dative, see B. 192; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434.

19. infimus: at the base. apertus: as opposed to the wooded portion above.

22. secundum: the preposition, along. stationes: pickets.

23. pedum trium: Genitive of Quality; B. 203, 2; A. 345, b; G. 366; H. 440, 3.

25. omnibus copiis: Ablative of Accompaniment. For the absence of the preposition, see B. 222, 1; A. 413, a; G. 392, r. 1; H. 474, 2, n. 1.

26. aliter se habebat ac, etc.: was different from what the Belgians had reported; literally, had itself otherwise than. For this force of ac with comparatives and similar words, see B. 341, 1, c; A. 324, c; G. 643; H. 516, 3. The compound subject ratio ordoque is construed with a singular verb, since ratio ordoque constitutes one idea; B. 255, 3; A. 317, b; G. 285, 2; H. 392, 4.

28. consuetudine sua: Ablative of Accordance; B. 220, 3; A. 418, a and n.; G. 399, n. 1; H. 475, 3.

29. expeditas: i.e. they had been relieved of their heavy packs (sarcinae), and were ready for battle; expeditas is in predicate relation to legiones.

Page 51. 1. collocarat = collocaverat. quae proxime conscriptae erant: the thirteenth and fourteenth.

2. praesidio: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2, a; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433.

5. in silvas, ex silva: the plural calls attention to the different parts; the singular represents the forest as a whole.

6. neque: and . . . not.

7. quam quem ad finem: than as far as; for quam ad eum finem ad quem. porrecta pertinebant: literally, extended stretched out; but porrecta is superfluous to our sense and may be omitted in translation.

8. cedentes: limiting eos understood, the object of insequi.

9. opere dimenso: having laid out the works. Note that dimenso, though the perfect participle of a deponent verb, is here used passively; B. 112, b; A. 190, b; H. 222, 2.

12. visa sunt: were seen. quod tempus . . . convenerat: the moment which had been agreed upon. Grammatically tempus is the subject of convenerat, but logically it is in apposition with the general idea involved in ubi . . . visa sunt. For the incorporation of the antecedent in the relative clause, see B. 251, 4, b; G. 616, 2. inter eos: this phrase modifies convenerat.

13. committendi proeli: for joining battle. Note that proeli limits tempus, and committendi is the gerundive agreeing with proeli.

14. sese confirmaverant: had determined (to do).

15. nostros equites: those who had crossed the river with the slingers and archers.

18. et . . . et . . . et: note the emphasis of the Polysyndeton; B. 341, 4, b. in manibus nostris: close beside us. The distance between the two camps was about three-quarters of a mile. Probably not more than ten minutes elapsed, after the Gauls emerged from cover, before they reached the Romans.

19. viderentur: were seen, like visa sunt above.

20. adverso colle: up the hill; literally, the hill being against them; Ablative Absolute.

21. occupati erant: were busied; not the pluperfect passive of occupo; occupati is here an adjective.

22. Caesari . . . agenda: by Caesar, all things had to be done at one time; Caesari is Dative of Agency; the emphasis on the word is indicated by its position. vexillum: the crimson banner set up as a signal for battle. Introd. § 34.

23. proponendum, dandum: with these and the following gerundives erat or erant must be supplied. signum tuba dandum: i.e. the signal for forming in battle array. ab opere: i.e. the camp, which they had begun to fortify.

24. qui: as antecedent supply ei, the subject of arcessendi (erant). paulo longius: i.e. somewhat further than usual. aggeris: here not in the sense of embankment, but of the materials used in constructing the rampart of the camp, such as timber, stone, etc.

26. signum: i.e. for the engagement.

27. impediebat: for the singular verb with compound subject, see the note on habebat, p. 50, line 26.

28. duae res: namely, (1) scientia atque usus militum, (2) quod . . . vetuerat.

29. quod . . . poterant: explanatory of scientia atque usus. exercitati: agreeing with the subject of poterant. quid oporteret: indirect question, the object of praescribere.

Page 52. 1. ipsi sibi: the reflexive pronouns are often thus emphasized by the addition of ipse, which in such cases, instead of standing in apposition with the reflexive, more commonly agrees with the subject. In this use, ipse is often untranslatable in English; thus here it serves merely as an antithesis to ab aliis.

3. legatos: the regular commanders of the legions; Introd. § 21. nisi munitis castris: until after the camp should be fortified; literally, unless the camp having been fortified; Ablative Absolute.

5. nihil jam : no longer ; but nihil is more emphatic than non.
6. videbantur : seemed best.
7. necessariis rebus : i.e. only the absolutely indispensable things.
8. quam in partem fors obtulit : in the direction which chance suggested ; for in eam partem in quam, etc.
9. non longiore oratione quam uti, etc. : in no more words than necessary to urge them to retain, etc. ; the clause uti retinerent depends upon the notion of urging or exhorting suggested by oratione.
11. neu : neve (neu), and not neque, is regularly used to introduce an added negative Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive. animo : Ablative of Specification.
12. sustinerent : the introductory conjunction is uti in line 10.
- quod . . . aberant : to be joined in thought with signum dedit.
13. quam quo . . . posset : than the cast of a spear ; literally, than (a point) to which a spear could be hurled ; quo posset is a Clause of Characteristic.
14. in alteram partem : namely, to the right wing.
15. pugnantibus : i.e. already fighting ; pugnantibus agrees with eis understood, the indirect object of occurrit.
17. ad insignia accommodanda : for adjusting the decorations (to the helmets) ; by insignia we are probably to understand the crests of the helmets. ad galeas induendas : on the march the helmets were not worn on the head, but were suspended about the necks of the soldiers. See the illustration in Introd. § 28.
18. scutis tegimenta detrahenda : except in battle, the shields were covered by cases to protect them from injury and the effects of the weather ; scutis is Ablative of Separation.
19. defuerit : the perfect subjunctive is here used as a secondary tense ; B. 268, 6 ; A. 485, c ; G. 513 ; H. 550. quam quisque ab opere, etc. : to whatsoever place each one happened to come from the fortification.
20. quaeque = et quae. The antecedent of quae is haec. ad haec : i.e. ad haec signa, by these. Strict balance of the sentence would have required, in hac parte et ad haec.
21. suis : understand signis.
22. ut : as.
24. diversae : being separated. aliae alia in parte : some in one place, others in another.
25. saepibus : Ablative of Means.
26. ut ante demonstravimus : namely, p. 50, line 9. interjectis : which were scattered here and there.

27. certa subsidia: i.e. reserves in fixed places; the principal clause of the sentence begins here; subsidia is the subject of poterant.

28. provideri: dependent upon poterat understood, to be supplied from poterant.

Page 53. 2. fortunae quoque eventus varii: various vicissitudes of fortune also.

3. ut . . . constiterant: in accordance with their position, etc.; literally, just as they were posted (had taken their stand).

4. acie: for this rare form of the genitive, see B. 52, 3; A. 98, n.; G. 63, n. 1; H. 134, 2. cursu ac lassitudine: of two coördinated ideas the second is often merely explanatory of the first, as here.

6. ea pars: i.e. that division of the enemy, namely, the Atrebatas. ex loco superiore: i.e. the Romans occupied the higher ground.

7. conantes: agreeing with the omitted object of insecuti.

8. impeditam: i.e. by the confusion of their retreat and the passage of the stream. ipsi: namely, the Romans.

10. redintegrato proelio: the Ablative Absolute is explanatory of resistentes, — renewing the fight and again resisting.

11. alia in parte: namely, in the centre, directly in front of the camp. diversae: i.e. some distance apart, not side by side, as ordinarily.

13. in ipsis ripis: on the very bank.

14. totis fere castris: fere very commonly stands after the word it modifies, thus separating the adjective from its noun. a fronte, a sinistra parte: in front, on the left side.

15. nudatis: the very success of the four legions brought the two remaining ones into the gravest danger. cum constitisset: a causal clause explanatory of the statement totis fere castris nudatis. But the expression is somewhat inexact. The real reason why the camp was left exposed was that the two legions protecting its front (the 8th and 11th) along with two others protecting its left (the 9th and 10th) had advanced in pursuit of the routed Atrebatas and the Viromandui, leaving only the right of the camp protected (by the 7th and 12th legions).

16. magno intervallo: Ablative of Degree of Difference, depending upon the comparative notion implied in ab ea.

17. duce Boduognato: Ablative Absolute. summam imperi: i.e. the chief command.

19. ab aperto latere: on the exposed flank, namely, the right. The expression originally applied to the individual soldier, who carried his shield in the left hand, thus leaving his right side exposed. summum castrorum locum: the height where the camp was, literally, the highest place of the camp; castrorum is Appositional Genitive; B. 202; A. 343, d; H. 440, 4.

21. armaturae pedites: such as bowmen, slingers, etc.; Genitive of Quality; B. 203; A. 345; G. 365; H. 440, 3.

22. cum una: along with. eis: the equites. quos: its antecedent is equites and pedites. primo impetu pulsos (esse): namely, at the river, when the Gauls emerged from the woods and rushed forth to the attack.

23. cum . . . reciperent: in order to return to camp, they had to recross the stream and ascend the hill. adversis: face to face; in predicate agreement with hostibus.

25. a decumana porta: the porta decumana was located at the rear of the Roman camp; see the plan, Introd. § 38. ac summo jugo: these words do not designate a different place from decumana porta, but are explanatory of it. The camp was on the upper slope of the hill, so that the decuman gate, being at the rear of the camp, was at the very crest of the elevation.

26. nostros victores: our victorious troops. flumen transisse: in pursuit of the routed Atrebates, as described in chapter 23. praedandi causa: the camp followers, seeing part of the enemy in flight, naturally assumed that the victory was complete, and hence set forth in quest of plunder.

3. eorum qui, etc.: these were the drivers of the baggage-train guarded by the 13th and 14th legions, which were bringing up the rear.

4. oriebatur: for the singular verb with compound subject, see B. 255, 3; A. 317, b; G. 285, 2; H. 392, 4. alii aliam in partem: some in one direction, others in another; B. 253, 2; A. 315, c; G. 221, R. 1; H. 516, 1.

6. Treveri: here an adjective. quorum: the relative refers not alone to the cavalry of the Treveri, but to the whole tribe.

7. virtutis opinio: reputation for valor.

8. a civitate: the state is conceived of as a person, hence the preposition. cum: the conjunction.

9. legiones: namely, the 7th and the 12th.

11. diversos: the participle, from diverto, not the adjective.

12. desperatis nostris rebus: despairing of our fortunes. Note that despero is a transitive verb and hence is capable of being used personally in the passive.

13. pulsos superatosque: understand esse. castris impedimentisque: governed by potitos (esse); B. 218, 1; A. 410. G. 407; H. 477, 1.

15. ab: from, in the local, not the temporal sense.

16. ubi: introducing vidit.

17. sibi ipsos ad pugnam, etc.: hindered each other in fighting. On the use of ipse to emphasize a reflexive pronoun, see note on p. 52, line 1.

18. quartae cohortis: the fourth cohort occupied the extreme left of the front line, a particularly exposed position; hence the casualties detailed by Caesar.

19. signo amisso: the loss of the standard was naturally felt as a disgrace.

21. primipilo confecto: the primipilus was properly the commander of the first manipule of the first cohort of a legion, but military custom gave him control, not only over his own manipule and cohort, but to a certain extent over the entire legion.

22. multis gravibusque: many severe; when multus and another adjective both limit the same noun, et or que is generally used in the Latin; B. 241, 3.

23. tardiores: for the force of the comparative, see B. 240, 1; A. 291, a; G. 297, 2; H. 498.

24. ab novissimis: at the rear.

25. neque: correlative with et in the line below. neque subeuntes intermittere: and did not stop advancing.

In the foregoing description notice how admirably the rapidly sketched details accord with the scene of confusion which Caesar is aiming to depict.

26. rem esse in angusto: that matters had reached a critical pass; literally, were in a narrow place; angusto is the adjective used substantively. The substantive use of neuter singular adjectives is commonest in the construction of the Genitive of the Whole and with prepositions; B. 237, 2, a.

27. vidit: the preceding infinitives depend upon vidit above in line 18, but owing to the long intervening description, Caesar for the sake of clearness repeats vidit here. quod summitti posset: the subjunctive would have been used even in direct discourse, the clause being one of Characteristic.

28. scuto militi detracto: snatching a shield from a soldier; militi is Dative of Separation; B. 188, 2, d; A. 381; G. 345, R. 1; H. 427. ab novissimis: at the rear; literally, from the rearmost.

29. eo : the adverb.

30. reliquos milites : object of cohortatus.

Page 55. 1. signa inferre : i.e. to advance. manipulos laxare :
to open up the companies.

3. pro se quisque : each to the best of his ability.

4. etiam in extremis suis rebus : even in their desperate situation.

6. juxta : i.e. near the 12th legion, of which Caesar had just been speaking.

8. legiones : the 7th and the 12th. conversa signa . . . inferrent : face about and advance upon the enemy ; literally, bear their changed standards ; Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive ; dependent upon monuit (‘let them bear, etc.’). The nature of the evolution here mentioned is thoroughly obscure. As shown by the following aversi, the Roman legions evidently secured their own rear from attack. Very likely they stood back to back.

10. aversi : in the rear ; literally, turned away ; agreeing with the subject of circumvenirentur. hoste : in this sense the plural is much commoner.

13. legionum duarum : the 13th and 14th.

15. cursu incitato : at full speed.

16. castris hostium : this was across the river, whither Labienus had advanced in pursuit of the Atrebatas. ex loco superiore : the high ground of the opposite bank gave Labienus a full view of the struggle going on around the camp of the Romans.

18. qui cum : qui refers to the soldiers of the 10th legion ; cum introduces cognovissent.

19. esset, versaretur : indirect questions ; note that versaretur agrees in number with its nearest subject.

21. nihil . . . fecerunt : made all possible speed ; literally, left nothing undone in point of speed ; reliqui is a predicate genitive.

23. procubuissent : subjunctive by attraction to the following redintegrarent.

24. scutis : for the ablative with innixi, see B. 218, 3 ; A. 431 ; G. 401, N. 6 ; H. 476, 3. calones : the subject of occurrerent.

25. inermes : limiting calones.

27. se . . . praeferrent : strove to show (literally, showed) themselves superior to the regular soldiers. The cavalry, it will be remembered, was furnished mainly by the allies (Intro. § 12) ; less was ordinarily expected of it than of the legionaries. militibus : Dative of Indirect Object with a compound of prae.

Page 56. 2. primi: the foremost.

3. jacentibus insisterent: took their stand upon the fallen.

4. his, etc.: in English we need a conjunction (and) to join this clause to the preceding; Copulative Asyndeton. qui superessent: the survivors. The antecedent of qui is the subject of conicerent; superessent is attracted into the subjunctive.

5. ut ex tumulo: from a mound, as it were; namely, a mound of dead bodies. conicerent: in the same construction as insisterent and pugnarent; i.e. exhibited such valor that the survivors, etc.

6. pila intercepta remitterent: when the pilum had once been hurled, its slender point usually bent, so that it could not be effectively returned by the enemy. The desperation of the Nervii is here emphasized by their frantic attempts to utilize these pila. ut non nequiquam, etc.: so that it ought not to be thought that men of so great bravery dared without reason (i.e. without prospect of success) to cross. The emphasis of the clause rests upon non nequiquam; ausos esse is the subject of deberet.

9. quae: things which; the antecedent of quae is found in the preceding infinitives. facilia . . . redegerat: had rendered easy from being most difficult; facilia is predicate accusative.

11. prope ad internecionem: this is an exaggeration. The Nervii only a few years later were able to put a large force in the field.

12. redacto: agreeing with the nearer subject.

14. dixeramus: i.e. prior to the description of the battle. cum: since.

15. impeditum, tutum: predicate adjectives with nihil.

18. ex sexcentis ad tres, etc.: the Nervii shrewdly exaggerate their losses, in order to move Caesar's pity.

19. possent: Clause of Characteristic; hence the subjunctive would have been used even in direct form.

21. usus: i.e. usus esse. videretur: here not seem, but be seen.

23. ut prohiberent: Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive; object of imperavit.

25. cum: the conjunction. omnibus copiis: Ablative of Accompaniment without cum.

26. auxilio: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 2; A. 382, 1; G. 356; H. 433.

28. in unum oppidum: into a single stronghold. This is thought by many to have been on the site of the modern Namur, at the junction of the Sambre and Meuse rivers.

29. cum: adversative, — while this . . . (yet).

Page 57. 3. ducentorum pedum : Genitive of Quality limiting aditus; amplius, as usual, does not affect the construction of the sentence.

4. tum : at that time.

5. in muro : on the wall. collocabant : i.e. they were engaged in placing them.

6. ex Cimbris Teutonis : see note on p. 41, line 27.

7. iter facerent : were making a raid.

8. agere, portare : agere, literally drive, suggests that the impedimenta consisted partly of cattle and horses.

9. custodiam ac praesidium : as a guard (of the property) and a garrison (of the place); predicate accusatives. ex suis : from their number; literally, from their own (people). The phrase limits milia.

10. una : i.e. along with the impedimenta. hi : i.e. those left as a guard.

11. eorum : the Cimbri and Teutoni, who were defeated by Marius in 102 and 101 B.C.

12. alias . . . defenderent : at one time waged offensive war, at another time defensive (literally, warded off war brought against them).

13. eorum omnium : i.e. all their enemies.

14. locum : region.

15. adventu : Ablative of Time.

17. pedum XII : i.e. twelve feet in height.

18. XV milium : pedum, not passuum, is to be understood. opido : for the Ablative of Means, see B. 218, 7; A. 429, 3; G. 389; H. 485.

19. vineis, aggere, turrim : see Introd. § 41 ff.

20. irridere, increpitare : historical infinitives; B. 335; A. 275; G. 647; H. 610.

21. quod institueretur : the reason in the minds of the Aduatuci; hence the subjunctive; B. 286, 1; A. 540; G. 541; H. 588, 1, II. a tanto spatio : so far away; a is an adverb; tanto spatio is Ablative of Degree of Difference.

22. quibusnam : with what . . . pray?

24. omnibus Gallis : in the eyes of all the Gauls; Dative of the Person Judging; B. 188, 2, c; A. 378, 1; G. 353; H. 425, 4.

25. contemptui : Dative of Purpose.

26. confiderent : treated as a real question in indirect discourse; hence the subjunctive; B. 315; A. 586; G. 651; H. 642, 2, 3.

27. moveri : as subject understand turrim.

Page 58. 1. locuti: for locuti sunt. \

2. non: placed first for emphasis; it logically belongs with sine.

3. qui possent: since they could; B. 283, 3, a; A. 535, e; G. 633; H. 592.

5. unum: one thing; explained by the clause ne despoliaret. \

6. pro: in accordance with. quam audirent: i.e. which they were continually hearing of.

7. statuisset, etc.: he should decide that the Aduatuci were to be spared. ne despoliaret: imperative clause in indirect discourse; B. 316; A. 588; G. 652; H. 642.

8. armis: Ablative of Separation. sibi: with inimicos.

9. virtuti: for the dative, see B. 187, II, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 2.

10. traditis armis: if they should surrender their arms; B. 227, 2, b; A. 420, 4; G. 410; H. 489, 1. sibi praestare: it was better for them. in eum casum: to that pass, namely, of being thus exposed to the vengeance of their neighbors.

11. quamvis fortunam: any visitation whatever; quamvis is the indefinite pronoun.

12. pati, interfici: subjects of the impersonal praestare.

13. consuessent: for the form, see B. 116, 1; A. 181, a; G. 131, 1; H. 238.

14. consuetudine sua, merito: consuetudine is Ablative of Accordance, B. 220, 3; A. 418, a; G. 475, 3; H. 475, 3; merito is Ablative of Cause.

16. priusquam . . . attigisset: i.e. without waiting for a continuance of the siege operations; attigisset represents a future perfect indicative of direct statement. After the actual storming of a city began, a voluntary surrender was no longer possible. For a description of the aries, see Introd. § 46.

18. in Nervis: in the case of the Nervii.

19. ne quam . . . inferrent: not to inflict any damage; a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive. In these, as in Purpose Clauses, ne quis is regularly used instead of ut nullus.

21. se facere dixerunt: said that they did. We should have expected a future tense, but the present lends greater vividness to the narrative by suggesting immediate compliance.

22. magna multitudine: with jacta.

24. summam muri aggerisque altitudinem: the full height of the wall and agger; i.e. the arms filled the space between the fortifications and the head of the agger, which had already neared the walls.

27. pace sunt usi: observed peace.

29. ne quam: see the note above on line 19.

5. viminibus intextis: woven willow-work; like cortice, governed by ex.

7. qua: where.

11. eo concursum est: they ran thither; B. 138, iv; A. 208, d; G. 208, 2; H. 302, 6. pugnatumque est: -que here has adversative force, — but; i.e. despite the discovery of their sortie.

12. ut a viris fortibus pugnari debuit: as brave men were bound to fight.

13. qui jacerent: a Clause of Characteristic.

14. in una virtute: in valor alone.

15. ad: about.

18. jam: longer.

21. capitum: persons. milium quinquaginta trium: as being fifty-three thousand; predicate genitive. But the entire tribe was not in the town. The Aduatuci appear later fighting against the Romans.

23. Publio Crasso: for his important share in the engagement with Ariovistus, see Book I, chapter 52.

24. legione una: the 7th. miserat: this was after the fight on the Sabis against the Nervii. Venetos, Redones: the names of these tribes survive in the modern town names Vannes and Rennes. Coriosolitās: Greek accusative plural.

25. quae: the relative is attracted to the gender of the predicate noun.

26. civitates: nations, tribes, as often in Caesar.

Page 60. 1. omni Gallia pacata: i.e. all those portions which offered organized resistance to the Romans.

3. incolerent: subjunctive by attraction to mitterentur; B. 324, 1; A. 593; G. 663, 1; H. 652.

4. qui pollicerentur: a Relative Clause of Purpose. se daturas, facturas (esse): the speakers identify themselves with their nationes; hence the feminine gender. Note the asyndeton in daturas, facturas.

5. in Italiam: i.e. cisalpine Gaul, one of Caesar's provinces.

8. Carnutes, Andes, Turonos: these names survive in the town names Chartes, Anjou, and Tours. quaeque civitates = et in eas civitates quae.

9. his: the antecedent of ubi.

10. ob easque res : -que is almost never appended to a preposition; B. 341, 2, a; H. 677, 2.

11. ex litteris : in accordance with despatches. supplicatio : a public thanksgiving. Prior to this no supplicatio had ever been decreed for a longer period than twelve days.

12. quod : its antecedent is the previous statement. nulli : for nemini, i.e. the adjective for the substantive. Note the emphasis produced by placing this word at the end of the sentence.

BOOK III

Page 61. 1. in Italiam proficisceretur : as mentioned at the close of Book II. Servium Galbam : a lieutenant of Caesar, and, according to report, one of his assassins. The emperor Galba (68 A.D.) was descended from him.

4. ad summas Alpes : i.e. to the highlands of the Alps.

5. iter per Alpes : by the pass of the Great St. Bernard; iter is subject of patefieri.

6. quo : the adverb; its antecedent is Alpes. cum : subject to. portorii : taxes on merchandise that passed through their territory.

7. huic : i.e. Galba.

8. si arbitraretur : subjunctive by attraction to collocaret; arbitraretur represents a future indicative (si arbitraberis) of direct statement. uti collocaret : a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive; B. 295, 2; A. 563; G. 553, 2; H. 564, 1.

11. eorum : i.e. of the Nantuates, etc.

12. cohortes duas : probably about six hundred men. The legion had been reduced by the losses in the fight on the Sabis.

13. reliquis cohortibus : eight in number, comprising, in their reduced condition, perhaps twenty-five hundred soldiers.

15. Octodurus : identified with the modern Martigny.

17. flumine : its modern name is the Dranse.

18. vacuam : predicate adjective with relictam.

21. hibernorum : here in the sense of the stay in winter quarters, wintering.

22. eo : the adverb.

Page 62. 1. concesserat : the indicative is used because the words, ex ea parte . . . concesserat, are not properly a part of the indirect discourse, but are an explanatory addition of the author.

2. a multitude: collective nouns referring to persons may be construed as the personal agent with ab; B. 216, 1; G. 401, R. 1; H. 468, 1.

4. id: explained by the following ut clause, which is a Substantive Clause of Result.

6. quod: introducing despiciebant.— neque eam plenissimam: and that not a very full one; B. 247, 4; G. 308, R. 2; H. 508, 2. detractis cohortibus duabus et compluribus absentibus: the Ablatives Absolute explain why the legion was not full. The two cohorts were those stationed in the territory of the Nantuates. With compluribus understand militibus.

9. tum etiam: introducing a second reason for renewing the war.

10. ipsi: the Gauls. ex montibus in vallem: to be taken with conicerent as well as decurrerent. decurrerent, conicerent: should run down, should hurl; these represent the future indicative of direct discourse.

12. accedebat quod: another reason was that; literally, it was added that. For the quod-clause, see B. 299, 1; A. 572; G. 525; H. 588, 3.

13. liberos abstractos (esse): object of dolebant. Romanos . . . persuasum habebant: and had persuaded themselves that the Romans were trying, etc.

14. itinerum causa: the reason mentioned by Caesar in Chapter 1. perpetuae possessionis: the suspicions of the Gauls are hardly surprising in view of the actual facts; possessionis dependent upon causa.

16. finitimae provinciae: the Roman Province. persuasum: in predicate agreement with conari, which is the grammatical object of habebant.

18. perfectae: agreeing with the nearest subject; B. 235, 2, b, γγ; A. 317, c; H. 392. de: for.

19. satis esset provisum: sufficient provision had (not) been made; esset provisum is impersonal.

20. quod existimaverat: a subordinate reason, explanatory of esset provisum. The indicative shows that the explanation proceeds from the mind of the author.

21. consilio: namely, of the chief officers.

24. omnia fere: note that fere commonly stands after the word which it modifies. completa: in predicate agreement with loca.

25. neque subsidio veniri: and they could neither be reinforced; subsidio is Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 1; A. 382; G. 356; H. 425, 3; veniri is impersonal, dependent upon posset, to be supplied in thought from possent; B. 138, iv; A. 208, d; G. 208, 2; H. 302, 6. Note that neque here has a double function; it is both copulative (and) and also correlative with the following neque (neither).

27. hujus modi: Genitive of Quality, explained by the following ut clause.

28. ut contenderent: a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive.

29. itineribus: Ablative of the Way by which. pervenissent: Subjunctive by Attraction. ad salutem: i.e. to a secure place.

30. majori parti placuit: the majority thought best; literally, it pleased, etc. The subject of placuit is experiri et defendere.

31. experiri et defendere: Hýs-te-ron Pró-te-ron, i.e. an inversion of the logical order; B. 374, 7.

Page 63. 1. vix ut, etc.: so that time was scarcely afforded. eis rebus collocandis: Dative of Purpose; B. 191, 3, n.; G. 429, 2.

2. daretur: Subjunctive of Result.

3. decurrere, concinere: historical infinitives. What case, therefore, is hostes? B. 335; A. 463; G. 647; H. 610.

4. gaesa: heavy javelins used by the Gauls.

5. neque ullum: note that the Latin usually says neque (nec) ullus, not et nullus.

6. ex loco superiore: namely, from the top of their fortifications. quaecumque: the antecedent of this indefinite relative is implied in the following eo, which is equivalent to in eam partem.

8. hoc: Ablative of Cause. diuturnitate: with defessi.

9. alii succedebant: (and) others came up; Copulative Asyndeton. integris viribus: Ablative of Quality.

11. non modo: here equivalent to non modo non; B. 343, 2, a; A. 217, e; G. 482, r. 1; H. 656, 3. defesso, saucio: used substantively, indirect objects of dabatur. excedendi, loci relinquendi, sui recipiendi: we have the gerund in the first of these expressions, the gerundive in the latter two.

14. cum jam . . . pugnaretur: when the fight had already raged; the same idiomatic use of the imperfect subjunctive as of the imperfect indicative; B. 260, 4; A. 471, b; G. 234; H. 535, 1. amplius horis sex: amplius is here followed by the Ablative of Comparison; oftener it has no effect whatever upon the construction of the sentence. continenter: in succession, without a break.

16. languidioribus: thoroughly weary; B. 240, 1; A. 291, a; G. 297, 2; H. 498.

17. vallum scindere, fossas complere: another instance of Hysteron Proteron. It was necessary for the enemy to fill the ditches before they could gain access to the fortification. Note the plural in fossas; a single trench surrounded the entire camp, but different parts are here thought of.

18. ad extremum casum: to a desperate pass.

19. primi pili: see note on p. 54, line 21. Nervico proelio: Ablative of Time; for the event, see p. 54, line 21.

21. tribunus militum: see Introd. § 22.

22. unam esse spem, etc.: that the one hope of safety was in trying.

23. si experirentur: a substantive clause, the subject of esse; spem is a predicate noun. extremum auxilium: the last resource.

24. milites certiores facit: directed the soldiers; the expression ordinarily means inform, tell. Compare the English tell, in the sense of bid, order.

25. intermitterent, exciperent, etc.: Substantive Clauses without ut Developed from the Volitive (B. 295, 1, 8; A. 563, 565, a; G. 546, R. 2; H. 565, 562, 1, N.); or, what is the same thing, imperative clauses in indirect discourse; B. 316; A. 588; G. 652; H. 642.

26. missa; i.e. hurled by the enemy.

27. post: the adverb.

Page 64. 1. quod: its antecedent is id understood, the object of faciunt; quod itself depends on facere to be supplied with jussi sunt. portis: Ablative of the Way by which; B. 218, 9; A. 429, a; H. 476. There were four exits to the Roman camp; see the plan, Introd. § 38.

2. sui colligendi: note that while sui is plural, colligendi is singular. For the explanation, see B. 339, 5; A. 504, c; G. 428, R. 1; H. 626, 3.

4. eos circumventos interficiunt: surrounded and slew those. A striking illustration of the superiority of discipline over numbers. potiundorum: for this form of the gerundive, see B. 116, 2; A. p. 89, foot-note 1; G. 130, 8; H. 243.

5. ex milibus: dependent upon tertia parte. Note that neither amplius nor plus affects the construction of the sentence.

8. locis superioribus: on the heights surrounding the camp.

10. armis: Ablative of Separation with exutis, which agrees with copiis. By exutis we are not to understand that the Gauls were stripped of their weapons by the Romans, but merely that they lost them in flight.

12. saepius: too often.

13. alio consilio . . . aliis rebus: with one purpose (to open a way to Italy) . . . other problems (an uprising of the Gauls); consilio is Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; rebus is Dative.

18. incolumem: in predicate agreement with legionem.

20. his rebus gestis: referring not merely to recent achievements, but to all the campaigns of the two preceding years. cum: although. omnibus de causis: further explained by the following Ablatives Absolute.

21. Galliam: as usual, in the sense of Celtic Gaul.

22. Sedunis: the Seduni alone are mentioned, as being the more important tribe; the Veragri were also defeated at the same time.

23. Illyricum: one of Caesar's provinces, situated on the eastern shore of the Adriatic.

26. P. Crassus adulescens: see the note on p. 38, line 2.

Page 65. 1. mare Oceanum: not really redundant; Oceanum (the Atlantic) further defines mare, which is a general word.

2. praefectos: commanders of cavalry and other allied troops. Introd. § 23.

3. complures: limiting civitates.

7. hujus civitatis: i.e. of the Veneti.

8. omnis orae maritimae: a condensed form of expression for omnium civitatum orae maritimae. et: correlative with et in line 10 below.

9. quibus in Britanniam navigare: the Veneti enjoyed an extensive and lucrative trade with Britain. It is possible that Caesar had already conceived the purpose of invading Britain, and that the Veneti, hearing of that, determined to defend their threatened interests by disputing the Roman authority at once.

10. consuerunt: are wont; B. 262, A; A. 476; G. 175, 5; H. 299, 2. scientia, usu: Ablatives of Specification. rerum nauticarum: seamanship.

11. in magno impetu, etc.: since there are few harbors scattered along the vast, boisterous, and open sea; literally, the great and open fury; aperto, while grammatically agreeing with impetu, belongs logically with maris.

12. omnes vectigales: omnes is the direct object of habent, vectigales predicate accusative.

14. initium retinendi Sili: logically inexact; not a beginning of retaining Silius, but a beginning of (hostilities by) retaining Silius. per eos: i.e. by exchanging them.

17. auctoritate: i.e. the influence of their example. ut sunt . . . consilia: in accordance with the suddenness and unexpectedness of the decisions of the Gauls; note that ut is never properly a causal conjunction; thus here it does not mean as, in the sense of since, but in the sense of just as.

20. inter se conjurant: form a league.

21. acturos, esse laturos: the infinitives depend upon the notion of saying involved in conjurant.

22. ut malint: a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive.

23. acceperint: Subjunctive by Attraction. quam perferre: than to endure.

26. si velit: subordinate clause in indirect discourse.

27. remittat: Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive, or an imperative clause in indirect discourse.

Page 66. 2. quod ipse aberat longius: i.e. because he was too far off to assume the immediate direction of operations. naves longas: see Intro. § 49. interim: i.e. until he himself should return.

At the end of the previous year Caesar had set out for Illyricum (Book II., chapter 35). From here he crossed the Adriatic to Ravenna, where he met Crassus, his political ally in the Triumvirate. In April (56 B.C.) all of the Triumvirs (Caesar, Pompey, and Crassus) met in a formal conference at Luca, in Etruria. "At this little town the fortunes of the world were decided." Pompey and Crassus were to be consuls for the ensuing year (55 B.C.), while Caesar's term as governor of Gaul was to be extended for another period of five years after its expiration in 54 B.C. Pompey and Crassus further undertook to secure for Caesar the privilege of increasing the number of his legions from six to ten, and of providing for the pay of the troops from the public treasury. Caesar was thus shrewdly preparing his plans for an eventual return to Rome backed by a powerful army, with whose help he might become master of the political situation.

5. cum primum potuit: i.e. as early as the weather permitted, probably in May.

8. in se: literally, into or to themselves; but the phrase may be left untranslated.

9. legatos retentos (esse): Caesar misstates the facts when he represents that ambassadors had been detained. In chapter 7 he says the men had been sent as agents to procure grain. The infinitive is in apposition with facinus. nomen: namely, that of ambassador. ad: with.

13. maiore spe: Ablative of Attendant Circumstance; B. 221; A. 412; G. 399; H. 473. multum confidebant: had great confidence; B. 176, 3; A. 390, c; G. 333, r. 2; H. 416, 2. natura: Ablative of Cause with confido; B. 219, 1; A. 431; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 3.

15. inscientiam: i.e. the ignorance of the Romans.

16. neque, etc.: and they were confident that our armies could not.

18. ac jam ut: and even though; ut in this meaning is relatively rare, but is construed with the subjunctive even in the direct discourse; B. 308; A. 527, a; G. 608; H. 586, II.

19. posse, habere, etc.: dependent upon perspiciebant in line 23.

21. gesturi essent: would wage. For the sake of clearness, the periphrastic form is here necessary; gererent would have been ambiguous; B. 269, 3; G. 515; H. 541, 2, n. 1.

22. longe aliam atque: far different from what it was. concluso mari: alluding to the Mediterranean, the only waters in which the Romans had had experience in naval warfare.

24. frumenta: crops, the regular meaning of this word in the plural.

25. ubi: where.

27. socios: predicate accusative.

28. Lexovios, Namnetes, Diablintes: the names of these tribes survive in the modern town names of Lisieux, Nantes, and Jابلins.

Page 67. 1. erant: emphatic, — there existed.

3. injuria retentorum equitum: the wrong of detaining Roman knights; literally, the wrong of Roman knights detained; B. 337, 6; A. 497; H. 636, 4. The genitive is appositional; B. 202; A. 214, f; H. 440, 4; equitum here refers to the social, not the military, status of the envoys. As tribuni militum, they were of equestrian rank; i.e. only persons of equestrian rank were eligible for appointment as tribunes. rebellio facta: the resumption of war.

5. in primis: especially. ne arbitrentur: the fear lest they should think; B. 296, 2; A. 564; G. 550; H. 567, 1. The clause is substantive and, like injuria, rebellio, etc., in apposition with multa. hac parte: this quarter, district.

9. odisse: note that odi, though perfect in form, is present in sense.

10. priusquam conspirarent: this would be subjunctive even in direct discourse; B. 292, 1, b; A. 551, b; G. 577; H. 605.

11. latius distribuendum: namely, for the purpose of overawing those tribes which might be disposed to begin hostilities.

13. flumini Rheno: B. 192, 1; A. 384; G. 359; H. 434, 2.

14. adeat: for the absence of ut, see B. 295, 1, 8; A. 563, 565, a; G. 586, r. 2; H. 562, 1, n.

17. cohortibus legionariis: as distinguished from the allied troops, which were also organized in cohorts, though not in legions.

22. qui curet: Relative Clause of Purpose. eam manum distinendam: the keeping of those forces apart; B. 337, 8, b, 2; A. 500, 4; G. 430; H. 622.

24. Pictonibus et Santonis: these names survive in the modern Poitou and Saintonge.

26. possit: the subjunctive is due entirely to the indirect discourse.

27. copiis: for the absence of cum, see B. 222, 1; A. 413, a; G. 392, r. 1; H. 474, 2, n. 1.

2. pedibus: i.e. by land; Ablative of Means with aditum, which, as a verbal noun, here admits the construction of verbs.

3. cum . . . incitavisset: whenever the tide had rushed in; an instance of cum with the subjunctive denoting recurring action (whenever), a construction rare in the best Latin; B. 288, 3, a; G. 584, r.; H. 601, 4.

4. navibus: in the same construction as pedibus above.

5. in vadis afflictaerentur: were left aground; subjunctive by attraction to haberent.

6. si quando, etc.: whenever; an instance of a si-clause denoting recurring action; B. 302, 3; A. 518, b; G. 567; H. 578.

7. magnitudine . . . superati: happening to be overcome by the magnitude of our fortifications; superati agrees with the subject of coeperant. extruso mari, etc.: the Ablatives Absolute give the details of the siege works of the Romans, alluded to in magnitudine operis. aggere ac molibus: enormous dikes; literally, a dike and masses; Hendiadys; B. 374, 4; A. 640; G. 698; H. 751. Apparently the high tide ordinarily cut off the towns from communication with the mainland; but the Romans, by constructing dikes, kept the water away; they thus were able to advance their agger up to the walls of the besieged town.

8. moenibus: dative. fortunis: dative with desperare; despero also takes the accusative of direct object.

10. cujus rei: namely, naves. deportabant, recipiebant: the imperfect denotes repeated action; the experience was evidently a frequent one.

14. detinebantur : i.e. the Roman ships did not arrive. summa : with difficultas.

15. mari, aestibus, portibus : Ablatives Absolute, but to be translated freely, — in a wide and open sea, with high tides, and with harbors far apart. ac prope nullis : or rather, scarcely existing.

17. ipsorum : their own ; referring to the Veneti.

18. armatae : rigged. carinae : as verb, erant is to be understood. aliquanto planiores : somewhat flatter ; i.e. the line of the keel showed less curve. quam : understand in thought carinae ; for its omission, see B. 247, 3 ; H. 445.

20. excipere : cope with ; the long straight keel with slight overhang naturally diminished the draught of the vessel.

21. magnitudinem : violence, shock.

22. totae : entirely ; for the adjective with the force of the adverb, see B. 239 ; A. 290 ; G. 325, R. 6 ; H. 497. quamvis : the indefinite pronoun.

23. transtra : cross-beams, bracing the hull and supporting the deck. in altitudinem : in thickness ; literally, in height ; i.e. from the lower to the upper side, the transtra being laid horizontally.

24. digiti pollicis crassitudine : Ablative of Quality ; B. 224, 2 ; A. 415 ; G. 400 ; H. 473, 2. The peculiarity of the construction is that we have a limiting genitive in place of the usual adjective.

26. pelles : undressed skins, as opposed to the alutae, which were also used.

27. ejus usus : its preparation ; ejus refers to lini.

28. quod est, etc. : what is more likely. quod arbitrabantur : in apposition with eo.

Page 69. 2. tanta onera navium : such heavy vessels ; literally, such weights of vessels. regi : passive infinitive of rego. satis commode : to be taken with sustineri, as well as with regi.

4. nostrae classi : Dative of Possession, — our fleet had such encounters.

5. una : only. praestaret : was superior. reliqua essent : but everything else was ; Adversative Asyndeton ; essent, like praestarent, is Subjunctive of Result.

7. neque enim : nor indeed ; see note on p. 50, line 5. his : dative with nocere ; B. 187, II, a ; A. 367 ; G. 346 ; H. 426. nostrae : understand naves. rostro : the prows of the Roman galleys were furnished with heavy bronze beaks, used for ramming the vessels of the enemy ; see Introd. § 50.

9. minus commode: i.e. less easily than would otherwise have been the case.

10. copulis: grappling and boarding was a favorite method of attack in Roman naval warfare. accedebat ut ferrent, etc.: besides this, they weathered the gale; literally, it was added, that they, etc. cum coepisset, dedissent: the subjunctive is probably due solely to attraction; cum iterative (whenever) is regularly construed with the indicative, though exceptions occur; compare cum incitavisset, above, p. 68, line 3.

11. et . . . dedissent: and they were sailing before the wind; literally, had given themselves to the wind. et . . . et: correlatives.

12. in vadis tutius: i.e. rode at anchor in shallow water; having less draught than the galleys of the Romans, the ships of the Veneti were in less danger in shoal water when the wind had stirred up a heavy sea. ab aestu: Ablative of Agent; the tide is here conceived of as a person.

13. nihil . . . timerent: had no fear at all of rocks, etc.

14. navibus: Dative of Agency. casus: the occurrence.

17. captis oppidis: the Ablative Absolute here denotes means, — by capturing their towns. neque eis noceri posse: and that they could not be injured; literally, and that it could not be injured to them; noceo, as a verb governing the dative in the active, can be used in the passive only impersonally. expectandam (esse): understand sibi.

18. quae ubi convenit: when this assembled. The battle with the Veneti is thought to have been fought in the Bay of Quiberon, between Quiberon and St. Gildas. primum: i.e. ubi primum, 'as soon as.'

19. paratissimae, ornatissimae: thoroughly ready and supplied.

20. armorum: equipment, including not merely weapons, but tackle, cables, anchors, etc.

21. Bruto: with constabat.

23. quid agerent, etc.: deliberative indirect questions; the subject of constabat. The subjunctive would have been used here even in direct discourse.

24. rostro: Ablative of Means.

25. noceri: understand eis, referring to the ships of the enemy. turribus excitatis: the Ablative Absolute has adversative force, — though towers had been, etc. As a rule, a noun or pronoun stands in the Ablative Absolute construction only when it denotes a different person or thing from any in the clause in which it stands. This principle is here violated ; for turribus is the same thing as the following has.

26. ex barbaris navibus : on (literally, from) the ships of the barbarians.

27. superabat : overtopped. neque . . . et : correlatives ; on the one hand . . . not . . . on the other.

28. gravius : i.e. more heavily than if the decks of the enemy had been on a level with those of the Romans.

29. usui : B. 191 ; A. 382 ; G. 356 ; H. 433, 1.

30. absimili forma, etc. : of a shape not unlike that of wall-hooks. The wall-hook, or falx muralis, was a long-handled iron hook, used for tearing down fortifications ; falcium depends upon ei (formae), to be supplied in thought.

Page 70. 1. cum adducti erant : this clause denotes recurring action in past time, and hence stands in the indicative ; B. 288, B, 3 ; A. 548, 518, b ; G. 584 ; H. 601, 4.

5. navibus : Dative of Reference.

6. usus : control.

7. erat positum : lay ; literally, was placed.

10. paulo fortius : unusually brave.

11. in mare : for prepositional phrases with nouns, see note on p. 3, line 8.

13. cum circumsteterant : see the note on cum adducti erant, line 1, above. binæ ac ternæ naves : two or three ships at a time ; since the ships of the Veneti had been crippled by the fall of their rigging, it was possible for Brutus, even though he may have¹ had fewer ships than the enemy, to attack a single vessel with several and so overpower its crew.

17. ei rei : for that (thing), namely, the capture of their vessels. fuga : Ablative of Means.

19. quo = in quam.

20. exstitit : fell upon them ; note the difference in the Latin conception ; literally, sprang up ; for the singular verb with compound subject, see B. 255, 3 ; A. 317, b ; G. 285, 2 ; H. 392, 4. ut . . . non possent : having no oars, the vessels of the Veneti were entirely dependent upon the wind.

24. pervenerint : the perfect subjunctive as a secondary tense. cum : although. hora fere quarta : not far from ten o'clock.

27. cum . . . tum : not only . . . but also.

28. gravioris ætatis : of more advanced age.

Page 71. 1. navium quod ubique, etc.: all the ships they had had anywhere; the antecedent of quod is id understood, the object of coegerant; navium is Genitive of the Whole.

3. quo se reciperent, etc.: knew not whither to flee, nor how to defend; deliberative subjunctives in indirect discourse; B. 300, 2; A. 587; G. 467; H. 642, 3.

5. gravius vindicandum (esse): severer punishment should be inflicted.

8. sub corona: as slaves; wreaths were put upon the heads of captives who were to be sold into slavery.

13. magnasque copias: as compared with exercitum (i.e. a trained and disciplined body of troops), magnas copias probably refers to bodies of unorganized allies.

14. his paucis diebus: in the course of the last few days.

15. nolebant: plural because senatu is a collective noun. portas clausurunt: namely, against the Romans.

21. omnibus rebus: in all respects; Ablative of Specification with idoneo.

22. cum: although. spatio: Ablative of Degree of Difference.

24. hostibus: Dative of Reference.

26. opinionem timoris: impression of fright.

Page 72. 3. eo qui . . . teneret: namely, Caesar; the subjunctive is due to the indirect discourse.

4. data: agreeing with the nearer noun opportunitate, but to be taken also with loco. legato: Dative of Agent.

8. praemiis pollicitationibusque: i.e. with present rewards and promises of further favors.

11. quibus prematur: indirect question with docet.

12. neque longius abesse: and that Sabinus was on the point of leading forth his army the next night. For the quin-clause, see B. 298; A. 558; G. 555; H. 595, 1.

15. negoti bene gerendi: of a successful enterprise.

16. ad castra, etc.: that they ought to advance against the camp; B. 138, iv; A. 208, d; G. 208, 2; H. 302, 6.

20. quod credunt: a substantive clause in apposition with multae res, like cunctatio, confirmatio, etc.

22. prius . . . quam sit concessum: B. 292; A. 551, b; G. 577; H. 605.

24. ut explorata victoria: as though victory had been achieved.

25. quibus compleant: Relative Clause of Purpose.

27. locus: the site.

28. passus mille: Accusative of Extent of Space with acclivis.

Page 73. 1. quam minimum spati: as little time as possible.

2. exanimatique: et is explanatory, — and so; the adjective has predicate force.

3. cupientibus: understand eis.

4. duabus portis: Ablative of the Way by which.

8. ac: the Latin uses a copulative conjunction where we should naturally employ an adversative one (but).

9. integris viribus: Ablative of Quality with milites.

11. equites: nominative. reliquerunt: i.e. failed to overtake.

14. Titurio: i.e. Sabinus. ut . . . sic: just as . . . so; almost equivalent to our though . . . yet.

15. animus, mens: the fundamental difference of meaning between animus and mens is here observed; animus is mind as the seat of feeling; mens as the seat of reason, reflection, or resolution. Thus animus here means 'temper'; mens, 'purpose, resolution.'

16. resistens: here used as an adjective.

18. Publius Crassus: he had already distinguished himself by his conduct in the battle against Ariovistus (Book I., chapter 52), and later by his subjugation of some of the maritime tribes (Book II., chapter 34).

19. ut ante dictum est: Caesar has not previously made the observation to which he here refers, nor is the statement accurate.

20. ex tertia parte: as the third part.

22. paucis ante annis: namely, in 78 B.C., at the time of the war with Sertorius.

23. interfectus esset: subordinate clause in indirect discourse.

25. non mediocrem: no slight, i.e. especial; Litotes.

Page 74. 2. evocatis: evocati were veterans whose term of service had elapsed, but who sometimes voluntarily re-entered the army. Introd. § 14.

8. hi: referring to copias; construction according to sense.

11. victoriis: for the ablative, see B. 218, 3; A. 431, a; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 1.

12. quid possent: indirect question, subject of perspici.

13. imperatore: i.e. Caesar, who alone was invested with supreme authority over the movements of the troops. adulescentulo: namely, young Crassus.

17. vineas, turres: see Introd. § 42 f.

18. alias . . . alias: at one time . . . at another.

19. cujus rei: referring to the mines; for the genitive, see B. 204, 1; A. 349, α; G. 374; H. 451.

21. diligentia: i.e. our men met the mines by countermines; Ablative of Cause.

27. soldurios: a Celtic or Iberian word.

28. condicio: not condition, but contract, agreement. uti fru-antur, etc.: substantive clauses in apposition with condicio. in vita:
for the prepositional phrase limiting a noun, relatively rare in Latin, see note on p. 3, line 8.

Page 75. 1. commodis: for the ablative with fruantur, see
B. 218, 1; A. 410; G. 407; H. 477, 1.

2. dediderint: Subjunctive by Attraction. si accidat: and if;
Copulative Asyndeton.

3. sibi mortem consciscant: commit suicide. neque quisquam:
remember that this is the regular Latin idiom, — not et nemo.

4. memoria: Ablative of the Time within which. qui recusaret:
Clause of Characteristic; repertus est is present perfect, but the present perfect usually is followed by historical sequence.

6. cum his: resumptive of cum DC devotis, p. 74, line 27.

9. tamen: with impetravit. uti uteretur: Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive; the object of impetravit.

13. manu: i.e. by artificial means.

14. quibus eo ventum erat: after they (i.e. the Romans) had arrived there. expugnatum: for expugnatum esse; object of cog-noverant.

17. quae sunt citerioris Hispaniae, etc.: which belong to Hither Spain, (being) adjacent to Aquitania; citerioris Hispaniae is a predicate Genitive of Possession; finitimae limits quae.

18. inde: from there, namely, from Spain.

19. adventu: Ablative of Time. cum auctoritate, cum multitu-dine: the prepositional phrases modify adventu.

21. duces: as leaders; predicate nominative.

22. Sertorio: an able military leader and statesman. After the overthrow of the popular party by Sulla, he went to Spain, where for ten years, 82–72 B.C., he successfully maintained an independent government, in defiance of Roman authority. omnes annos: namely, all the years of Sertorius's power. summamque: -que is explanatory, — and so, and accordingly.

26. copias diduci, etc.: the infinitives are in apposition with quod.

27. hostem et vagari, etc.: but that the enemy, etc.; Adversative Asyndeton. et . . . et . . . et: Polysyndeton.

30. non cunctandum quin, etc.: that he ought not to hesitate to fight a decisive engagement. For the subjunctive, see B. 298; A. 558; G. 555, 2; H. 595. Note the force of de in composition, to fight it out, fight to the end.

Page 76. 3. pugnae: Dative of Purpose.

4. duplici acie: the ordinary line of battle was triple, but Crassus's troops were too few to warrant this formation.

5. auxiliis . . . coniectis: ordinarily, when the Roman force was adequate, the auxiliaries were placed upon the wings; in the present instance Crassus seems to have wished to guard against the danger of desertion on the part of the auxiliaries; hence he placed them between bodies of regular soldiers.

6. caperent: would adopt; B. 269, 2, 3; G. 515; H. 541, 2, n. 1.

7. belli: in war.

9. obsessis . . . intercluso: of these two ablatives absolute, the former stands to the latter in the relation of means, i.e. their plan was to cut off supplies by blocking the roads.

11. impeditos: agreeing with eos understood (referring to the Romans), the object of adoriri.

12. infirmiores animo: thoroughly disheartened. For the force of the comparative, see B. 240, 1; A. 291, a; G. 297, 2; H. 498; animo is Ablative of Specification. adoriri cogitabant: not thought that they would attack, but planned to attack; for the infinitive, see B. 328, 1; A. 457; G. 423; H. 609.

17. expectari diutius, etc.: that they ought no longer to put off marching against the camp; oportere, which represents the principal clause of direct discourse, depends upon the idea of saying involved in voces; for the quin-clause, see B. 298; A. 558; G. 555, 2; H. 595.

19. omnibus cupientibus: on this irregular Ablative Absolute, see B. 227, 4, and compare p. 69, line 25.

21. vallo: Ablative of Separation.

22. quibus: the dative; B. 187, II, a; A. 367; G. 346; H. 426, 1.

23. lapidibus telisque, etc.: by fetching stones and javelins. ad aggerem: i.e. for constructing one.

24. speciem atque opinionem, etc.: the appearance and impression of combatants.

Page 77. 2. ab decumana porta: at the decuman gate. This was at the rear of the camp; see plan of a Roman camp, Intro. § 38. The Aquitanians, instructed by former associates of Sertorius, had evidently fortified their camp after the Roman fashion.

3. habere: afforded.

5. praemiis . . . excitarent: the cavalry were allied troops, and as such needed the special stimulus of rewards.

7. ab labore: by work; B. 216, 1; G. 401, 2; H. 468, 1.

10. eas munitiones: those parts of the fortification, namely, the rear part.

11. prius quam posset: B. 292, 1, b; A. 551, b; G. 577; H. 605, I, II.

12. videri: dependent upon possent to be supplied from posset. quid rei: what; literally, what of business.

14. quod: its antecedent is the general idea residing in redintegratis viribus.

17. per: over.

18. apertissimis campis: over absolutely open plains; Ablative of Place where.

19. quae: its antecedent is milium; quae is the subject of convenisse, which in turn is the subject of the impersonal constabat.

20. multa nocte: late at night.

24. Tarbelli, Bigerriones, Tarusates, Elusates, Ausci, Garumni, Sibuzates: the names of these Aquitanian tribes survive in the modern town and river names Tarbes, Bigorre, Tartas, Eauze, Auch, Garonne, Saubusse.

26. tempore: B. 219, 1; A. 431; G. 401, n. 6; H. 476, 3.

Page 78. 2. omni Gallia: i.e. all the rest of Gaul except the Morini and Menapii.

3. qui essent, misissent: Clauses of Characteristic. neque: and . . . not.

4. arbitratus: for the perfect participle of deponent verbs with the force of the present, see B. 336, 5; A. 491; G. 282, n.; H. 640, 1.

6. alia ac; other than; B. 341, 1, c; A. 407, d; G. 643; H. 516, 3.

8. continentisque, etc.: and (because) they had unbroken forests.

9. eo: i.e. to the forests and marshes.

15. longius: too far. impeditioribus locis: Ablative of Place where without the preposition.

17. reliquis deinceps diebus: the remaining days uninterruptedly.

18. inermibus . . . militibus: the Ablative Absolute here denotes time, — while the soldiers were, etc.

20. conversam ad hostem collocabat: i.e. the timber was piled on the flanks of the Romans. pro vallo: as a rampart.

22. confecto: cleared (of trees). jam tenerentur: the imperfect implies that the cattle and baggage were not yet seized, but were on the point of being. extrema impedimenta: the rear of their baggage-train.

23. ipsi peterent: (and) they themselves were seeking; Copulative Asyndeton.

4. Aulercis, Lexoviisque: in northwestern Gaul, near the mouth of the Seine.

BOOK IV.

Page 80. 1. qui: attracted to the gender, not of its antecedent, but of the predicate noun; B. 250, 3; A. 306; G. 614, R. 3; H. 396, 2. Cn. Pompeio, M. Crasso: Pompey and Crassus, Caesar's political allies in the First Triumvirate, were consuls in the year 55 B.C. For the absence of the conjunction with the names of consuls, see note on p. 2, line 9.

2. Germani: in apposition with both Usipetes and Tencteri.

4. quo: the adverb, equivalent to in quod.

5. Suebis: a general name for a large nation of central Germany including many tribes.

6. premebantur, prohibebantur: i.e. had been and still were; B. 260, 4; A. 471, b; G. 234; H. 535.

8. omnium: note the emphatic position; omnis regularly precedes its noun.

9. singula milia: i.e. a thousand from each canton.

11. illos: those in the field. anno post: one year later. In expressions of time and measurement unus is not expressed, except for purposes of contrast.

12. illi remanent: Asyndeton.

13. intermittitur: the compound subject ratio atque usus is regarded as a whole; hence the singular. privati . . . nihil: i.e. there is no such thing as land held by individual owners. All land was held in common.

14. anno: Ablative of Comparison with longius.

15. multum, maximam partem: adverbial accusatives.
16. lacte atque pecore: on milk and flesh.
17. sunt: are engaged. quae res: namely, their devotion to the chase. genere: this and the following ablatives denote cause.
18. quod faciunt: explanatory of the expression libertate vitae.
19. officio aut disciplina, etc.: accustomed to no duty, etc.; literally, familiarized with; for the ablative, see B. 222 A.; H. 476, 3.
20. et . . . et: correlative.

Page 81. 1. homines: predicate accusative with eos to be supplied as object of efficit. in eam consuetudinem, etc.: to the custom of wearing . . . and of bathing; literally, to this custom, that they wear, etc.

2. ut haberent, et lavarentur: Substantive Clauses of Result; B. 297, 3; G. 557; H. 571, 4. Note that the present perfect adduxerunt takes historical sequence; B. 268, 1; A. 485, a; G. 511, r. 3; H. 547, 1. neque . . . et: correlatives; neque quicquam may be translated like nihil. vestitus: Genitive of the Whole with quicquam.

6. aditus: i.e. access to them (the Suebi). eo: on this account, or for this purpose; explained by the clause ut habeant. ut . . . habeant: that they may have some one to whom to sell what they have taken in war; quae ceperint is Subjunctive by Attraction; quibus vendant is a Relative Clause of Purpose. The antecedent of quibus is the omitted object of habeant.

7. quam quo: than because; B. 286, 1, b; A. 592, n.; G. 541, n. 2; H. 588, II, 2.

8. jumentis: horses; dependent upon utuntur. The word is here emphatic and so placed at the beginning of the sentence, — as regards horses, the Germans do not use imported ones.

9. parant: i.e. purchase.

11. haec: grammatically the object of efficiunt, by the figure known as Prolepsis (B. 374, 5; A. 576; G. 468), but logically the subject of sint.

12. summi ut sint laboris: capable of the greatest exertion; literally, that they be of the greatest exertion; ut sint is a Substantive Clause of Result, the object of efficiunt; summi laboris is a predicate Genitive of Quality. Note the emphasis lent to summi by placing it before the introductory ut.

13. pedibus: on foot.

14. eodem vestigio: in the same spot, stock still. For the absence of the preposition in, see B. 228, 1; A. 429, 2; G. 385, n. 1; H. 485, 2.

18. quamvis pauci: (they) however few. vinum: emphasized, like jumentis above. omnino: in translation to be joined with the negative. Many of these northern peoples exhibited the same hostility to the use of wine. Compare the attitude of the Nervii, mentioned in Book II.

21. publice: as a nation. laudem: predicate accusative with esse, the subject being vacare agros.

22. vacare agros: to have unoccupied territory; but in the Latin it should be noted that vacare is intransitive, and that agros is its subject. significari: object of putant.

23. non posse: are unable; subject of significari.

24. una ex parte: namely, to the east. a Suebis: with vacare.

25. ad alteram partem: namely, to the west or northwest.

26. captus: standard.

30. moribus: in the same construction as officio, p. 80, line 19.

Page 82. 1. vectigales: predicate accusative with hos.

3. in eadem causa: i.e. in the same state of subjection to the Suebi as were the Ubii.

5. multis locis: over many districts.

6. triennium: the Latin regularly says triennium, not tres annos; see note on p. 3, line 5. quas regiones: i.e. to the districts which.

10. trans flumen: i.e. on the east bank.

11. transire: from crossing. The infinitive is the regular construction with prohibeo in Caesar and Cicero.

12. vi contendere: to force a passage.

15. viam: Cognate Accusative. reverterunt: note that this verb, though passive in its present system, regularly has active forms in the perfect.

16. confecto: with itinere.

20. priusquam certior fieret: for the subjunctive, see B. 292, 1, b; A. 551, b; G. 577; H. 605, II.

23. partem: Accusative of Duration of Time. copiis: supplies.

26. nihil his committendum (esse): that no trust ought to be reposed in these.

27. Gallicae consuetudinis: predicate Genitive of Quality. uti cogant, quaerant, circumstat, cogant: Substantive Clauses of Result in apposition with hoc; translate, to compel, to ask, etc.

28. quid . . . cognoverit: indirect questions.

Page 83. 2. mercatores: object of circumsistat. Note that only a few verbs compounded with the preposition circum take the dative; most such compounds become transitive and take the direct object as here; B. 175, 2, a, 1); A. 388, b; G. 331; H. 406. quibusque: the -que connects circumsistat and cogant.

4. cogant: plural because its subject, vulgus, is a collective noun; yet the singular is used in circumsistat. The singular suggests the crowd as a whole, the plural the individual questioners. his rebus atque auditionibus: hardly more than this gossip; literally, things and gossip; but the 'things' are the 'gossip.'

5. quorum eos, etc.: which they are immediately forced to repent of. For the genitive quorum, see B. 209, 1; A. 354, b; G. 377; H. 457; eos is the object of paenitere, which is the subject of necesse est.

7. plerique: i.e. most of those questioned. ad voluntatem . . . ficta respondeant: give answers made up to satisfy their wishes; literally, reply things made up, etc.; eorum refers to the questioners.

8. graviori bello: i.e. such a war as would break out, if the Gauls and Germans should make common cause.

11. missas (esse), etc.: the infinitives explain the preceding ea facta (esse).

12. uti . . . discederent: i.e. to withdraw from the Rhine and advance into Gaul to attack the Romans.

13. omniaque quae postulassent, etc.: and that everything would be done by them (the Gauls) which they (the Germans) should demand. A condensed form of expression for 'the Gauls promised that all things,' etc. On the form of the infinitive fore parata (future perfect), see B. 270, 4; H. 619, 4.

19. constituit: i.e. announced his determination; he had already reached it some time before.

22. a quibus: referring to locis, not to Germanis.

24. neque priores . . . inferre: neither were the first to wage, etc.

25. recusare quin contendant: refused to contend; for the quin-clause, see B. 298; A. 558; G. 555; H. 595, 1. laccessantur, contendant, sit, etc.: note the employment of the present subjunctives after an historical tense (repraesentatio); this occurs especially in impassioned passages for the purpose of greater vividness.

26. sit: present subjunctive; tradita is here the participle.

27. quicumque: as antecedent understand eis, indirect object of resistere. neque deprecari: and not to ask for quarter.

Page 84. 1. dicere, venisse, posse : in strictness, the subject se should have been expressed with all these infinitives.

2. eis : the Romans.

3. attribuant vel patiantur : imperative clauses in indirect discourse. eos : object of tenere, the subject of which is omitted.

4. possederint : had got possession of, had won ; from possido, not possideo.

6. reliquum : note the emphatic position.

7. possint : this is a Clause of Characteristic, and would stand in the subjunctive even in the direct discourse.

8. quae visum est : what it seemed fitting ; quae is the object of respondere, to be supplied in thought as the subject of visum est.

10. verum : right.

11. qui : its antecedent is eos understood, to be supplied as the subject of occupare. potuerint, possint, velint, etc. : observe the repraesentatio ; see note on p. 83, line 25.

18. post diem tertium : the next day but one ; when employing ordinal numerals with post or ante, the Romans reckoned inclusively ; we should say the second day after.

19. ne moveret : a Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive (let him not move).

23. trans Mosam : i.e. to the left bank. Caesar himself was between the Rhine and the Meuse. ejus rei causa : i.e. to await their return.

25. Mosa profluit, etc. : the bulk of this chapter seems an aimless digression. Caesar begins with a description of the course of the Meuse, which is entirely fitting, as reference has been made to this river at the end of the preceding chapter. But the description of the Meuse involves a reference to the Rhine, and Caesar then proceeds to give an account of the course of that river, mentioning also the character of the tribes dwelling near its mouth, — details which have no bearing on this part of his narrative. ex monte Vosego : the statement is inaccurate ; the Meuse rises some distance to the west of the Vosges Mountains.

26. parte quadam : a certain tributary.

27. Vacalus : the modern Waal.

Page 85. 1. ab eo : i.e. from the point where the Waal enters the Meuse. milibus : either the Ablative of Comparison with longius or the Ablative of Degree of Difference with ab eo. If taken in the latter way, longius does not affect the construction of the sentence.

2. longo spatio: by a long course.
3. Nantuatum: apparently an error. In Book III., chapter 1, the Nantuates are located on the Rhone.
4. citatus: swiftly.
6. multis ingentibusque: many large; for the Latin idiom, see B. 241, 3.
9. capitibus: here mouths. When applied to rivers, caput usually means source.
11. milibus: see note above on line 1. ut erat constitutum: with revertuntur.
12. ne progredieretur: a Substantive Clause developed from the Volitive (let him not advance further).
14. anteceperant: Subjunctive by Attraction. praemitteret: the object (men, messengers) is omitted.
15. sibi: them, the Usipetes and Tencteri.
16. quorum: referring to the Ubii.
17. fecisset: representing a future perfect indicative of direct discourse; fecisset agrees in number with the nearer subject.
18. quae . . . ferretur: which was proposed by Caesar. The reference is to the proposition that the Usipetes and Tencteri should settle in the territory of the Ubii.
19. daret: imperative clause in indirect discourse.
20. eodem illo pertinere: had the same object; explained by the following purpose clause.
21. qui abessent: Subjunctive by Attraction; the antecedent of qui is equites, not eorum.
24. convenirent: imperative clause in indirect discourse.
25. cognosceret: i.e. examine and decide.
26. qui (nuntiarent): its antecedent is the omitted object of mittit. nuntiarent: here in the sense of direct, order.
27. proelio lacesserent: for the ablative, see B. 218, 7.
28. sustinerent: i.e. ut sustinerent. exercitu: i.e. the infantry.
29. accessisset: this would be in the subjunctive also in the direct discourse; B. 293, III, 2; A. 553; G. 572; H. 603, II.

Page 86. 1. ubi primum: as soon as.

2. quinque milium: predicate genitive, where we should expect the nominative.
3. equites: amplius does not affect the construction.
6. indutiis: Dative of Purpose.
8. rursus: not again, but in turn. his: the Romans.

10. ita perterritos: Caesar's cavalry, it must be remembered, were Gauls. Disciplined Romans would not have become panic-stricken under such circumstances.

12. venissent: Subjunctive by Attraction; after negative clauses the indicative is regularly used with antequam and priusquam.

13. ex equitibus: instead of the Genitive of the Whole, ex with the Ablative is commonly used with cardinals.

15. genere: Ablative of Source.

23. neque jam: no longer.

26. exspectare vero . . . judicabat: he thought it was the height of folly to wait until, etc.; exspectare is the subject of esse; summae dementiae is a predicate Genitive of Quality. dum reverteretur: the subjunctive would also have been used in direct discourse; B. 293, III, 2; A. 553; G. 572; H. 603. II.

Page 87. 2. nihil spati: no time.

4. cum legatis: to the lieutenants.

5. ne . . . praetermitteret: a substantive clause in apposition with consilio, — (his purpose) not to let any chance (literally, day) of battle pass.

7. eadem simulatione . . . usi: the circumstances indicate that this charge of treachery is not justified. Caesar is apparently endeavoring to offer an excuse for his own attack upon the Usipetes and Tencteri. The attack of the previous day upon the Roman cavalry could hardly have been deliberately planned; it was rather the sudden act of a few impetuous Germans; otherwise ambassadors would scarcely have ventured to come at all.

9. simul . . . simul: partly . . . partly. sui purgandi causa: for the purpose of clearing themselves. For the use of the singular form of the gerundive with the plural pronoun, see B. 339, 5; A. 504, c; G. 428, R. 1; H. 626, 3.

10. contra atque esset dictum: contrary to what had been said; B. 341, 1, c; A. 324, c; G. 643; H. 508, 5, and 516, 3.

13. quos . . . oblatos: that they had been delivered into his hands.

14. quod existimabat: to be taken with jussit.

17. acie triplici instituta: in order to be ready for action.

18. prius . . . quam possent: B. 292, 1, b; A. 550, 551, b; G. 577; H. 605, II.

20. et . . . et: correlative; celeritate and discessu are explanatory of omnibus rebus. discessu suorum: referring to the absence of those who had come as ambassadors to Caesar.

21. habendi, capiendi: the former is the gerundive, the latter the gerund.

22. perturbantur: were thrown into perplexity. copiasne . . . praestaret: indirect question.

28. reliqua . . . mulierumque: i.e. the remaining throng consisting of women and children.

Page 88. 1. quos: referring to multitudo; construction according to sense.

Plutarch tells us that, when it was proposed in the Roman senate to vote a public thanksgiving in recognition of Caesar's German campaign, Cato opposed the action and even went so far as to urge that Caesar be delivered up to the barbarians, in order to atone for the violation of the truce and to turn the consequences upon the guilty.

3. clamore audito: i.e. the shrieks of the defenceless women and children whom Caesar's cavalry were slaughtering.

4. viderent: realized; they could hardly be witnesses to the actual slaughter.

5. ad confluentem, etc.: i.e. to the junction of the Meuse with the branch of the Rhine, already mentioned, namely, the Waal.

6. reliqua fuga desperata: despairing of further flight.

9. ad unum: to a man.

11. ccccxxx milium: predicate Genitive of Possession.

13. veriti: fearing. The perfect passive participle of deponents often has the force of a present.

15. libertatem: i.e. the privilege of so doing.

17. illa: explained by the following quod-clause.

18. justissima: the most cogent.

19. suis rebus: for their own interests.

20. cum intellegent: i.e. as they would do when they should know; intellegent represents a future indicative of direct statement.

21. accessit etiam: a further reason was.

26. quos: referring to the Sugambri.

28. dederent: Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive (let them surrender); for the absence of ut, see B. 295, 8; A. 565, a; G. 546, R. 2; H. 562, 1, N.

Page 89. 1. imperium, Rhenum: the former is the object, the latter the subject, of finire. se invito: without his permission.

2. transire non aequum: transire is the object of existimaret; aequum is predicate accusative. cur postulare: treated as a real question in indirect discourse; hence the subjunctive.

3. sui . . . potestatis: that anything belong to his control or power; predicate Genitive of Possession.

5. qui: subject of miserant, fecerant, and dederant.

7. quod premerentur: the reason advanced by the Suebi.

8. id facere: from doing that; governed by prohiberetur; with prohibere the infinitive is more usual than a subjunctive clause introduced by ne, quin, or quominus. occupationibus rei publicae: by business of state.

9. transportaret: imperative clause in indirect discourse.

10. reliqui temporis: in the future.

11. satis futurum: would suffice; dependent upon the notion of saying involved in orabant.

12. ejus exercitus: of his army.

19. suae dignitatis: in accordance with his dignity.

21. faciendi pontis: in building a bridge. latitudinem: the point where Caesar constructed his bridge is located with most probability between Coblenz and Andernach; here the river is fully a quarter of a mile in width.

22. id: i.e. the construction of the bridge.

25. rationem hanc: the following plan. For the engineers, who had charge of the construction of bridges, forts, etc., see Introd. § 15. tigna bina: pairs of beams. The distributive is used because several pairs are implied; tigna is the object of jungebat.

26. ab imo: at the bottom. praeacuta: that they might the more easily be driven into the bed of the river. dimensa ad altitudinem: proportioned to the depth of the river; i.e. using longer piles where the water was deep, shorter ones where it was shallower. Note the passive use of the perfect participle of the deponent verb.

27. intervallo pedum duorum: two feet apart; this refers to the distance of the two beams from each other, not to the distance between the several pairs, which were naturally separated by much longer intervals. inter se jungebat: fastened together.

28. immissa . . . defixerat: had let down into the river and fixed there; defixerat and adegerat denote repeated action (B. 288, 3; G. 584; H. 601, 4); i.e. as often as he had let down one pair and made them secure, he would set a similar pair opposite these.

29. sublicae modo: like a pile; i.e. perpendicular, as explained in the following words.

30. ut . . . procumberent: so as to lie according to the current of the stream; i.e. the pairs of beams here mentioned all slanted down the stream.

Page 90. 1. his contraria: opposite these. duo: understand tigna; i.e. other pairs; bina would have been more exact.

2. intervallo pedum quadragenum, etc.: forty feet distant at the bottom; i.e. forty feet is the distance on the bed of the river between the opposite pairs of beams; quadragenum is the genitive plural of the distributive quadrageni. For the form, see B. 63, 2; A. 49, d; G. 97, 1; H. 169. The use of the distributive is determined by the principle already stated in the note on bina above.

4. haec utraque, etc.: these pairs (of beams) were kept apart at the ends by letting in, from above, timbers two feet thick (the distance between the beams), with pairs of bolts on each side. There seem to have been two pairs of bolts at each end of the cross-timbers. See the Plan.

5. trabibus immissis: Ablative Absolute denoting means. quantum: its antecedent is duo pedes, involved in bipedalibus; quantum is Accusative of Extent of Space. eorum tignorum junctura distabat: literally, (as) the juncture of those beams was apart, i.e. as far apart as those beams were where they came near together.

7. quibus disculis: when these were held apart; quibus refers to the opposite pairs of piles.

9. quo major, etc.: the greater the force of the water that rushed on, the more tightly were they (the opposite pairs of piles) held bound together.

10. haec: the horizontal two-foot timbers. derecta materia injecta: with timbers laid lengthwise; derecta is in predicate agreement with materia.

11. longuriis cratibusque: the longurii ran cross-wise, at right angles with the derecta materia. The wicker-work was laid over all.

12. nihilo setius: nevertheless, i.e. despite the other means adopted to insure the safety and security of the structure. et: also. ad inferiorem partem fluminis: down the stream, or on the down-stream side.

13. agebantur: were driven in. quae . . . exciperent: in order that, set as buttresses and united with the whole structure, they might withstand.

14. aliae item: understand agebantur.

15. mediocri spatio: Ablative of Degree of Difference with the comparative notion involved in supra pontem.

16. essent missae: representing a future perfect indicative of more direct statement; the subjunctive is due to attraction.

17. earum rerum: tree trunks or boats. neu: neu (neve), and not neque, is proper here; B. 282, 1, e; G. 543, 4; H. 568, 6.

19. diebus decem quibus, etc.: within ten days from the time when. coepta erat: the passive form is used because the dependent infinitive is in the passive; B. 133, 1; A. 205, a; G. 423, n. 3; H. 299, 1.

21. ad utramque partem: i.e. at each end.

22. Sugambrorum: these dwelt to the northeast of the point where Caesar constructed his bridge.

23. quibus: governed by respondet.

26. hortantibus eis quos: at the suggestion of those whom.

27. ex Tencteris, etc.: their own experience with Caesar had naturally impressed them with a terror of the Roman name.

28. in solitudinem ac silvas: the accusative rather than the ablative is used, in consequence of the idea of motion involved in abdiderant.

4. si premerentur: subordinate clause of indirect discourse, representing a future indicative of direct statement.

7. uti demigrarent, deponerent, convenirent: Substantive Clauses Developed from the Volitive, dependent upon the idea of urging involved in nuntios dimisisse (let them move away, place, assemble).

9. hunc . . . medium: that this place which had been chosen was the centre; medium is in predicate agreement with hunc; literally, this had been chosen the centre.

11. hic, ibi: both refer to the same place.

12. decertare: as regularly, of a decisive engagement.

13. rebus: business, purposes.

15. ut iniceret, etc.: substantive clauses in apposition with rebus.

16. obsidione: i.e. from the oppression of the Suebi.

18. profectum (esse): here from proficío, not proficiscor.

20. exigua parte reliqua: Ablative Absolute.

21. ad septentriones vergit: i.e. is situated toward the north as compared with Italy.

23. bellis: Ablative of Time.

24. sumministrata auxilia: it is not probable that any large number of British troops had assisted the Gauls in their struggles against Caesar.

26. arbitrabatur: this also depends upon quod. si adisset, etc.: the si clauses are the logical subjects of fore.

Page 92. 2. neque enim: nor indeed; see note on p. 50, line 5. temere = facile; so frequently with a negative.

3. illo adit: lands there; illo is the adverb. eis ipsis: the traders.

5. Gallias: the plural, to call attention to the different divisions of Gaul.

6. quanta esset: this and the following indirect questions depend upon reperire.

11. priusquam periculum faceret: before he made the trial; for the subjunctive, see B. 292, 1, a; A. 551, b; G. 577; H. 605, π.

12. idoneum arbitrat: Caesar thought him competent; the sequel showed that he was not.

13. praemittit: as object understand eum. ut revertatur: Substantive Clause Developed from the Volitive (let him return).

15. inde: from there; namely, the territory of the Morini; i.e. the vicinity of the modern Calais or Boulogne.

16. in Britanniam: for the prepositional phrase with adjective force, see note on p. 3, line 8.

17. quam classem: for the incorporation of the antecedent with the relative, see B. 251, 4, a; A. 307, b; G. 616, 1; H. 399, 3.

21. dare: equivalent to se daturos esse, which would be the regular construction with polliceor.

22. imperio: dative with obtemperare.

25. Atrebatibus superatis: in the fight with the Nervii at the river Sabis, two years previously. ibi: i.e. among the Atrebates.

28. magni habebatur: was highly valued; B. 203, 3; A. 417; G. 380; H. 448, 1.

29. possit: Subjunctive by Attraction. adeat, horteturque: for the substantive clause without ut, see B. 295, 8; A. 565, a; G. 546, κ. 2; H. 562, 1, κ. ut fidem sequantur: to seek the protection; the clause depends upon hortetur.

30. seque: se refers to Caesar, the subject of the main clause.

Page 93. 1. quantum ei facultatis, etc.: so far as opportunity was afforded to a man who did not venture; a reflection on Volusenus's courage; facultatis is Genitive of the Whole with quantum; ei is used indefinitely; qui auderet is a Clause of Characteristic.

7. de superioris temporis consilio: referring to their conduct of the previous summer, as related in chapters 28 and 29 of Book III.

8. homines barbari et imperiti: being barbarous men and ignorant of our practice; by nostrae consuetudinis Caesar apparently means the Roman practice of treating as friends all who submitted to the Roman people.

13. neque has, etc.: and because he did not think that concern with these trivial matters, etc.; has, which grammatically limits occupationes, belongs logically with rerum; this figure is called Hy-pál-la-ge.

14. Britanniae: i.e. the invasion of Britain.

15. eis imperat: levied upon them.

18. duas legiones: the seventh and the tenth. quod . . . habebat: all the ships of war he had besides.

19. praefectis: commanders of allied troops.

20. huc accedebant: in addition to this there were; literally, to this were added.

21. a milibus, etc.: eight miles away. tenebantur: in the double sense of delayed (by the wind) and prevented (from coming).

22. quominus possent: B. 295, 3; A. 558, b; G. 549; H. 568, 8. venire possent is redundant for venirent. in eundem portum: i.e. the same harbor to which Caesar himself came.

24. in Menapios: limiting ducendum.

27. eo . . . quod = tanto . . . quantum, — as great as.

Page 94. 2. tempestatem: weather, the original meaning of the word. tertia fere vigilia: shortly after midnight. naves solvit: set sail.

3. ulteriorem portum: eight miles to the east of the harbor from which Caesar himself sailed.

4. cum paulo tardius, etc.: action being taken somewhat slowly; the cum-clause here is purely circumstantial and has no temporal force; owing to head winds the cavalry were delayed for three days after Caesar's departure.

6. Britanniam attigit: the following description shows that Caesar must have landed near Dover.

8. haec: such. montibus: cliffs.

11. dum convenirent: for the rest of the ships to come; B. 293, III, 2; A. 553; G. 572; H. 603, II, 2. ad horam nonam: about the middle of the afternoon.

13. et . . . et: correlatives.

14. monuitque, etc.: and admonished them that all things be done by them at the command and promptly, precisely as the principle of military service and particularly naval manœuvres demand, since the latter involve sudden and unsteady motion; administrarentur is a substantive clause without ut used as the object of monuit; ut postula- rent is a clause of comparison attracted into the subjunctive; ut quae haberent is a Clause of Characteristic with the accessory notion of cause, the antecedent of quae being res; B. 283, 3, a; A. 535, e; G. 633; H. 592.

19. secundum: favorable.

20. ab eo loco: i.e. from the vicinity of Dover.

21. aperto ac plano litore: probably near Deal. For the Ablative of Place without in, see B. 228, b; A. 429, 2; G. 385, n. 1; H. 485, 2.

23. quo genere: classes of warriors which; referring to both horsemen and charioteers.

24. reliquis copiis: Ablative of Accompaniment without cum.

14. primo : correlative with postea below, in line 22. non ita magno : not so very large.

15. circumsteterunt : as object understand eos, referring to the Romans. sese interfici nollent : for the passive infinitive with subject accusative dependent upon nolle, see B. 331, IV, a ; si nollent is a subordinate clause in indirect discourse.

16. ponere : in the sense of deponere, lay down. orbe facto : forming a (hollow) circle, so as to present a front to the enemy on all sides.

17. ad clamorem : at their shouting.

22. postea . . . quam = postquam.

Page 102. 1. rebellionem : here in the sense of rebellion, for the Morini had already submitted to the Romans ; see chapter 22. sicci- tates: note the plural, which is used because several swamps are referred to.

7. quod abdidere: to be joined in thought with se receperunt.

12. dierum viginti supplicatio: exceeding by five days the thanksgiving mentioned at the close of Book II., which was the longest public thanksgiving hitherto decreed. See note on p. 60, line 11. The length of the present thanksgiving was probably determined by the fact that the Roman arms had penetrated into unknown lands, thus giving hopes of new conquests, — hopes that were ultimately realized, though not by Caesar himself.

Latin Lessons

By M. L. SMITH, of the Galesburg High School, Galesburg, Illinois. 12mo, cloth, 334 pages. Price, $1.00.

MORE than any other text-book in beginning Latin, Smith's Latin Lessons makes the subject live, interesting, and attractive.

The author had four chief aims in the preparation of this book: — (1) to make the Latin language seem alive; (2) to make the first year's study of value for general culture; (3) to minimize the difficulties of beginning Latin; (4) to prepare thoroughly for the second year's work.

First of all, Latin is made to seem a living language. The book constantly emphasizes, by means of derivatives and in other ways, the very great number of English words (fully one-half of all in the language) that come directly from the Latin. A host of familiar Latin phrases and sayings are introduced. Each chapter begins with a quotation. A special appendix emphasizes the value of Latin in science, mathematics, and especially in English.

The book attempts to give some idea of the life and the magnificent civilization of the great people whose native tongue was Latin. Over sixty illustrations and a number of descriptions give the pupil some impression of the city of Rome.

With these features to lend interest to the study of Latin, the book has, in addition, all the qualities of an excellent drill book. Only a few points are taken up in each lesson and these are thoroughly drilled on; the lesson vocabularies are small; the principles of English grammar are briefly re-stated; only essentials of Latin grammar are considered; reviews are frequent; Cæsar words predominate. The constant aim is to bring the pupil by the shortest path to the point where he will be able to read Latin with understanding.

Interesting parts of the Gallic War — twelve pages of reading — are given in the appendix, together with notes and a map.

In the selection of vocabulary and syntax, Lodge's Word List and Byrne's Syntax of High School Latin have been closely followed.

A Latin Grammar

By CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 288 pages. Price, 80 cents.

IN this book the essential facts of Latin grammar are presented within the smallest compass consistent with scholarly standards. Not only the work of the preparatory school is covered, but also that of the required courses in college and university. By confining himself to the best usage the author has found it possible to treat the subject with entire adequacy in the compass of 250 pages, exclusive of indexes. In the German schools books of this scope are found to meet fully the exacting demands of the entire gymnasial course, which is much more extended than that of American academies, and in both the French lycées and the English schools the popular Latin grammars are of the size of Bennett and tend to grow smaller rather than larger. Besides its compact size, the grammar has the merit of clear and simple statement illustrated by brief and intelligible examples.

Pupils find it easier to master Latin with the help of a book which is lucid in statement, and which omits the mass of unnecessary detail which made the older grammars so confusing. The fact that the pupil himself sees that Bennett's Grammar can be mastered as a whole, lends a directness and focus to the study which is impossible of attainment with a bulky book.

That schools demand a simple and concise grammar receives ample proof in the wide success of Professor Bennett's work. To-day it is used by more of the Latin pupils in the United States than any other.

In a word, the appeal of Bennett's Latin Grammar is universal. The schoolboy likes it because it makes easy the finding of the rules, which are put in language that he can understand. The teacher welcomes it because it gives him just the body of syntax on which he knows the pupil should be drilled. The college professor is glad to have a book which contains the grammar that he may justly require his students to know, and beyond which they enter the realm of the specialist.

First Year Latin: Preparatory to Cæsar

By Professor CHARLES E. BENNETT, of Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 288 pages. Price, $1.00.

THE object of First Year Latin is to prepare more directly for the second year work than is ordinarily done with the usual beginning Latin book.

As the work of the second year is generally the reading of Cæsar with the aid of the grammar, it is manifestly of advantage to become familiar with these two books as far as is possible in the first year. The following features of First Year Latin will show that a determined effort has been made to do this:

- I. The Vocabulary contains only words used often in Cæsar.
- II. The treatment of forms and syntax is in the regular order of the Latin grammars.
- III. Exercises in connected reading, which begin as soon as the verb is taken up, cover the First Book of Cæsar in simplified and abbreviated form. These exercises occur in every other lesson. At the end of the book, instead of the ordinary reading of fables and stories, there is presented the Second Book of Cæsar simplified in part.

First Year Latin leaves no gap between the beginning book and Cæsar. When the pupil has finished it he will have become familiar with the First Book of Cæsar in outline and the Second Book practically as it stands. He will have a vocabulary of all the usual Cæsar words and will have learned his forms and syntax in such an order that the arrangement of the grammar will be familiar to him.

The reading material from Cæsar will be found as attractive to young pupils as that ordinarily provided in a first year Latin book. The beginner is most interested in what he can read with most facility, and the arrangement of vocabulary and syntax in this book is such that he will find the selections well within the scope of his abilities.

No effort has been spared to make the book as attractive as possible. There are numerous pictures illustrating the reading passages, and a double-page colored map.

New Latin Composition

By Professor CHARLES E. BENNETT, of Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 286 pages. Price, $1.00. Bound separately:

Part I, 12mo, cloth, 144 pages. Price, 60 cents.

Parts II-III, 12mo, cloth, 176 pages. Price, 60 cents.

THIS book is intended to furnish enough material for all the work in Latin Composition in the secondary school. The author's conviction is that the primary function of Latin Composition in high schools is to extend and strengthen the pupil's knowledge of Latin Grammar. The principles of syntax are arranged in the systematic order of the grammars and are illustrated by disconnected sentences.

Each lesson contains first grammatical principles, with references to the standard grammars. These are followed by simple illustrative sentences, a vocabulary, and then by well-graded sentences to be put into Latin.

The book is arranged in three parts, as follows:—

Part I contains thirty lessons, using the vocabulary and constructions of Cæsar. The model sentences are taken from Cæsar and labelled with the point which each illustrates. There are fifteen exercises in connected composition scattered through the lessons. Two systematic general reviews are furnished.

Part II has the same plan, but is based on Cicero.

Part III contains exercises in connected discourse, with foot-notes referring to the grammatical points illustrated. There are specimen examination papers and a complete vocabulary.

Latin Composition

By Professor CHARLES E. BENNETT, of Cornell University. 16mo, cloth, 172 pages. Price, 80 cents.

IN scope and plan the Composition is the same as the Latin Writer; the grammatical principles illustrated are identical; and the two books may be used in alternate years. The difference is that the words in the Latin Composition are taken mainly from Cicero, while those in the Latin Writer are from Cæsar.

Cæsar's Gallic War: Books I-IV

Indicated quantities, Introduction, Notes, Vocabulary, Illustrations, and colored Maps and Plans. Edited by CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 355 pages. Price, $1.00. Text edition, 104 pages. Price, 25 cents.

THE special feature of Bennett's Cæsar is the notes, which are fuller than in other editions, and which make it their province not only to clear up difficulties but to give a running commentary on the narrative, and thus to keep the setting of the campaigns constantly before the pupil. The occurrence of each proper name is made the text for interesting comment; at intervals the situation is summarized for the pupil; every effort is made that the narrative shall seem vivid and attractive. The drill on syntax by means of grammatical references is very thorough.

Professor Bennett is particularly happy in choosing for comment exactly those passages which are stumbling blocks to young pupils.

The introduction has a sketch of Cæsar's life and an illustrated description of the art of war in his time.

The text is broken by brief headings in English which show the trend of the narrative. Long vowels are marked throughout.

There are ten colored maps and plans, showing every campaign.

In the vocabulary the basal meaning of the word is given first.

The price is more reasonable than that of most editions of Cæsar.

Preparatory Latin Writer

By CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 16mo, cloth, 202 pages. Price, 80 cents.

THE principles of syntax are arranged in the systematic order of the grammars and are illustrated by disconnected sentences.

The words are all taken from Cæsar; but it is not expected that the use of the book will be confined to classes in Cæsar. Sufficient material is provided for all the Latin composition ordinarily given in a high school course.

Cicero's Selected Orations

Indicated quantities, Introduction, Notes, Vocabulary, Illustrations, and Maps. Edited by CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 379 pages. Price, $1.00. Text edition, 117 pages. Price, 25 cents.

THIS edition contains seven orations — the four against Catiline, the Manilian Law, Archias, and Marcellus.

As in the Cæsar, the notes are the special feature of the book. They give fully the setting of each oration and contain a commentary on all allusions to the history of the times. This has been found much more practical than referring constantly to a historical outline in the Introduction. The notes also keep the pupil in touch with the logic of the argument and give an adequate explanation of all points of Roman law and custom. Aided by them, students cannot fail to see the speeches as masterpieces of the art of oratory.

The Introduction has an outline of Cicero's life, and sections on Cicero as a Man of Letters, Cicero's Character, Roman Public Antiquities, and the Roman Forum.

There are eighteen illustrations, including portraits of the prominent men of the time. There is also a plan and a reproduction of the Forum as it appeared in Cicero's time (found only in this edition), and pictures of the Forum of to-day.

The text is broken by brief headings in English, showing the progress of the argument. The long vowels are marked throughout. There are colored maps of Italy and Asia Minor.

The Quantitative Reading of Latin Poetry

By CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 12mo, paper, 49 pages. Price, 25 cents.

BELIEVING that with the aid of a few simple precepts, faithfully carried out, the oral reading of Latin Poetry may be made easy and enjoyable, Professor Bennett has prepared this little monograph emphasizing the importance of the knowledge of quantities as well as of rhythm.

Virgil's Æneid: Books I–VI

Edited by CHARLES E. BENNETT, Professor of Latin in Cornell University. With Introduction, Notes, and Vocabulary. 12mo, cloth, 491 pages. Price, $1.20. Text edition, 155 pages. Price, 25 cents.

AS in Bennett's Cæsar and Cicero the important feature of the Virgil is the elaborate notes. At short intervals headings describe the incidents which are to follow. Every allusion to mythology is fully explained, and the progress of the story is kept before the pupil. Professor Bennett has the gift of selecting for comment the passages which are likely to be difficult for the student, and of giving just the right amount of explanation.

The Introduction treats of Virgil's life and works, and gives a full explanation of the quantitative reading of Latin poetry, together with classified verses for practice.

The long vowels are marked throughout Book I.

There are sixteen illustrations, handsomely reproduced from ancient statuary, and two maps.

The Foundations of Latin

By CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 250 pages. Price, 90 cents.

THIS book for beginners follows the plan of a systematic development, first of the forms, then of the syntax, of the Latin language. The order of subjects is that common to all the Latin grammars. Forms and principles which belong together and which will always be associated are given together.

Latin Lessons

By CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 16mo, cloth, 191 pages. Price, 70 cents.

THIS book is on the same systematic plan as the Foundations. It differs from the other book in that it necessitates the use of Bennett's Grammar as a companion book in the first year. The pupil learns forms and rules directly from the Grammar, and is made familiar at once with the référé book which he is to use throughout his high school course.

Latin Composition

By BERNARD M. ALLEN and JOHN L. PHILLIPS, of Phillips Academy, Andover. 16mo, cloth, 304 pages. Price, $1.00. Bound separately:

Part I, 16mo, cloth, 156 pages. Price, 60 cents.

Parts II-III, 16mo, cloth, 188 pages. Price, 60 cents.

THIS book combines the best features of manuals based on the text read with the strong points of those based on systematic study of the grammar.

Part I is based on the first four books of Cæsar. Here the most common constructions are taken up in the order of the frequency with which they occur in Cæsar. This was determined by a tabulation of all the constructions occurring in Cæsar. The arrangement makes it possible to drill thoroughly on constructions which are really to be of use. These common constructions are taken up four times — once in connection with Book I, once in connection with Books I-II, and twice in reviews based on Book IV. The lessons are so arranged that one may begin either with Book I or with Book II.

Part II consists of lessons based on the four orations against Catiline. Here the syntax is taken up in the regular order of the Latin grammars. These lessons are followed by exercises based on Pompey's Command and on Archias, in which this same systematic presentation is given, these exercises being for the benefit of those teachers who wish to make a special study of Pompey's Command and of Archias. All these exercises are followed by additional lessons on Pompey's Command and Archias, which constitute a review and which furnish practice in translating connected passages.

Part III consists of additional exercises based on the Defence of Milo for those who wish to continue Latin Composition beyond the Cæsar and Cicero years. These exercises furnish a review of constructions and continue the pupils' practice in the writing of connected discourse.

The points of syntax are re-stated in simple language by the authors. Every third lesson is a review, furnishing practice in translating connected passages.

A Junior Latin Book

With Notes, Exercises, and Vocabulary, by JOHN C. ROLFE, Professor of Latin in the University of Pennsylvania, and WALTER DENNISON, Professor of Latin in Swarthmore College. Revised edition. 12mo, half leather, 566 pages. Price, $1.25. Text edition, 188 pages. Price, 25 cents.

THIS book was prepared in answer to the demand of a large number of teachers throughout the country, who wish a substitute for the four books of Cæsar's Gallic War.

The present revised edition of the Junior Latin Book contains : —

Three pages of Fables.

Selections based on Eutropius, covering Roman History to the time of Cicero.

Viri Romæ — The Lives of Cæsar, Cicero, and Augustus.

Nepos — The Lives of Miltiades, Themistocles, Pausanias, Epaminondas, Hamilcar, Hannibal, and Cato.

Cæsar's Gallic War, Books I and II.

Cæsar's Civil War, Selections from Books I, II, III, including the interesting account of the Battle of Pharsalia.

A full introduction precedes the selections. It tells the origin of the Fables, and of the selections from Roman history which are given in the book. There is also a life of Cornelius Nepos, and a discussion of his works and his merits as a writer and a historian. The introduction has a complete description of the art of war in Cæsar's time, and of the geography of Gaul and Germany.

The book contains exercises in Latin Composition based on the first and second books of Cæsar, with an English-Latin vocabulary.

The illustrations include maps of Ancient Italy, Rome and Environs, Greece and the Ægean Sea, Asia Minor, Gaul, the Roman Empire, and six colored maps and plans to illustrate the battles of Cæsar. There are also six full-page colored plates, giving a vivid and accurate picture of the costumes, equipment, weapons, and standards of the Roman army.

Selections from Viri Romæ

With Notes, Exercises, and Vocabulary, by JOHN C. ROLFE, Professor of Latin in the University of Pennsylvania. 16mo, cloth, 312 pages. Price, 75 cents. Text edition, 96 pages. Price, 25 cents.

THIS book will appeal to teachers who wish to insert easy reading between the beginning book and Cæsar. The advantage in its use lies in the fact that it is full of variety and interest, and that, in an attractive form, it gives the pupil a sketch of Roman history from Romulus to Augustus, together with many allusions to the customs of Roman life.

Full notes have been prepared for twenty of the twenty-five selections contained in the book; while the other five are arranged for sight reading, with hints for translation at the bottom of the page.

In the text, the quantity of the long vowels is marked. Exercises for translation of English into Latin, based on the text, are given. Appropriate maps are inserted.

The Lives of Cornelius Nepos
